J. David Hadden is a top trial lawyer who is highly sought by the world's most recognized and innovative companies to help them win complex and high-stakes patent litigation disputes. As one of the most influential patent litigators in the country, he has been repeatedly ranked as a Super Lawyer by Northern California Super Lawyers and honored as one of the top 75 IP litigation attorneys in California by the Daily Journal. He is ranked among the leading patent litigators by IAM Patent 1000 as a "consummate professional" and "fantastic litigator" who "understands how to win."

The world's most innovative companies seek Dave's advice not only because of his strong command of the law and strategic vision, but also because of his unsurpassed technical expertise. He is a former National Science Foundation Graduate Fellow with an undergraduate degree in physics from Yale University and graduate work in string theory at the world-renowned physics department at Princeton University. He understands most complex technologies with ease and translates them to trial themes that win. He has represented companies in a variety of technologies including cloud computing, natural language processing, machine learning, wearable tech, medical devices, cryptography, telecommunications, database management and business intelligence, e-commerce, and software and hardware design.

Dave has been winning cases for 25 years at every stage of litigation, from motions to dismiss through jury trials and Federal Circuit appeals affirming all of his district court wins. He is one of a few trial lawyers who successfully secured a large award of attorneys' fees after winning summary judgment in a patent case. He has repeatedly shut down litigation campaigns by non-practicing entities against customers of his clients.

He represents clients in various jurisdictions around the country including in the Northern District of California, Eastern District of Virginia, District of Delaware, Western District of Texas and Eastern District of Texas. He has represented clients in Section 337 investigations instituted by the U.S. International Trade Commission and represented petitioners and patent owners in front of the Patent Trial and Appeal Board.

Inter Partes Reviews

Saina Shamilov is a trial lawyer and a top-ranked practitioner representing the world's leading technology companies in high-stakes patent litigation disputes. With nearly 20 years of experience in all aspects of pre-trial, trial and appellate practice, she has been recognized by peers and clients as one of the best to help resolve patent litigation disputes in the least painful but most favorable way for her clients. IAM 1000 has recognized her as a leading patent litigator who is "a trusted partner all around," "quick to understand complex technology" and "terrific at discovery." Northern California Super Lawyers has repeatedly recognized Saina as a leader in her field, while the Silicon Valley Business Journal has named her one of Silicon Valley's most influential women. Among her other recognitions, the Bar Association of San Francisco's Justice & Diversity Center named her an Outstanding Volunteer for her pro bono work.

Saina has successfully represented clients in various technological fields, including AI, cloud computing, machine learning, natural language processing, gaming, networking and telecommunications, e-commerce and internet-related technologies, CRM systems and database management, and in various jurisdictions around the country, including the Northern District of California, Eastern District of Virginia, District of Delaware, Western District of Texas and Eastern District of Texas. She has also represented clients in Section 337 investigations instituted by the U.S. International Trade Commission and has extensive experience representing petitioners and patent owners in front of the Patent Trial and Appeal Board. She was recognized by the PTAB Bar Association as one of the Top 50 Women in PTAB Trials.

What sets Saina apart from her peers is her time spent as a software engineer prior to attending law school. Her technical background allows her to effectively understand her clients' technologies and translate difficult technical issues into arguments that are understandable and compelling to the judge or jury. She has secured winning jury verdicts, obtained dismissals of numerous cases on early motions with minimal incurred costs, successfully transferred disputes against her clients to more convenient and favorable jurisdictions and secured winning appellate decisions in complex high-stakes patent litigation disputes for the world's most recognized companies.
