Todd

My understanding is all the MDL cases are done, judgment entered and the file closed. We are handling the appeals and there is nothing further in the MDL happening. I never said a new case filing was required. We are not counsel in the post judgment proceedings for Pweb and have not agreed to accept service of any post judgment docs nor has our client consented to same.

Jeff,

I am not sure I follow. Stubbs Alderton is still counsel of record in the MDL. Under FRCP 69, California enforcement rules apply, and in California the discovery in aid of enforcement is part of the original action -- no new case filing is required. So PersonalWeb was properly served. Please let me know whether you will withdraw your objection, or if we will need to raise this with the Court.

Thank you,

Todd Gregorian

Jeff and Michael,

It is a bit disappointing, given PersonalWeb's aggression in demanding responses to its own issues throughout the case, that it now will not provide the courtesy of a timely response. In addition to the matters discussed below, I have the following additional issues to address:

- By now you have seen our discovery requests in aid of enforcement. While PersonalWeb has the usual period to provide a formal response to those, I would ask you separately to identify by close of business today any PersonalWeb bank or financial accounts, including current balances, so that our enforcement of the judgment is not further delayed.
- Amazon and Twitch intend to apply ex parte to take the debtor's examination of PersonalWeb. Please let me know if PersonalWeb will oppose this relief, and if so, on what grounds. I am available to confer after 2pm today or tomorrow before noon.

Thank you,

Todd Gregorian

Jeff,

Following up on my request. Please let us know whether PersonalWeb will pay the judgment or post a bond, and answer my other questions below.

Jeff,

Please let me know what PersonalWeb currently plans to do, if anything, to secure the judgment. Amazon is not willing to leave the judgment unsecured during the appeal. I think it is in the interest of both sides to avoid incurring additional expenses around this issue, and Amazon reserves the right to seek reimbursement of any such expense that PersonalWeb forces it to incur by failing to secure the judgment. But it would be much simpler if PersonalWeb posted a bond voluntarily.

Finally, for the purposes of meeting and conferring regarding this issue and related potential motion practice, please let me know: (1) whether PersonalWeb currently has sufficient funds to pay the judgment in full; and (2) if not, what assets and what amount of cash does PersonalWeb have available to it to secure the judgment?

Thank you,

Todd Gregorian

Todd

Sorry for any delay in responding to your question. At this time the client is considering its options and no decision one way or the other has been made. Please feel free to follow-up with me at the end of the week or early next week.

Regards

Just following up on the below. Could you let me know your client's plan, so that Amazon does not incur any unnecessary enforcement expense?

Counsel,

I saw that PersonalWeb intends to appeal the fee order. Does it intend to post a bond to extend the automatic stay of enforcement? By when will it post?

Thanks,
