RGB Patents: Motion Control Systems

Dr. Papanikolopoulos' Description of the RGB Software Framework

“The '236 patent generally describes a software framework for motion control devices/systems. The patent alleges the framework could potentially enable users to write software for motion control devices without having to write low-level code. The framework includes an Application Programming Interface (API) and a Service Provider Interface (SPI). The API includes component functions while the SPI includes driver functions. The driver functions are classified into core and extended ones.”
