UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

San Francisco Division

STRIKE 3 HOLDINGS, LLC,

Plaintiff,

v.

JOHN DOE SUBSCRIBER ASSIGNED IP
ADDRESS 108.198.213.54,

Defendant.

Case No. 18-cv-4988-LB

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF’S EX
PARTE MOTION TO TAKE EARLY
DISCOVERY

Re: ECF No. 8

INTRODUCTION

The plaintiff Strike 3 Holdings owns the copyrights for several adult motion pictures.<sup>1</sup> It alleges that someone — the Doe defendant here — who uses the IP address 108.198.213.54 infringed on those copyrights.<sup>2</sup> Despite its own efforts, Strike 3 Holdings has not been able to identify the individual associated with that IP address.<sup>3</sup> Strike 3 Holdings now asks the court to let it serve a subpoena on non-party AT&T, Inc. (AT&T U-verse), the Doe defendant’s internet

1 service provider, to learn the Doe defendant's identity.<sup>4</sup> Because Strike 3 Holdings has
2 demonstrated that good cause exists to allow it to serve a subpoena, the court grants the motion.

3 4 STATEMENT

5 Strike 3 Holdings is the owner of several adult motion pictures distributed through its Blacked,
6 Tushy, Vixen, and Blacked Raw brands.<sup>5</sup> The motion pictures are registered with the United States
7 Copyright Office or have complete applications pending.<sup>6</sup>

8 The Doe defendant, who uses the AT&T U-verse-provided IP address 108.198.213.54, used
9 the file distribution network known as "BitTorrent" to illegally download and distribute Strike 3
10 Holdings's copyrighted movies.<sup>7</sup> Through well-accepted geolocation technology, Strike 3 has 11 traced each download made to the Doe defendant's IP address to a physical address in the 12 Northern District of California.<sup>8</sup> Strike 3 Holdings's investigator established direct "TCP/IP"
13 connections with the defendant's IP address while the defendant was using BitTorrent.<sup>9</sup> The 14 investigator downloaded media files containing a digital copy of Strike 3's copyrighted movies
15 from the defendant.<sup>10</sup> The "file hash" — a unique value that acts as a "fingerprint" identifying 16 media files — confirmed that the files the investigator downloaded were downloaded from the 17 defendant.<sup>11</sup> The defendant "has been recorded infringing 36 movies over an extended period of 18 time."<sup>12</sup> Strike 3 Holdings did not give the defendant permission or authorization to distribute its

2 through his or her IP address.<sup>14</sup>

3 On August 15, 2018, Strike 3 Holdings filed a complaint against the Doe defendant alleging
4 one claim for copyright infringement under the Copyright Act.<sup>15</sup> On September 21, 2018, Strike 3
5 Holdings filed an ex parte motion asking the court to allow it to serve AT&T U-verse with a
6 subpoena under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 45.<sup>16</sup> Strike 3 Holdings says that the subpoena
7 will be limited to the name and address of the individual/individuals associated with the Doe
8 defendant's IP address.<sup>17</sup>

10 GOVERNING LAW

11 A court may authorize early discovery before the Rule 26(f) conference for the parties' and 12 witnesses' convenience and in the interests of justice. Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(d). Courts within the 13 Ninth Circuit generally consider whether a plaintiff has shown "good cause" for early discovery.
14 See, e.g., IO Grp., Inc. v. Does 1–65, No. 10-4377 SC, 2010 WL 4055667, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Oct.
15 15, 2010); Semitoool, Inc. v. Tokyo Electron Am., Inc., 208 F.R.D. 273, 275–77 (N.D. Cal. 2002);

18 F.R.D. 612, 613–14 (D. Ariz. 2001) (collecting cases and standards). "Good cause may be found
19 where the need for expedited discovery, in consideration of the administration of justice,
20 outweighs the prejudice to the responding party." Semitoool, 208 F.R.D. at 276.

21 In evaluating whether a plaintiff establishes good cause to learn the identity of a Doe
22 defendant through early discovery, courts examine whether the plaintiff: (1) identifies the Doe

7 plaintiff should be given an opportunity through discovery to identify the unknown defendants,

9 dismissed on other grounds.” Wakefield v. Thompson, 177 F.3d 1160, 1163 (9th Cir. 1999)

11 12 ANALYSIS

13 1. Strike 3 Holdings Establishes Good Cause for Early Discovery

14 Strike 3 Holdings has made a sufficient showing under each of the four seescandy factors
15 listed above to establish good cause to permit it to engage in early discovery to identify the Doe
16 defendant.

17 First, Strike 3 Holdings has identified the Doe defendant with sufficient specificity that the 18 court can determine that he or she is a real person who can be sued in federal court. It alleges that 19 the Doe defendant downloaded Strike 3 Holdings’s copyrighted adult motion pictures and 20 distributed them over the BitTorrent network.<sup>18</sup> To download the movie, the Doe defendant had to 21 direct his or her BitTorrent client to download the media file.<sup>19</sup> These facts indicate that the Doe
22 defendant is an identifiable adult who likely is the primary subscriber of the IP address or 23 someone who resides with and is known to the subscriber. Strike 3 Holdings also has traced each

1 download made to the Doe defendant's IP address to the Northern District of California, thus
2 giving the court jurisdiction over the defendant and Strike 3's federal claim.<sup>20</sup>

3 Second, Strike 3 Holdings has recounted the steps taken to locate and identify the Doe
4 defendant. The Doe defendant downloaded and distributed Strike 3 Holdings's movies through his
5 or her IP address, and his or her IP address was traced to this district.<sup>21</sup> The IP address is not
6 sufficient for Strike 3 to identify the Doe defendant.

7 Third, Strike 3 Holdings has demonstrated that its copyright claim could withstand a motion to 8 dismiss. A plaintiff "must satisfy two requirements to present a prima facie case of direct 9 infringement: (1) [he or she] must show ownership of the allegedly infringed material and (2) [he 10 or she] must demonstrate that the alleged infringers violate at least one exclusive right granted to 11 copyright holders under 17 U.S.C. § 106." Perfect 10, Inc. v. Amazon.com, Inc., 508 F.3d 1146, 12 1159 (9th Cir. 2007) (citing A&M Records, Inc. v. Napster, Inc., 239 F.3d 1004, 1013 (9th Cir.
13 2001)); see 17 U.S.C. § 501(a). Under Section 106, a copyright holder has the exclusive rights to 14 reproduce, distribute, publicly display, perform, and create derivative works of the copyrighted
15 work. Direct copyright infringement does not require intent or any particular state of mind. Fox
16 Broad. Co, Inc. v. Dish Network, LLC, 905 F. Supp. 2d 1088, 1098–99 (C.D. Cal. 2012); Religious
17 Tech. Ctr. v. Netcom On-Line Commc'n Servs., Inc., 907 F. Supp. 1361, 1367 (N.D. Cal. 1995).
18 Strike 3 Holdings alleges that it holds the copyrights for the adult motion pictures that the Doe
19 defendant downloaded (and thus copied) and distributed the movies without its permission.<sup>22</sup>
20 Strike 3 Holdings has sufficiently alleged a prima facie claim for copyright infringement.

21 Fourth, Strike 3 Holdings has shown that the discovery it seeks is reasonably likely to lead to 22 identifying information that will permit service of process on the Doe defendant. Strike 3 Holdings
23 alleges that AT&T U-verse records should identify the Doe defendant.<sup>23</sup>
