World Leader in Trading Strategy Back-testing

Company History

Omega Research (Nasdaq: OMGA) is a leading provider of branded real-time trading tools for active traders and professionals. Our flagship product, TradeStation®, has sold over 45,000 copies, representing more than $100 million in software sales, since its introduction in 1991. WindowOnWallStreet.com, our recently introduced Internet subscription service with over 10,000 paying subscribers, offers active traders and professionals award-winning streaming real-time charts, quotes and news.

Company Vision

On January 20, 2000, Omega Research (Nasdaq: OMGA) and OnlineTrading.com, a direct-access online brokerage for active traders and professionals, announced a definitive agreement to merge the two companies in an all-stock combination. The strategic combination of these two companies is expected to create unparalleled brokerage services for the active trader and professional: a seamlessly-integrated trading platform that includes a branded, powerful trading strategy platform; streaming real-time market quotes and news; and direct-access, intelligent order-routing execution services. After the merger, the company plans to make available brokerage services to new customers and to its existing base of 45,000 TradeStation and 10,000 WindowOnWallStreet.com customers.

Coming Soon

Later this year, Omega Research intends to launch TradeStation.com, the Internet version of its flagship product, which the company believes will be the Internet's first trading platform that allows active traders to test, automate and execute their own trading strategies. TradeStation.com will combine the trading strategy back-testing and automation of TradeStation with streaming real-time market information and intelligent direct-access order execution.
