STIPULATION AND ORDER

WHEREAS, in light of the various holidays, including Rosh Hashanah, the parties have reached an agreement and present this stipulation which provides for a short extension of certain dates without changing any of the existing trial dates;

WHEREAS, the Parties agree that the requested schedule changes will benefit both the parties and the Court (but will not disrupt the existing trial dates). The requested schedule change

(1) provides a short extension of near term dates for expert discovery and (2) staggers the schedule for the Electronic Arts and Take-Two cases, which are not scheduled for trial until July and August 2018, respectively. Given the volume of expert reports, the ongoing claim construction briefing, and the parties' efforts to narrow certain issues, the parties would benefit from extending the schedule very slightly in the Activision case and extending the schedule by approximately 2 weeks in the Electronic Arts and Take-Two cases;

WHEREAS, there is good cause for extending the deadline for summary judgment and Daubert motions in the Electronic Arts and Take-Two cases. In particular, the parties expect by extending the schedule, they will be able to better explain the issues and potentially further narrow the issues requiring resolution by the court in the Electronic Arts and Take-Two cases. Further, the extension will not require modification of the existing trial dates;

IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED by the parties, subject to the approval of the Court, that the Scheduling Order (C.A. No. 16-453, D.I. 62) is amended as shown in the table below:
