Case CBM2012-00005
Patent 6,675,151C1

JOINT STIPULATION

The parties, through their undersigned counsel, stipulate as follows:

In 2005, Frontline granted a license that included a conditional, exclusive, limited license to a third party company to manufacture, use, import, offer for sale, or sell “Licensed Products and Services” in a field of use described as “banking.” The term “Licensed Products and Services” was defined to mean all products and services offered by the third party company, the manufacture, use, importation, offer for sale, or sale of which would infringe an unexpired, valid, and enforceable claim of certain licensed patents including the ‘151 patent and any subsequent reexamination thereof. This license allowed only the end users, e.g., banks, tellers, and substitute tellers, of the third party company to use the “Licensed Products and Services” provided by the third party company. The “banking” field was defined as one or more banks who utilize a platform accessible via a communication link, including the Internet, for fulfilling open or vacant teller positions and other bank workers with “substitutes.”
