19	JUDGE LEE: Welcome to the Board. This is the
20	combined final hearing for two CBM trials. It should be
21	CBM2012-00002 and CBM2012-00004. Now, because this is a
22	combined final hearing, we contemplate that the trial hearing
23	transcript will be usable in either proceeding by either party; and
24	because it is a combined final hearing, we will be lenient as far
25	as the time constraint goes, but formally, it's one hour total time
26	for each party. If we ask a lot of questions, then you will receive
27	extra time at the end. As usual, the Petitioner will present its 28	case first.
29	Before that, let's know who's representing whom.

1	MR. BAUGHMAN: Thank you, Your Honor. It's Steve
2	Baughman from Ropes & Gray, with my colleagues Jim Myers
3	and Nicole Jantzi on behalf of Petitioner. And we Sean
4	McSweeney from Liberty Mutual in the courtroom today as well
5	JUDGE LEE: Thank you.
6	MR. GRIFFITH: Your Honor, Calvin Griffith on behalf
7	of Progressive Casualty Insurance Co., and with me is James
8	Wamsley, also from Jones Day, and my partner, John Biernacki
9	sitting in the gallery, also from Jones Day. And from
10	Progressive, two representatives here today; we have Raymond
11	Ling, in-house counsel, and John Sauerland, a businessperson.
12	JUDGE LEE: Thank you.
13	Any time you're ready, Mr. Baughman.
14	MR. BAUGHMAN: Yes, Your Honor.
15	Good afternoon, Your Honors. May it please the Board
16	At the outset, we would like to reserve 30 minutes of
17	our one-hour allocation for rebuttal. And just to give the Board
18	an overview of what we would propose to address today, but we
19	are obviously happy to address the Board's questions, there are 20	three issues that we would propose to address, in this order.
21	First, arguments Progressive made for allowance in the
22	original prosecution reexamination and the obstacles that
23	Progressive ran into based on the prior art and the knowledge of 24	a person with skill, because we think this frames the issues that
25	are raised in the trials before us. The second topic would be the

1	grounds for rejection based on Kosaka; and the third would be
2	the grounds for rejection based on Bouchard.
3	Our plan is to divide today's argument into issues. I'll plan to start generally on the first two topics, and my colleague,

5 Mr. Myers, will address the third.

6 There's one procedural point we would just like to note 7 Petitioner's position on for the record. Progressive has submitted for today's hearing a 72-page set of demonstratives, which it is 8 9 our understanding is not evidence, and we simply wish to state 10 that our that while the whole document has been filed with the 11 Board, they are not actually evidence, and only the portions 12 actually discussed today during the hearing are demonstratives 13 and would be available for consideration by the Board. In other 14 words, that it's not a 72-page reply brief that we don't get an 15 opportunity to respond to.

The claims before the Board today in the '970 patent are all new as the result of an ex parte reexamination. In that process, all of Progressive's original claims were rejected over the prior art. Progressive added new language in each claim that issued, either the amended original claims or new claims, that required one of two things: The use of actuarial classes or the use of initial profiles with policy limits and deductibles for determining a base cost for insurance.

But Progressive didn't tell the examiner during reexamination that these were known, used, and required by law,

- 1 as the evidence before the Board today confirms. That's the '970
- 2 patent, the prior art, and expert testimony.
- 3 So, during initial prosecution, as Exhibit 1002 from the
- 4 file history, Progressive tried to get very broad claims to
- 5 monitoring and recording vehicle data to determine an insurance
- 6 cost, but it ran into repeated prior art objections from the
- 7 examiner. The specification of the patent itself concedes that the
- 8 technology, the pieces of the system that were claimed, were
- 9 known in the art, as was the use of actuarial classes to rate
- 10 insurance customers.
- And the examiner rejected the claims as anticipated by
- 12 the Camhi and Osborne references; for example, Exhibit 1002 at
- page 137 and 122. So, in order to obtain its original claims,
- 14 Progressive distinguished that art as rating for a future period
- 15 based on past driving activity and made amendments and
- arguments to confirm that retrospective nature of the claims that
- were issuing in the original prosecution.
- And for some citations, all from Exhibit 1002, at page
- 19 128, which is a July 19th amendment, 1999; page 110, a
- November 12th interview summary; and page 112, a November
- 21 15th amendment.
- So, the original claims with these retrospective
- 23 limitations issued in 2000, and then Petitioner here filed an ex
- 24 parte reexam request, the file history of which is in Exhibit
- 25 1003, and the reexamination examiner found that every
