INTEL CORPORATION’S MOTION TO COMPEL DISCOVERY

Intel Corporation (“Intel”) respectfully moves to compel PACT XPP Schweiz AG (“PACT”) to produce a witness in response to Intel’s 30(b)(6) deposition notice and put in place a discovery plan ensuring both sides a reasonable amount of deposition discovery.

Specifically, Intel moves for an Order (i) allowing each party to serve two Rule 30(b)(6) deposition notices at different points in fact discovery (i.e., an early deposition now covering the existence and location of key documents, and a second deposition later on the merits of the case), (ii) compelling PACT to produce a witness in response to Intel’s 30(b)(6) deposition notice served September 17, 2019 regarding document issues, and (iii) compelling PACT to make Mr. Vorbach—an inventor on all 12 asserted patents—available at two different points during discovery for the already-ordered 14-hours of deposition in his personal capacity. Intel requests this relief so it can defend itself against PACT’s claims.

The specific grounds for this motion are set forth in Intel’s brief, filed herewith.
