	B.    Written description.....	10
IV.	ARGUMENT .....	12
	A.    Lilly's motion papers violate Local Rule 56.1.....	13
	B.    Lilly's species-genus argument fails, because the patents claim methods of using anti-CGRP antagonist antibodies to treat headache, not the antibodies themselves . .....	15
	C.    The record contains ample evidence allowing a factfinder to conclude that the specification describes the genus of antibodies used in the claimed methods....	18
	1.    The parties dispute whether the disclosed species are representative of the claimed genus.18
	2.    The parties dispute whether the specification disclosed structural features common to members of the genus. 24
	D.    Neither reduction to practice nor clinical results are required to satisfy the written description requirement and the parties dispute whether the named inventors reduced the inventions to practice.....	25
	E.    The parties dispute whether the specification describes the claimed methods....	27
	F.    Lilly's Motion does not show that summary judgment is appropriate for the dependent claims and the claims of the '907 and '908 patents.....	30
