

Exhibit E

Intellectual property and open innovation

Investing in innovation worldwide

Microsoft is among the top investors in innovation worldwide. Innovation is at the heart of Microsoft as a company, and it is a driving force behind our mission to empower every person and every organization on the planet to achieve more. This investment is most successful not just when it benefits Microsoft, but when it creates more opportunity for our customers and partners. We must ensure that our policy of innovation supports both our ability to produce cutting edge technology and the ability of our customers, partners, and developers to build on that technology to achieve more. As a result, Microsoft relies on, and participates in, multiple modes of intellectual property and open innovation systems, including patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets, open data, open source, and standards.

Patents

Microsoft is committed to responsible intellectual property management, including the creation of a healthy patent ecosystem around the world that promotes and encourages innovation.

Learn about our patent portfolio >

Copyrights

Microsoft products and services—including images, text, and software downloads (the "content")—are owned either by Microsoft Corporation or by third parties who have granted Microsoft permission to use the content.

Read our copyright requirements >

Trademarks

Microsoft is grateful for the trust that people place in our products, services, and experiences. Our Trademark and Brand Guidelines detail how you can help us protect Microsoft's brand assets, including logos, names, and app and product icons, and the trust that they represent.

Review our guidelines >

Open source

Microsoft is all in on open source. We believe that collaborative development through the open source ecosystem is the best way to drive innovation.

IP licensing

Our investments in research and development help create new and better Microsoft products, services, and experiences for the benefit of our customers. Microsoft

Open Data Campaign

Through our Open Data Campaign, we're working to close the 'data divide' and help organizations of all sizes benefit from the power of data and the open technology ecosystem.

Learn more about open source >

Explore our programs >

Follow Microsoft   