Wednesday - December 9, 2020 1 1:01 p.m. 2 PROCEEDINGS ---000---3 THE CLERK: All right, everyone. Good afternoon. 4 5 Thank you for all joining us on the Zoom call. We're here in Civil Action 11-6714, In re Apple iPhone 6 7 Antitrust Litigation, and in Case Number 19-3074, Cameron, et al. versus Apple Inc. And the last case is 20-5640, Epic 8 9 Games, Inc. versus Apple Inc. Counsel, please state your appearances for the record. 10 11 The Honorable Thomas S. Hixson, presiding. Let's start with the Apple Antitrust Litigation first. 12 MS. BYRD: Good afternoon, Your Honor. 13 Rachele Byrd, with Wolf Haldenstein Adler Freeman & Herz, on 14 15 behalf of the plaintiffs. 16 THE COURT: Good afternoon. 17 THE CLERK: Thank you. And the Cameron v. Apple. 18 MR. LOPEZ: Good afternoon, Your Honor. This is Rob 19 20 Lopez, of Hagens Berman, for the developer plaintiffs in the 21 Cameron matter. THE COURT: Good afternoon. 22 23 And Epic Games, Inc., versus Apple Inc. THE CLERK: Good afternoon, Your Honor. 24 MS. MOSKOWITZ: 25 Moskowitz, from Cravath, Swaine & Moore, on behalf of Epic

Games.

THE COURT: Good afternoon.

MR. DETTMER: And, Your Honor, Ethan Dettmer, from Gibson Dunn & Crutcher, on behalf of Apple in all three matters.

THE COURT: Good afternoon.

MR. DETTMER: Good afternoon, Your Honor.

THE COURT: So let me tell you what my agenda is for the hearing. I have some questions that I want to ask Epic Games and Apple, and then I have some thoughts that I want to discuss with those two parties.

And then what I'm likely to do is tell you to go meet and confer a little bit more in light of my -- the ideas I discuss with the two parties.

I know that you've met and conferred for several weeks already in a good-faith attempt to get to an answer, and I'm hoping that with some feedback from me we can get you over the finish line.

So, anyway, there's not going to be an order coming out of this hearing. Or the order will be that you talk with each a little bit more.

First, I want to ask Epic, Inc., just to make sure that I understand how you searched for documents, I understand that you had a set of search terms and that was shared with Apple.

Is that correct?

MS. MOSKOWITZ: Yes, Your Honor. We had initially proposed a set of terms, and Apple responded with a lengthy set of proposed conditions that we met and conferred and reached agreement on. THE COURT: Okay. So there was -- at the start of the process, there was an agreement on a group of search terms so Apple would know if a document didn't have one of their search terms it wasn't going to come up. And if it did, then the search term would pull it out. Is that right? MS. MOSKOWITZ: Correct. Correct. THE COURT: Okay. Then after you ran the search terms, did you have a team of document reviewers do manual review to see which documents were, in fact, responsive? That's correct, Your Honor. MS. MOSKOWITZ: performing a linear review of all of the search term hit results, which is in the order of over 3.5 million documents. THE COURT: Wow. That sounds like a big task. MS. MOSKOWITZ: It is. THE COURT: Was there ever a time when you took a sample of the documents that hit on the search terms and then disclosed to Apple, here's how we're making responsiveness calls with respect to this set, and let us know what you -what you think?

In other words, I knew that they had input on your search terms. What I'm wondering is whether they also had any input
