Capacity Leveling in the SAP System

This section offers you an overview of how the capacity leveling function is integrated with the SAP System.

Capacity leveling is an essential function within capacity planning, which is a part of the R/3 System.   The R/3 System is integrated application software covering all the business functions in your company.   The efficiency of the overall system is achieved through the integrated modules, each representing an area of related functions.

All modules are real-time applications, that is, values and quantities are saved directly.   As a result, the same current data is available to all users of this system.

The capacity leveling function is used in the following modules:

- Materials Management (MM)
- Production Planning and Control (PP)
- Plant Maintenance (PM)
- Project System (PS)
- Human Resources (HR)

The following elements in capacity planning form the basis of capacity leveling:

- available capacities
- capacity requirements
- operation dates in orders

For easier reading in this guide, the term "operation" also includes the "activities" in networks except where the networks are explicitly described.
