BELLY COVERING GARMENT

FIELD OF THE INVENTION

[0001] The present invention relates to a garment worn during different stages of pregnancy and different stages of postpartum body changes.

BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION

[0002] Garments intended to cover a wearer's body below the abdomen or belly during various stages of pregnancy have been manufactured as knits or woven fabrics. Some of the knits or woven fabric garments are constructed with an elastic belt or waist band which caused discomfort when tightened about the body. Some of the garments have stretchable fabric panels sewn into place with sewn seams. Such garments cause discomfort due to the presence of the sewn seams, urged by elastic stretching of the panels pressing against the torso. Moreover, women have complained that such garments are difficult to keep in place, as they gradually slip downward while they are being worn.

[0003] Denim jeans or trousers have been recycled by removing the waistband at the front of the jeans and replacing the same with an elastic band that cradles a growing abdomen. Alternatively, denim jeans or trousers are manufactured without a waistband at the front so that a separate band can be attached at the front.

[0004] Accordingly, a need exists for a garment that covers and fits a growing abdomen during different stages of pregnancy. Such a garment is required to stay up, and desirably would fit comfortably while being worn. Moreover, such a garment would stay up when worn over different body types.

SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION

[0005] A purpose of the invention is to provide a garment that adapts to cover and fit a growing abdomen during pregnancy, wherein the garment stays up when worn.

[0006] A garment comprises a garment upper portion and a garment lower portion. The garment upper portion has a belly panel that is expansible to cover and fit over a growing abdomen during different stages of pregnancy. The garment lower portion has a first torso encircling circumference that recedes downward to make way for expansion of the belly panel. The garment upper portion has a second torso encircling circumference to hold the garment up and in place over the torso.

- 5 [0007] An embodiment of the garment is adjustable to encircle different body types. Another embodiment of the invention provides a garment that fits comfortably while being worn.
- [0008] An embodiment of the garment comprises an adjustable torso encircling circumference that is adjustable in girth to encircle different body types.
- [0009] An embodiment of the upper portion of the garment comprises a seamless tubular 10 elastic fabric to stretch elastically and fit different body types.
- [0010] An embodiment of the abdomen covering area comprises an elastic fabric.
- [0011] An embodiment of the abdomen covering area comprises an elastic fabric that is contractible elastically to cover an abdomen during different stages of post partum body changes.
- [0012] According to an embodiment of the invention, an expansible tubular upper portion 15 of the garment is seamless to fit comfortably while being worn.

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE DRAWINGS

- [0013] Fig. 1 is a front view of a garment according to the present invention.
- [0014] Fig. 1A is a view similar to Fig. 1, and discloses a body panel covering a growing abdomen.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION

[0021] Fig. 1 discloses a garment 100 for encircling a lower torso portion of a wearer of the garment 100. The garment 100 comprises a garment upper portion 102 and a garment lower portion 104. A lower end perimeter 106 of the garment upper portion 102 is attached to a corresponding upper end perimeter 108 of the garment lower portion 104. The garment lower portion 104 comprises, for example, a pair of trousers, such as, denim jeans. Alternatively, the garment lower portion 104 comprises a skirt depicted in Fig. 1 in phantom outline.

[0022] With reference to Figs. 1 and 2, each leg of the pair of trousers is constructed with 5 sewn seams. Outer side seams 110, 112 extend continuously from top to bottom of the trousers, or garment lower portion 104. Further, each leg is constructed with inner side seams 114, 116 joining a front center seam 118 of the trousers and a back side, curved center seam 200, Fig. 2, of the trousers. For example, the front center seam 106 defines a sewn “zipper less” fly front. The back side of the trousers, Fig. 2, is sewn with a back side perimeter seam 202 extending 10 horizontally across the back side of the trousers from the outer side seams 110, 112 to the back side center seam 200. If pockets are desired, the legs of the trousers are constructed, for example, with a front pockets 120, 122 and back pockets 204, 206.

[0023] Fig. 2 discloses an embodiment of the trousers, or garment lower portion 104, having a partial waistband 208 joining and extending from the side seams 110, 112 of the 15 trousers and extending across a back side of the trousers or garment lower portion 104. The waistband 208 is sewn onto the perimeter seam 202 on the back side. The waistband 208 tapers toward the side seams 110, 112 and widens across the back side, and has a center seam 210 to shape the waistband 208 with a curvature above a wearer’s pelvis, and for torso coverage especially when sitting or bending.

[0024] In Fig. 1, the garment upper portion 102 has a belly panel 124 to provide an
20 abdomen covering area. The belly panel 124 is expansible, for example, when made of a stretchable fabric, to cover and fit over a growing abdomen during different stages of pregnancy, Fig. 1A. The belly panel 124 has a bottom portion 128 that projects downward with a parabolic shape, especially when covering a growing abdomen, Fig. 1A. The perimeter 108 of the garment
25 lower portion 104 provides a first torso encircling circumference 126 that recedes downward with a parabolic shape adjacent to and below the bottom portion 128 of the belly panel 124 to make way for expansion of the belly panel 124 when covering a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy. The parabolic shape includes a shallow curvature, or, alternatively includes a more pronounced curvature. The belly panel 124 extends at least partially under the 30 abdomen of the garment wearer to meet and join the bottom portion 128 of the belly panel 124 with the parabolic receding circumference 126 of the garment lower portion 104.

[0025] According to an embodiment of the invention, at least the belly panel 124 comprises a stretchable fabric that is woven or knitted with elastic, stretchable strands. The stretchable fabric is expansible by stretching elastically to cover and fit over the growing abdomen, Fig. 1A. Further, the stretchable fabric is contractible elastically to cover a shrinking abdomen during different stages of post partum body changes. The belly panel 124 also has foreseeable alternative functions, for example, to cover an abdomen during different stages of torso weight gains and losses, or to fit over respective torsos of different body types.

[0026] In Figs. 1 and 2, the garment upper portion has a top tubular perimeter hem 130 made by folding over a top edge margin of the stretchable fabric, and either tubular knitting or sewing the folded fabric to the inside surface of the fabric, and to create a top perimeter knitted hem stitch 132 as disclosed in Fig. 1. The perimeter of the garment upper portion 102 has a torso encircling circumference 134 to hold the garment 100 up and in place over the torso.

Advantageously, the entire garment 100 is held up and in place. An embodiment of the garment upper portion 102 comprises stretchable fabric to adjust the girth of the second torso encircling circumference 134 in conformance with different body types. According to an embodiment of the invention, the torso encircling circumference 134 extends along the upper end of the belly panel 124. In Fig. 1A, the belly panel 124 extends at least somewhat above the maximum girth of the abdomen, even during a later stage of pregnancy, such that the belly panel 124 positions the torso encircling circumference 134 at least somewhat above the location of maximum girth to resist slipping down over the abdomen.

[0027] An embodiment of the garment upper portion 102 comprises a tubular structure to encircle a torso of a wearer of the garment 100. The tubular structure comprises a stretchable fabric woven or knitted with elastic, stretchable strands. The belly panel 124 comprises a portion of the stretchable fabric. The tubular structure is adaptable to cover and fit different body types by being elastically expansible and contractible. Different body types have different muscle mass distributions and spinal columns of different curvatures, which make the tubular structure conform to the different body types by expanding and contracting in different locations and amounts when worn by the different body types. The tubular structure is elastically expansible to widen the tubular girth at selected locations and amounts where needed to fit a body type, and is elastically contractible to narrow the tubular girth at selected locations and amounts where needed to fit the body type.

[0028] In Figs. 1 and 2, the tubular structure is shaped and formed as a one-sheet hyperboloid cylinder to fit a body type having a tapered torso that tapers approximately from shoulder to waist. The perimeter profile of the one-sheet hyperboloid cylinder has hyperbolic shaped sides. Alternatively, the tubular structure is shaped and formed as a straight-sided cylinder, for example, as disclosed in Fig. 6. The perimeter profile of the straight sided cylinder has substantially straight sides.

[0029] Preferably, the stretchable fabric is woven or knitted to form a continuous, seamless tubular structure, such that the garment 100 is comfortable to wear due to the absence of seams that would tend to press against the torso.

[0030] Fig. 3 discloses an alternative embodiment in which the garment upper portion 102 is provided with belly cradling support in the form of a series of sewn stitches or knitted tension at 300, 302, 304, 306, 308, 310, 312, and 314 in the belly panel 124. The knitted tension or stitches extend along multiple stitch paths grouped in an elliptical pattern that curves so as to cradle a curved growing abdomen, Fig. 1A, during various stages of pregnancy.

[0031] Fig. 4 discloses an alternative embodiment in which the backside of the garment upper portion 102 is provided with spinal column and back support for a wearer of the garment, in the form of a series of sewn supporting stitches or knitted tension at 400, 402, 404, 406, 408, 410, 412, 414, 416, 418 in the fabric, wherein the supporting knitted tension or stitches stiffen the fabric at the backside of the garment upper portion 102 to provide spinal and back support of the wearer of the garment 100. For example, the series of supporting stitches are arranged along multiple stitch paths grouped in a hyperbolic pattern or other curved pattern along an axis extending substantially vertically along a spinal supporting section of the fabric. Fig. 5 discloses an alternative pattern of supporting stitches 500, 502, 504, 506, 508, 510, 512, 514 in the fabric, wherein the supporting stitches are arranged along multiple stitch paths. For example, the stitch paths are shown as being grouped in a truncated, v-shaped pattern.

[0032] Fig. 6 discloses the garment upper portion 102 comprising a fabric woven or knitted to form a tubular structure, wherein the fabric of the tubular structure is doubled back on itself downward from the top circumference 134 thereof to form a double-layer tubular structure 600 that extends downward at least for a portion of the garment upper portion 102. The layers of the double-layer tubular structure 600 are sewn together with a tubular perimeter drop stitch 602. The layers are further sewn with a top, tubular perimeter hem stitch 132 as described in Fig. 1.

In an alternative embodiment disclosed by Fig. 6, the fabric is doubled back over an inner tubular layer of stretchable fabric 604, shown in phantom outline by and between the stitches 132, 602, that is flatly layered and sewn in between the two tubular layers of the double layer fabric. The three tubular layers are sewn together with the top, tubular perimeter drop stitch 602 and the top, tubular perimeter hem stitch 132 as described in Fig. 1. The inner layer 604 of stretchable fabric provides the belly panel 124 with the capability for resilient expansion. In another embodiment, the double layer fabric comprises a stretch fabric woven or knitted with elastically stretchable and contractible yarns, providing the belly panel with the capability for resilient expansion.

[0033] Fig. 7 discloses that the garment 100 of Fig. 6 is convertible to comprise a bottom garment without a top, the garment upper portion 102 is foldable toward the garment lower portion 104 to provide a folded band 700 on the garment lower portion 104, which is to be worn solely as a garment bottom 104 having the folded band 700, and having no top. Each of the other embodiments of the garment 100 is similarly convertible by adding the stretchable fabric 604 to the upper garment portion 102 of the other embodiment of the garment 100, and folding the garment upper portion 102 toward the garment lower portion 104 to provide a folded band 700 on the garment lower portion 104 of the other embodiment of the garment 100.

[0034] This description of the exemplary embodiments is intended to be read in connection with the accompanying drawings, which are to be considered part of the entire written description. In the description, relative terms such as "lower," "upper," "horizontal," "vertical," "above," "below," "up," "down," "top" and "bottom" as well as derivatives thereof (e.g., "horizontally," "downwardly," "upwardly," etc.) should be construed to refer to the orientation as then described or as shown in the drawing under discussion. These relative terms are for convenience of description and do not require that the apparatus be constructed or operated in a particular orientation. Terms concerning attachments, coupling and the like, such as "connected" and "interconnected," refer to a relationship wherein structures are secured or attached to one another either directly or indirectly through intervening structures, as well as both movable or rigid attachments or relationships, unless expressly described otherwise.

[0035] Although the invention has been described in terms of exemplary embodiments, it is not limited thereto. Rather, the appended claims should be construed broadly, to include other variants and embodiments of the invention, which may be made by those skilled in the art without departing from the scope and range of equivalents of the invention.

PROTECTING YOUR INVENTION OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

Since the rights granted by a U.S. patent extend only throughout the territory of the United States and have no effect in a foreign country, an inventor who wishes patent protection in another country must apply for a patent in a specific country or in regional patent offices. Applicants may wish to consider the filing of an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). An international (PCT) application generally has the same effect as a regular national patent application in each PCT-member country. The PCT process simplifies the filing of patent applications on the same invention in member countries, but does not result in a grant of "an international patent" and does not eliminate the need of applicants to file additional documents and fees in countries where patent protection is desired.

Almost every country has its own patent law, and a person desiring a patent in a particular country must make an application for patent in that country in accordance with its particular laws. Since the laws of many countries differ in various respects from the patent law of the United States, applicants are advised to seek guidance from specific foreign countries to ensure that patent rights are not lost prematurely.

Applicants also are advised that in the case of inventions made in the United States, the Director of the USPTO must issue a license before applicants can apply for a patent in a foreign country. The filing of a U.S. patent application serves as a request for a foreign filing license. The application's filing receipt contains further information and guidance as to the status of applicant's license for foreign filing.

Applicants may wish to consult the USPTO booklet, "General Information Concerning Patents" (specifically, the section entitled "Treaties and Foreign Patents") for more information on timeframes and deadlines for filing foreign patent applications. The guide is available either by contacting the USPTO Contact Center at 800-786-9199, or it can be viewed on the USPTO website at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/pac/doc/general/index.html>.

For information on preventing theft of your intellectual property (patents, trademarks and copyrights), you may wish to consult the U.S. Government website, <http://www.stopfakes.gov>. Part of a Department of Commerce initiative, this website includes self-help "toolkits" giving innovators guidance on how to protect intellectual property in specific countries such as China, Korea and Mexico. For questions regarding patent enforcement issues, applicants may call the U.S. Government hotline at 1-866-999-HALT (1-866-999-4158).

LICENSE FOR FOREIGN FILING UNDER

Title 35, United States Code, Section 184

Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, 5.11 & 5.15

GRANTED

The applicant has been granted a license under 35 U.S.C. 184, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" followed by a date appears on this form. Such licenses are issued in all applications where the conditions for issuance of a license have been met, regardless of whether or not a license may be required as set forth in 37 CFR 5.15. The scope and limitations of this license are set forth in 37 CFR 5.15(a) unless an earlier license has been issued under 37 CFR 5.15(b). The license is subject to revocation upon written notification. The date indicated is the effective date of the license, unless an earlier license of similar scope has been granted under 37 CFR 5.13 or 5.14.

This license is to be retained by the licensee and may be used at any time on or after the effective date thereof unless it is revoked. This license is automatically transferred to any related applications(s) filed under 37 CFR 1.53(d). This license is not retroactive.

The grant of a license does not in any way lessen the responsibility of a licensee for the security of the subject matter as imposed by any Government contract or the provisions of existing laws relating to espionage and the national security or the export of technical data. Licensees should apprise themselves of current regulations especially with respect to certain countries, of other agencies, particularly the Office of Defense Trade Controls, Department of State (with respect to Arms, Munitions and Implements of War (22 CFR 121-128)); the Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce (15 CFR parts 730-774); the Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of Treasury (31 CFR Parts 500+) and the Department of Energy.

NOT GRANTED

No license under 35 U.S.C. 184 has been granted at this time, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" DOES NOT appear on this form. Applicant may still petition for a license under 37 CFR 5.12, if a license is desired before the expiration of 6 months from the filing date of the application. If 6 months has lapsed from the filing date of this application and the licensee has not received any indication of a secrecy order under 35 U.S.C. 181, the licensee may foreign file the application pursuant to 37 CFR 5.15(b).

PROTECTING YOUR INVENTION OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

Since the rights granted by a U.S. patent extend only throughout the territory of the United States and have no effect in a foreign country, an inventor who wishes patent protection in another country must apply for a patent in a specific country or in regional patent offices. Applicants may wish to consider the filing of an international application under the Patent Cooperation Treaty (PCT). An international (PCT) application generally has the same effect as a regular national patent application in each PCT-member country. The PCT process simplifies the filing of patent applications on the same invention in member countries, but does not result in a grant of "an international patent" and does not eliminate the need of applicants to file additional documents and fees in countries where patent protection is desired.

Almost every country has its own patent law, and a person desiring a patent in a particular country must make an application for patent in that country in accordance with its particular laws. Since the laws of many countries differ in various respects from the patent law of the United States, applicants are advised to seek guidance from specific foreign countries to ensure that patent rights are not lost prematurely.

Applicants also are advised that in the case of inventions made in the United States, the Director of the USPTO must issue a license before applicants can apply for a patent in a foreign country. The filing of a U.S. patent application serves as a request for a foreign filing license. The application's filing receipt contains further information and guidance as to the status of applicant's license for foreign filing.

Applicants may wish to consult the USPTO booklet, "General Information Concerning Patents" (specifically, the section entitled "Treaties and Foreign Patents") for more information on timeframes and deadlines for filing foreign patent applications. The guide is available either by contacting the USPTO Contact Center at 800-786-9199, or it can be viewed on the USPTO website at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/pac/doc/general/index.html>.

For information on preventing theft of your intellectual property (patents, trademarks and copyrights), you may wish to consult the U.S. Government website, <http://www.stopfakes.gov>. Part of a Department of Commerce initiative, this website includes self-help "toolkits" giving innovators guidance on how to protect intellectual property in specific countries such as China, Korea and Mexico. For questions regarding patent enforcement issues, applicants may call the U.S. Government hotline at 1-866-999-HALT (1-866-999-4158).

LICENSE FOR FOREIGN FILING UNDER

Title 35, United States Code, Section 184

Title 37, Code of Federal Regulations, 5.11 & 5.15

GRANTED

The applicant has been granted a license under 35 U.S.C. 184, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" followed by a date appears on this form. Such licenses are issued in all applications where the conditions for issuance of a license have been met, regardless of whether or not a license may be required as set forth in 37 CFR 5.15. The scope and limitations of this license are set forth in 37 CFR 5.15(a) unless an earlier license has been issued under 37 CFR 5.15(b). The license is subject to revocation upon written notification. The date indicated is the effective date of the license, unless an earlier license of similar scope has been granted under 37 CFR 5.13 or 5.14.

This license is to be retained by the licensee and may be used at any time on or after the effective date thereof unless it is revoked. This license is automatically transferred to any related application(s) filed under 37 CFR 1.53(d). This license is not retroactive.

The grant of a license does not in any way lessen the responsibility of a licensee for the security of the subject matter as imposed by any Government contract or the provisions of existing laws relating to espionage and the national security or the export of technical data. Licensees should apprise themselves of current regulations especially with respect to certain countries, of other agencies, particularly the Office of Defense Trade Controls, Department of State (with respect to Arms, Munitions and Implements of War (22 CFR 121-128)); the Bureau of Industry and Security, Department of Commerce (15 CFR parts 730-774); the Office of Foreign Assets Control, Department of Treasury (31 CFR Parts 500+) and the Department of Energy.

NOT GRANTED

No license under 35 U.S.C. 184 has been granted at this time, if the phrase "IF REQUIRED, FOREIGN FILING LICENSE GRANTED" DOES NOT appear on this form. Applicant may still petition for a license under 37 CFR 5.12, if a license is desired before the expiration of 6 months from the filing date of the application. If 6 months has lapsed from the filing date of this application and the licensee has not received any indication of a secrecy order under 35 U.S.C. 181, the licensee may foreign file the application pursuant to 37 CFR 5.15(b).

Box No. V Reasoned statement under Rule 43bis.1(a)(i) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

1. Statement

	Claims	1, 2, 4-6, 8	NO

2. Citations and explanations:

Claims 1, 2, 4-6, and 8 lack novelty under PCT Article 33(2) as being anticipated by Stern.

Referring to Claim 1, Stern discloses a garment, comprising: a garment upper portion having a belly panel (Fig. 1, waist portion 11), wherein the belly panel is expansible (Col. 3, Lns. 30-31 regarding the waistband portion is radially expandable) to cover and fit over a growing abdomen (Fig. 2, ref. 19); and a garment lower portion (Fig. 1, body portion 13) having a torso encircling circumference (Fig. 1, unnumbered waistline of body portion 13), wherein the torso encircling circumference recedes downward (Figs. 1 and 2, unnumbered intersection of waist portion 11 and body portion 13) to make way for expansion of the belly panel.

Referring to Claim 2, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 wherein the belly panel (Fig. 1, waist portion 11) is contractible elastically to cover a shrinking abdomen (Figs. 1 and 2, waist portion 11 and pocket 19; Col. 4, lines 28-30 regarding "natural automatic contraction" of 11).

Referring to Claim 4, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 with a garment upper portion (Fig. 1, waist portion 11) having the belly panel which is foldable toward the garment lower portion to comprise a folded band (Fig. 4, top hem stitching 15; Col. 3, Lns. 34-36 regarding a hem is formed along a top edge by folding the top edge and stitching along line 15).

Referring to Claim 5, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 wherein the belly panel (Fig. 1, front panel 11) is woven or knitted with elastic, stretchable strands (Col. 4, lines 45-47 regarding elastically woven or knitted material).

Referring to Claim 6, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 wherein a top edge margin of the garment upper portion is folded over and sewn or knitted to an inside of the fabric (Fig. 4, top hem stitching 15; Col. 3, Lns. 34-36 regarding a hem is formed along a top edge by folding the top edge and stitching along line 15).

Referring to Claim 8, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 wherein the garment upper portion has a further torso encircling circumference (Fig. 1, unnumbered top of waist portion 11) to hold the garment up and in place over the torso.

Claim 3 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Stern in view of Carney.

Referring to Claim 3, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 with an expandable garment upper portion (Fig. 1, waist portion 11; Col. 3, Lns. 30-31 regarding the waistband portion is radially expandable) wherein the garment upper portion is an expansible tubular upper portion (Fig. 3, waistband portion 11 which fits around the waist of the user and is tubular in shape). Stern fails to explicitly disclose wherein the garment upper portion is seamless to fit comfortably while being worn. Carney teaches a garment upper portion which is an expansible (Abstract regarding elastic band) tubular (Fig. 1, garment band 10, Abstract regarding tube top) upper portion that is seamless (Para. [0029] regarding garment may be seamless) to fit comfortably while being worn. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further provide wherein the garment upper portion is an expansible tubular upper portion that is seamless to fit comfortably while being worn as taught by Carney with the system of Stern in order to eliminate seams which may cause discomfort to the user.

Box V

Claim 7 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Stern in view of Oakley.

Referring to Claim 7, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1 wherein the garment upper portion is a tubular structure (Fig. 3, waistband portion 11 which fits around the waist of the user and is tubular in shape). Stern fails to explicitly disclose wherein the garment upper portion is a double layer tubular structure. Oakley teaches a double layer structure (Fig. 1C, lower component 110; where lower component 110 has an inner surface and an outer surface, forming a double layer structure of two different materials; Abstract regarding the lower component has an outer surface and an inner surface; Para. [0013] regarding knit inside fabric stretches more than stretch woven outer fabric to accommodate a growing stomach). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further provide a double layer structure as taught by Oakley with the system of Stern in order to slightly increase the tension on the belly of the user providing additional support.

Claim 9 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Stern in view of Batra.

Referring to Claim 9, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1. Stern fails to explicitly disclose wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband extending from side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across a back side of the garment lower portion. Batra teaches wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband (Fig. 2, yoke area 21) extending from side seams (30, 31; Fig. 1 and col. 2, lines 47-50) of the garment lower portion and extending across a back side of the garment lower portion (Fig. 2). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further provide wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband extending from side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across a back side of the garment lower portion as taught by Batra with the system of Stern in order to provide additional support for the back.

Claim 10 lacks an inventive step under PCT Article 33(3) as being obvious over Stern in view of Geimer.

Referring to Claim 10, Stern discloses the garment of claim 1. Stern fails to explicitly disclose a series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy. Geimer teaches a series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy (Fig. 2, panel 20; Col. 3, Lns. 25-28 regarding shirred elastic material of panel 20 to ensure desired comfort and adequate support). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further provide a series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy as taught by Geimer with the system of Stern in order to provide additional support and comfort.

Claims 1-10 meet the criteria set out in PCT Article 33(4), and thus have industrial applicability because the subject matter claimed can be made or used in industry.

III. Remarks

Claims 1-25 are pending. Claim 1 is the sole independent claim.

Each of Claims 1-25 is independently patentable. A discussion follows that will determine the differences between the claimed invention and the prior art references cited in the International Search Report (ISR) of PCT Application No. PCT/US08/61739. The ISR is furnished by an Information Disclosure Statement filed in the present application on September 18, 2008.

Claim 1 claims an invention that differs patentably from Stern US 4,506,390 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Claim 1 is amended to recite, a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. Antecedent basis is in paragraph [0022], page 3, line 33, to page 4, line 9. This differs from Stern US 4,506,390. Stern US 4,506,390 repeatedly describes and claims a waistband portion 11. (See column 3, lines 25, 31; column 4, lines 7, 10, 11, 18, 28, 45, 63 and Claims 1, 2 and 4) Amended Claim 1 recites more than a waistband portion, since a waistband portion is not reasonably expected to extend above a maximum girth of an abdomen, especially a distended abdomen.

The description in Stern US 4,506,390 of a waistband portion 11 does not encompass the claimed invention including a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. Instead, Stern discloses (column 3, lines 56-59) “The resultant waistband material is expandable horizontally (in the radial direction) when fastened to a garment but not vertically.” [Underline emphasis added] Further, Stern states

(column 2, lines 55-58) “The waistband portion [11] is constructed to be width-wise expandable and contractable, but not vertically expandable.” [Underline emphasis added]

Thus, Fig. 2 of Stern US 4,506,390 discloses a horizontal hem line of a waistband portion [11] with a pouch 19 (column 4, lines 37-44) “below the bulge of the stomach” and “an even horizontal hem level with no hike-up in the front.” Thus, the waistband portion 11 described by Stern with reference to Fig. 2 of Stern teaches away from Applicant’s amended Claim 1 reciting, a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso.

Applicant’s claimed invention includes the structure of a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen, which differs patentably from the waistband portion 11 of Stern US 4,506,390. Further, Applicant’s claimed invention includes a difference in function or operation of a second torso encircling circumference above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. To negate obviousness under 35 USC 103, In re Horton et al., 151 F.2d 210, 67 USPQ 105 (1945) establishes a legal precedent that a structural limitation reciting a difference in function or a difference in operation from prior art is proper, and can be patentable. In other words, patentability of the claimed structural limitation can depend on the difference in function or the difference in operation from prior art.

Exhibit A is respectfully submitted as copied (09/11/2008) from the website, <http://www.motherhood.com>. Exhibit A comprises photographed garments commercially available from the Assignee of the present application. The photographed garments incorporate the features recited in amended Claim 1. The photographed garments are demonstrate on photographed persons, which distinguish from the waistband on the garment of Stern US 4,506,390.

Claim 1 claims an invention that differs patentably from Oakley US 2006/0010571 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Oakley US 2006/0010571 discloses (paragraph [0007]) and claims in Claim 1, a double waistband component 108 having a lower, non-elastic portion 110 and an upper, elastic portion 112. Further, “a five or six-inch elastic portion 112 may rise too high.” (paragraph [0008])

Thus, the five or six-inch elastic portion 112 of Oakley is even shorter compared to Stern US 4,506,390 that teaches (column 3, lines 60-66) “... a central portion at the center is cut on a curve from each of the end portions to form a pouch 19 having a maximum height T of approximately 7 ¼”. Both are too short to encompass the claimed invention that includes, a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso.

Each of Claims 2 and 18 claims an invention that differs patentably from Stern US 4,506,390 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Claim 2 is amended to recite, the second torso encircling circumference is adjustable in girth in conformance with different body types. Antecedent basis is in paragraph [0022], page 4, lines 1-3. The waistband of Stern adjusts for pregnancy stages at the waist, but does not adjust for conformance with different body types above the maximum girth. It is above the maximum girth of the abdomen that different body types are prevalent and require fitting conformance of a garment. Applicant's claimed invention in Claim 2 adjusts for both pregnancy stages and body types above the maximum girth to distinguish patentably from Stern.

Each of Claims 1, 3, 4 and 5 claims an invention that differs patentably from Carney US 2004/0210987 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Carney US 2004/021087 discloses (FIG. 4, paragraph [0032]) a band garment 10, which is a stretchable band 10 that engages over the top of a woman's skirt or pants 14 in the opened condition. The pants (Fig. 5, paragraphs [0034] and [0035]) have an open front and a stretchable expansion panel in the front as shown at 28. The stretchable band 10 is described as covering the open front of the skirt or pants to hold the same against a woman's body. However, the stretchable band 10 of Carney US 2004/021087 does not supply the deficiencies of Stern US 4,506,290 previously discussed.

Carney's stretchable band 10 does not encompass the Applicant's amended Claim 1 reciting, a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. Instead, the stretchable band 10 of Carney is described as covering and holding the open front of the skirt or pants against a person. Further, in Exhibit A the features of Applicant's Claim 1 are worn by persons depicted in the photographs, and distinguish from Figs. 4, 7 and 7C of Carney US 2004/021087, which depict a stretchable band 10 against a skirt or pants worn by a person.

Each of amended Claim 6 and new Claim 12 claims an invention that differs patentably from Batra US 6,311,333 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103

Each of Claims 6 and 12 recites an alternative embodiment of the invention. Antecedent basis for amending claim 6 is in paragraph [0019] "The waistband 208 tapers toward the side seams 110, 112 and widens across the back side, and has a center seam 210 to shape the waist band 10 with a curvature above the wearer's pelvis, and for torso coverage especially when sitting or bending."

Batra teaches (column 2, lines 61-63) "Directly below the rear portion 16 of waistband 12 is the yoke area 21 of the pant seat which is slightly triangular in shape." Thus, Batra teaches a pants seat which is slightly triangular in shape. Thus, in Batra, the yoke area 21 is below the waistband 12 and is part of the pants seat (below a pelvis), which does not encompass a waistband with curvature above the wearer's pelvis.

Stern US 4,506,390 teaches (Claim 1) "a tube-like waistband portion having a front and a back and a vertical extend which is narrower at said back...". Thus, Stern teaches away from the waistband in each of Claims 6 and 12 that widens across the back side.

In Oakley US 2006/0010571, Figs. 1A, 1B, 7A and 7B the waistband 110 appears to be of constant vertical height, which does not widen across the back side, and which does not taper toward side seams of the pants.

In Carney US 2004/021087, Figs. and 5, the waistband of the pants appears to be of constant vertical height, which does not widen across the back side, and which does not taper toward side seams of the pants.

Claim 7 claims an invention that differs patentably from Geimer US 3,045,678 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Claim 7 recites an alternative embodiment of the invention in which belly cradling stitches or knitting extend along multiple paths arranged in an elliptical pattern that curves.

Geimer US 3,045,678 discloses a girdle with garter loops, which is not suitable for being combined with a garment lower portion such as denim jeans. Three panels 19, 20 and 21 of the girdle are Shirred in different directions. The three panels 19, 20 and 21 are stitched together to provide stretchability in a longitudinal sense. "For the purpose of further identifying the longitudinality, the panels 19, 20 and 21 may be said to uniformly embody longitudinal zones 22 of relatively loosely Shirred netting, connected by more compactly Shirred lines or zones 23, the zones 22 and 23 in all cases being considered to extend longitudinally, in so far as the particular panel in question is concerned." (column 2, lines 49-56)

However, this longitudinal sense described by Geimer does not encompass Claim 7 that recites stitches in an elliptical pattern that curves. Further, see Fig. 6 of Stern, Fig 1C of Oakley and Fig. 1 of Carney, none of which depicts an elliptical pattern.

Each of Claims 8, 9, 10 and 13-15 claims an invention that differs patentably from Stern US 4,506,390 and/or Oakley US 2006/0010571 and/or Carney US 2004/021087 and/or Batra US 6,311,333, under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Each of Claim 8, 9, 10 and 13-15 recites a corresponding alternative embodiment of the invention in which a series of stitches or knitted tension in the backside of the garment upper portion provide spinal and back support against the wearer of the garment. None of the references discloses such a structure or the function or operation of such structure, to provide spinal and back support.

Each of Claims 11 and 25 claims an invention that differs patentably from Carney US 2004/0210987 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103

Each of Claims 11 and 25 recite the structure of a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen. Each of the Claims 11 and 25 recites the structure having a dual function or dual operation, to hold the garment up and in place over the torso, and foldable toward the garment lower portion to comprise a folded band on the garment lower portion. In Carney, the elastic band 10 is worn exclusively over the pants or skirt, unfolded or folded in half as a double layer (paragraph [0013]), but which does not encompass the structure having the dual function or dual operation of the claimed invention.

Each of Claims 16, 17, 23 and 24 claims an invention that differs patentably from Carney US 2004/0210987 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103

New claim 16 recites, an edge margin of the garment upper portion is folded over and knitted to an inside of the fabric to provide a perimeter hem stitch. Antecedent basis is in paragraph [0028]. Each of Claims 17, 23 and 24 is similar to claim 16. Claims 16, 17, 23 and 24 are intended to claim a garment upper portion made by knitting and knitting a folded over edge margin having a perimeter hem stitch.

Carney does not expressly disclose such a structure. Carney describes a plainly disclosed and simple structure of a tubular band 10, which can not inherently anticipate the specific structure recited in Claims 16 and 17 that distinguishes from a simple tubular band.

Further, Stern US 4,506,390 describes (column 2, lines 66-68) “The stitching of the elastically shirred waistband portion is also arranged to prevent fold-over or ruffling of the upper edge of the garment.” Accordingly, Stern expressly prevents fold-over.

Additionally, Stern US 4,506,390 teaches (column 3, lines 33-51) “A hem is formed along a top edge thereof by folding the top edge and stitching along line 15 (FIG. 4) so that the material strip is reduce to a size X-x-Y of about 60” x 80”. This material is then elastically shirred (stitched longitudinally) with stretched elastic thread to form the waistband material shown in FIG. 5, having a X-x-Y dimension of approximately 28” x 8”. ... The smaller spacing between the first four rows of stitching prevents ruffling or “fold over” of the upper edge of the garment during use.” There is no teaching, suggestion or motivation in the prior art to modify the waistband of Stern that prevents fold-over, so as to make it foldable.

Each of Claims 19 and 20 claims an invention that differs patentably from Carney US 2004/0210987 under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Each of Claims 19 and 20 recite a garment upper portion that extends above a maximum girth, and as a tubular structure with a corresponding shape to fit a certain body type. The tubular band 10 of Carney fits over a skirt or pants that is too small to close, but does not include a garment upper portion that extends above a maximum girth and with a corresponding shape to fit a certain body type.

Claim 21 claims an invention that differs patentably from Stern US 4,506,390 and/or Oakley US 2006/0010571 and/or Carney US 2004/021087 and/or Batra US 6,311,333, under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103.

Claim 21 recites a double-layer tubular structure and an inner layer between two layers of the double-layer tubular structure. Antecedent basis is in paragraph [0028]. Each of the references discloses a single layer structure.

Each of Claims 22, 23 and 24 claims an invention that differs patentably from Stern US 4,506,390 and/or Oakley US 2006/0010571 and/or Carney US 2004/021087 and/or Batra US 6,311,333, under 35 USC 102 and 35 USC 103

The claimed invention in each of Claims 22, 23 and 24 intends to cover an upper garment portion that is doubled back on itself to form a double-layer tubular structure with a corresponding hem. Each of the references disclose a hem on a single layer of fabric.

In view of the Preliminary Amendment of the Claims and the Remarks in support of patentability, allowance is requested. The Examiner is invited to telephone the undersigned for any reason to advance the prosecution of the application.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 11,16-20 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Stern (US 4,506,390).

Stern discloses a garment comprising an upper portion having a belly panel (as seen in figure 1, ref. 11) wherein the belly panel is expandable (see col. 3,lines 30-31) wherein the waistband portion 1 is radially expandable to cover and fit over the growing abdomen (See figure 2, 19) and a garment lower portion 13 in figure 1 having a torso encircling circumference as seen in figure 1- the unnumbered waistline of body portion 13 wherein the torso encircling circumference recedes downwardly as seen in figures 1 and 2, unnumbered intersection of waist portion 11 and body portion 13, to make way for the expansion of the belly panel. Stern discloses the garment wherein the belly panel, figure 1, waist portion 11 is contractible elastically to cover a shrinking abdomen(See figures 1 and 2, waist portion 11 and pocket 19, col. 4,lines 28-30 in regard to the automatic contraction of 11. Stern also discloses the garment with a garment upper portion as seen in figure 1 waist portion 11 having the belly panel which is foldable toward the garment lower portion to comprise a folded band.(See figure 4, top hem stitching 15; col. 3,lines 34-36 in regard to the hem being formed along a top edge by folding the top edge and stitching along line 15. Stern further discloses the garment with the belly panel of figure 1, 11 as being woven or knitted with elastic, stretchable strands(See col. 4,lines 45-47) in regard to the elastically woven or knitted material. Stern discloses the garment with the garment upper portion having a further torso encircling circumference as seen in figure 1, unnumbered waist portion 11 to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. Stern also discloses the garment wherein atop edge margin of the garment upper portion is folded over and sewn or knitted to an inside of the fabric, figure 4, top hem stitching, 15 in col. 3,lines 34-36 wherein the hem is formed along a top edge by folding over the top edge and stitching it.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Carney (US 2004/0210987 A1)

Stern discloses the garment as claimed in claim 1 in addition to an expandable upper portion as seen in figure 1, waist portion 11;col. 3,lines 30-31 regarding the waistband portion as being radially expandable wherein the garment upper portion is an expandable tubular upper portion as seen in figure 3, 11 which is around the waist of the user and is tubular. Stern does not disclose the upper portion as being seamless to fit comfortably while worn. Carney teaches a garment upper portion which is an expandable (See Abstract-elastic band) tubular (figure 1, garment band 10, Abstract in regard to tube top) upper portion that is seamless (para.29) in regard to the garment may be seamless to fit comfortably while being worn. Accordingly, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the expandable waist portion to construct it in an expandable tubular and seamless design to fit comfortably while worn as taught by Carney with the system of Stern in order to eliminate seams which may dig in a cause discomfort to the user.

Claims 21-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Oakley (US 2006/0010571).

Stern discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for the double layer tubular structure. Oakley teaches a double layer structure (Fig.1C, lower component 110, where lower component 110 has an inner surface and an outer surface, forming a double layer structure of two different materials. See the Abstract in regard to the lower component as having an outer surface and an inner surface. Para.0013 in regard to the knit inside fabric stretches more than the stretch woven outer fabric to accommodate a growing stomach. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the garment of Stern with the teaching of Oakley to provide the double layer structure as taught by Oakley in order to slightly increase the tension on the body of the user providing additional support thereto.

Art Unit: 3765

.Claims 6 and 12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Batra (US 6311333)

Stern discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for the garment lower portion has having a partial waistband(fig. 2,yoke 21) extending from the side seams(30,31;fig.1 and col. 2,lines 47-50) of the garment lower portion and extending across the back side of the garment lower portion.(figure 2). Batra teaches wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband extending from side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across a back side of the garment lower portion. . Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to further provide wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband extending from the side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across a back side of the garment lower portion as taught by Batra with the system of Stern in order to provide additional support for the back.

Claims 7-10,13,14 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Geimer (US 3045678).

Stern discloses the garment substantially as claimed except for the series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel or in the back panel for further support to the wearer during various stages of pregnancy to provide more or less support to the wearer during different stages. Geimer teaches a series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy(See figure 2, panel 20;col.

Art Unit: 3765

1,lines 25-28 regarding shirred elastic material of panel 20 to ensure the desired comfort and adequate support. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the panel to include the belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen and to include such support stitches in the back panel along the spine to add more support to the wearer as taught by Geimer within the garment of Stern in order to provide additional support and comfort to the wearer.

REMARKS

Claims 1-25 were pending in this application prior to the Office Action. By this amendment, claim 10 has been canceled to correct an inadvertent duplication of claim 9. Thus, claims 1-9 and 11-25 are now pending. In view of the following remarks, Applicants respectfully request reconsideration and allowance of the present application.

A. Claim Rejections Under 35 U.S.C. § 102

Claims 1, 2, 5, 11, 16-20 and 25 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by U.S. Pat. No. 4,506,390 to Stern (“Stern”). In view of the comments below, Applicants respectfully request reconsideration and withdrawal of this rejection because Stern fails to teach, disclose, or suggest each and every feature recited in the claims.

Independent claim 1 of the present invention requires, “the garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso” (underline emphasis added). Applicants respectfully draw the Examiner’s attention to Exhibit A of the Preliminary Amendment submitted on November 3, 2008, which was copied from the website, <http://www.motherhood.com> on September 11, 2008. Exhibit A shows photographed garments commercially available from the Assignee of the present application. The photographed garments incorporate the features recited in claim 1, including positioning of the second torso encircling circumference extending above a location of maximum girth, and demonstrate an exemplary garment of claim 1 on photographed persons.

Unlike the present application, Stern relates to a maternity garment with an expandable waistband portion arranged to prevent fold-over or ruffling of the upper edge of the garment. See Stern, col. 2, lines 66-68. The waistband portion is constructed to form a pouch which “cups and supports the lower part of a woman’s stomach,” and is “width-wise expandable and contractable, but not vertically expandable” (underline emphasis added). See Stern, col. 2, lines 50-57. Further, “[t]he cup-like action of the pouch permits the body of the garment to always hang [...] below the bulge of the stomach, close to the legs” and “[maintain] an even horizontal hem level with no hike-up in the front” (underline emphasis added). See Stern, col. 4, lines 37-44.

Thus, the waistband of Stern that covers only a lower portion of the stomach cannot physically be expanded to extend further vertically, for example, onto an upper portion of a distended abdomen above a location of maximum girth. In fact, the disclosure of Stern teaches away from a circumference positioned above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen, as required by claim 1 of the Applicants’ invention.

For at least the above reasons, Stern fails to disclose each and every feature recited in independent claim 1, as is required for a proper rejection under 35 U.S.C. § 102. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully request reconsideration and withdrawal of the rejection of claim 1. Dependent claims 2, 5, 11, 16-20 and 25 are also believed to be patentable at least for the reasons discussed above with respect to claim 1 by virtue of their dependency thereon, and also on their own merits.

Furthermore, with respect to dependent claim 25, the present invention requires a “garment upper portion [that] is foldable toward the garment lower portion to provide a folded band on the garment lower portion to be worn as a garment bottom having no top.” See Application Publication, FIG. 7. Stern neither discloses a garment lower portion that can be worn as a garment bottom having no top, nor foldable upper portion. In fact, Stern teaches away from this limitation, providing that “[t]he stitching of the elastically shirred waistband portion is arranged to prevent fold-over or ruffling of the upper edge of the garment” (underline emphasis added). See Stern, col. 2, lines 66-68. As a result, Stern neither anticipates nor renders obvious the subject matter of claim 25.

B. Claim Rejections Under 35 U.S.C. § 103

Claims 3 and 4 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Stern in view of US 2004/0210987 to Carney (“Carney”). Carney fails to overcome the above-stated deficiencies of Stern. Furthermore, Carney discloses a band garment, which is a stretchable band that engages over the top of a woman’s skirt or pants in the opened position, and is not attached to the skirt or pants. See Carney, paragraph [0032], and Carney, FIG. 4. This “stretchable band” of Carney has an entirely different purpose and principle of operation than that of the claimed invention, which has a second torso encircling element attached to the garment lower portion and used to hold a garment lower portion up and in place over the torso.

Claims 21-24 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Stern in view of US 2006/0010571 to Oakley (“Oakley”). Oakley also fails to overcome the above-stated deficiencies of Stern. For example, Oakley discloses and claims a double waistband component having a lower, non-elastic portion and an upper elastic portion. See Oakley, paragraph [0007]. Further, Oakley provides that “a five or six-inch portion 112 may rise too high.” See Oakley, paragraph [0008]. This portion is too short to encompass the claimed invention, whose second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel rises above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen. In fact, Oakley teaches away from this feature of the claimed invention.

With respect to claim 21, the claimed invention requires that “the garment upper portion comprises a double layer tubular structure, and an inner layer of stretchable fabric between two layers of the double-layer tubular structure” (underline emphasis added). On the other hand, the double-layer structure of Oakley comprises only an inner surface and an outer surface, with no layer in between. See Oakley, FIG. 1C.

Claims 6 and 12 stand rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Stern in view of US 6,311,333 to Batra (“Batra”). Claims 6 and 12 recite an alternative embodiment of the invention wherein, with respect to claim 6, the waistband tapers toward the side seams and widens across the back side, and has a center seam to shape the waist band with a curvature above the wearer’s pelvis, and for torso coverage especially when sitting or bending. See Application Publication, paragraph [0019]. On the other hand, Batra teaches that “[d]irectly below the rear portion 16 of waistband 12 is the yoke area 21 of the pant seat which is slight triangular in shape.” See Batra, col. 12, lines 61-63. Thus, Batra discloses that the yoke area is below the waistband and is part of the pants seat (below the pelvis), which does not encompass a waistband with curvature above the wearer’s pelvis, as required by claims 6 and 12. See, for example, Batra, FIG. 3.

Claims 7-10 and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) over Stern in view of US 3,045,678 to Geimer (“Geimer”). Geimer also fails to overcome the above-stated deficiencies of Stern. Claim 7 of the present application recites an alternative embodiment of the invention in which belly cradling stitches or knitting extends along multiple paths arranged in an elliptical pattern that curves. Geimer, on the other hand, discloses a girdle with garter loops, which is not suitable for being combined with a garment lower portion such as denim jeans. Three panels are stitched together to provide stretchability in a longitudinal sense. See Geimer, col. 2, lines 49-56. However, this longitudinal sense described by Geimer does not encompass stitches in an elliptical pattern that curves.

Each of claims 8-10 and 13-15 recite a series of stitches and/or knitted tension in the backside of the garment upper portion. Claims 8 and 13-15 specify that the purpose of this feature is to provide spinal and back support for the wearer of the garment. Geimer provides little, if any, stitching features along the backside of the garment. See, for example, Geimer, FIG. 3, reference numeral 10. Instead, the stitching features of Geimer are concentrated about the lower front abdomen in order to provide support for the abdomen. See Geimer, col. 1, lines 12-15 and 40-43.

Furthermore, each of the dependent claims rejected rely upon independent claim 1, which recites a specific combination of features that distinguishes the invention from Stern. As discussed above, these claims are patentable over Stern, because Stern fails to teach, nor does it suggest, a garment comprising a garment upper portion having a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso, as recited in claim 1. Therefore, Stern does not teach or suggest each and every element, limitation, and/or feature of independent claim 1 and, therefore, the dependencies thereon.

Applicants’ claimed invention also includes a difference in function and principle operation than Stern. Claim 1 recites “a second torso encircling circumference along the upper end of the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen to hold the garment up and in place over the torso” (underline emphasis added). Stern recites no such function or operation.

See, for example, Stern, col. 2, lines 25-44. To negate obviousness under 35 U.S.C. § 103, In re Horton establishes a legal precedent that a structural limitation reciting a difference in function or a difference in operation from prior art is proper, and can be patentable. 151 F.2d 210, 67 USPQ 105 (1945). In other words, patentability of the claimed structural limitation can depend on the difference in function or the difference in operation from prior art.

Thus, for at least the above reasons, Stern and the above-mentioned references, taken alone or in combination, fail to disclose, suggest, or render obvious the invention recited in claims 3, 4, 6-10, 12-15, and 21-24, as is required for a proper rejection under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a). The rejection of claim 10 has been rendered moot by virtue of its cancelled herein. Accordingly, Applicants respectfully request reconsideration and withdrawal of this rejection.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,11,16-20 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern (US 4,506,390)

Stern discloses a garment comprising an upper portion having a belly panel(as seen in figure 1, ref 11) wherein the belly panel is expandable (See col. 3,lines 30-31) wherein the waistband portion is radially expandable to cover and fit over the growing abdomen (See figure 2, 19) and a garment lower portion 13 in figure 1 having a torso encircling circumference as seen in figure 1- the unnumbered waistline of body portion 13 wherein the torso encircling circumference recedes downwardly as seen in figure 1 and 2, non- numbered intersection of waist portion 11 and body portion 13, to make way for the expansion of the belly panel. Stern discloses the garment wherein the belly panel, figure 1, waist portion 11 is contractible elastically to cover a shrinking abdomen(See figures 1 and 2, waist portion 11 and pocket 19, col. 4, lines 28-30 in regard to the automatic contraction of 11. Stern also discloses the garment with a garment upper portion as seen in figure 1 waist portion 11 having the belly panel which is foldable toward the garment lower portion to comprise a folded band. (See figure 4, top hem stitching 15; col. 3, lines 34-36 in regard to the hem being formed along a top edge by folding the top edge and stitching along line 15. Stern further discloses the garment with the belly panel of figure 1, 11 as being woven or knitted with elastic, stretchable strands (See col 4, lines 45-47) in regard to the elastically woven or knitted material. The limitation that the upper edge of the waistband lies "above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen" is intended use and also subjective because this location is different on all wearers and the structure cannot be defined by this subjective functional limitation that is indefinite. Applicant needs to better define this location and state that the belly panel covers the "Entire" growing abdomen. Stern discloses the garment with the garment upper portion having a further torso encircling circumference as seen in figure 1, unnumbered waist portion 11 to hold the garment up and in place over the torso. Stern also discloses the garment wherein a top edge margin of the garment upper portion is folded over and sewn or knitted to an inside of the fabric, figure 4, top hem stitching, 15 in col. 3, lines 34-36 wherein the hem is formed along a top edge by folding over the top edge and stitching it.

Claims 3 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Carney (US 2004/0210987 A1).

Stern discloses the garment as claimed in claim 1 in addition to an expandable upper portion as seen in figure 1, waist portion 11; col. 3, lines 30-31 regarding the waistband portion as being radially expandable wherein the garment upper portion is expandable tubular upper portion as seen in figure 3, 11 which his around the waist of the user and is tubular. Stern doe snot disclose the upper portion as being seamless to fit comfortably while worn. Carney teaches a garment that is placed at a garment upper portion which is expandable and tubular and seamless (See Abstract- elastic band, figure 1 garment band 10 and the Abstract in regard to tube top) upper portion that is seamless(para. 29) in regard to the garment maybe seamless to fit comfortably while being worn. Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the expandable waist portion to construct it in an expandable tubular and seamless design to fit comfortably while worn as taught by Carney with the system of Stern in order to eliminate seams which may dig in and cause discomfort to the user.

Claims 21-24 are rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Oakley (US 2006/0010571).

Stern discloses the invention substantially as claimed except fdoor the double layer tubular structure. Oakley teaches a double layer structure (Fig. 1C, lower component 110,where lower component 110 has an inner surface and an outer surface, forking a double layer structure of two different materials. See the Abstract in regard to the lower component as having an outer surface and an inner surface. See Para 13, in regard to the knit inside fabric as stretching more than the stretch woven outer fabric to accommodate a growing stomach. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the garment of Stern with the teaching of Oakley to provide the double layer structure as taught by Oakley in order to slightly increase the tension on the body of the user providing additional support thereto in addition to including within the two layers an elastic band to provide a better securement of the waistband onto the wearer. Such elastic bands within the two layers formed by one layer folded over to form two layers about the elastic is well known in the art of garment manufacturing and waistbands. Such garment waistband structures are well known in the art and not new.

Claims 6 and 12 are rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Batra (US 8311333).

Stern discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for the garment lower portion as having a partial waistband (Figure 2, yoke 21) extending from the side seams (30,31; fig. 1 and col. 2, lines 47-50) of the garment lower portion and extending across the back side of the garment lower portion (figure 2). Batra teaches wherein the garment lower portion has a partial waistband extending from side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across the back side of the garment lower portion above the pelvis. The waistband and the triangular portion are one piece and unitary and structured as seen in applicant's figures. Accordingly it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the garment lower portion to include the partial waistband extending from the side seams of the garment lower portion and extending across the back side of the garment lower portion as taught by Batra with the system of Stern in order to provide additional support for the back.

Claims 7-9, 13,14 and 15 are rejected under 35 USC 103(a) as being unpatentable over Stern in view of Geimer (US 3045678)

Stern discloses the garment substantially as claimed except for the series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel or in the back panel for further support to the wearer during various stages of pregnancy to provide more or less support to the wearer during various stages of pregnancy to provide more or less support to the wearer during different stages of Pregnancy. Geimer teaches a series of belly cradling stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen during various stages of pregnancy. (See figure 2, panel 20; col. 1, lines 25-28 regarding shirred elastic material of panel 20 to ensure the desired comfort and adequate support. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the panel to include the belly cradling having stitches or knitted tension in the belly panel to cradle a growing abdomen and to include such support stitches in the back panel along the spine or any other areas where support is needed since this method of adding such stitching is well known in the art to provide support areas to garments to add more support to the wearer as taught by Geimer within the garment of Stern in order to provide additional support and comfort to the wearer.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-9 and 11-25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In regard to claim 1, line 7 in regard to “ the belly panel above a location of maximum girth of the abdomen” is indefinite since this location would be different on each wearer and is a subjective limitation. The location needs to be defined in regard to the garment itself and not the wearer or the location needs to be defined in regard to the wearer according to a body location that would not be different on each wearer so that the location is clear and definite. Especially since this location is what defines and differentiates applicant’s invention from the prior art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 3-9-10 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant’s invention needs to be better defined in claim 1 as stated above. The Stern structure includes the limitations of claim 1 and ‘depends on the size of the wearer. The area above the location of maximum girth is different on each wearer and is intended use. Applicant has not clearly defined the invention in structural terms as sated above in regard to the rejection under 35 USC 112, para 2. Applicant is also only claiming a general garment and not their invention of a pant or skirt waistband portion. Claim 1 is too broad and the claim does not define that the belly panel is to fit over an entire pregnant abdomen of a wearer expanding vertically and circumferentially with the upper edge about the circumference of the wearer just between the breast area whereby the entire pregnant belly is covered. Applicant has argued that stern only cups the lower belly but applicant's claim did not define that the entire belly is covered as they are intending to argue in their remarks.

IN response to the remarks on page 6 of the response applicant is arguing in regard to the "maximum girth" as sated above but the structure has not been clearly claimed as sated above. IN regard to the statement on page 7 of the remarks that Stern prevents fold over and ruffling of the upper edge when a wearer is wearing the belly panel upright and not folded over this non-fold over is the unintentional rollover when the garment is worn with out being folded over. However, if the garment is intentionally worn with the upper perimeter folded over by the wearer, the structure will fold over and can be worn as such intentionally. The statements in Stern are in regard for unintentional foldover when a wearer does not intend to wear it folded over.

IN regard to the rejection of Carney, Carney is only relied upon for the seamless tubular structure and not that it is not attached to the garment. Carney is used in the same fashion as an attached waistband and that function is not being relied upon. Carney is only relied upon for the seamless tubular structure and the modification of Stern to construct it in a seamless tubular fashion. The references are analogous art because they are worn at the waist and at the top of a pant garment.

Applicant is arguing parts of Carney that were not relied upon in the rejection.

Oakley is relied upon for the double layer construction. Such double layers constructions with elastic in between the layers are well known in elastic waistbands on pants and skirts and are obvious.

Batra includes the yoke area 21 that is integrally formed with the rear waistband and is part of waistband 116 and triangularly shaped and extending from the waistband. The Batra figures show the element above the pelvis.

Geimer is relied upon for the use of elastic support yarns in the configuration as claimed in the front of a garment and wherein such yarns can be utilized in any garment areas desired to provide the same support such as the back, side of garments etc. The provision of such elastic yarns in garments to provide support is well known such as in swimsuits and even in brassiere cups. Anyone of ordinary skill in the art would have the skill and knowledge to include such yarns in any areas of the garment where they want to provide support such as the back. This is well known to be done with the knitted stitches themselves and elastic yarns.

Art Unit: 3765

Stern does teach the broadly claimed elements of claim 1 and applicant has not differentiated the structure of the invention especially in claim 1 in regard to the intended use location of the belly panel. The maximum girth area needs to be better defined as stated above.

Therefore, the rejection stands.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

5. The petition must be filed with the application.

The application as filed is not eligible for the accelerated examination under 37 C.F.R. § 1.102(d) because the petition was not filed with the application. As noted in the policy statement referenced above, any petition to make special filed on or after the effective date must meet the new requirements set forth in the 71 Fed. Reg. 36323 notice. Applications filed before the effective date will not be eligible for the revised accelerated examination program. The effective date of the change in practice was August 25, 2006. Thus the instant petition must be reviewed under the revised practice and the instant application is ineligible.

The petition appears on its face to have been filed without recognition of the August 25, 2006 policy change to the petition to make special program. The changes to the program are substantial. The Notice of Federal Register on June 26, 2006 (71 Fed. Reg. 36323) can be accessed on the internet at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/offices/com/sol/notices/71fr36323.pdf>

Further guidance may be found website of the USPTO at <http://www.uspto.gov/web/patents/accelerated> under the accelerated examination link.

For the above-stated reasons, the petition is DENIED. The application will therefore be taken up by the examiner for action in its regular turn.

Any inquiry regarding this decision should be directed to Linda Sholl, TC 3700 Special Program Examiner, at (571) 272-4391.

/Gloria Hale/
Primary Examiner, Art Unit 3765

Summary of Record of Interview Requirements

Manual of Patent Examining Procedure (MPEP), Section 713.04, Substance of Interview Must be Made of Record

A complete written statement as to the substance of any face-to-face, video conference, or telephone interview with regard to an application must be made of record in the application whether or not an agreement with the examiner was reached at the interview.

Title 37 Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) § 1.133 Interviews Paragraph (b)

In every instance where reconsideration is requested in view of an interview with an examiner, a complete written statement of the reasons presented at the interview as warranting favorable action must be filed by the applicant. An interview does not remove the necessity for reply to Office action as specified in §§ 1.111, 1.135. (35 U.S.C. 132)

37 CFR §1.2 Business to be transacted in writing.

All business with the Patent or Trademark Office should be transacted in writing. The personal attendance of applicants or their attorneys or agents at the Patent and Trademark Office is unnecessary. The action of the Patent and Trademark Office will be based exclusively on the written record in the Office. No attention will be paid to any alleged oral promise, stipulation, or understanding in relation to which there is disagreement or doubt.

The action of the Patent and Trademark Office cannot be based exclusively on the written record in the Office if that record is itself incomplete through the failure to record the substance of interviews.

It is the responsibility of the applicant or the attorney or agent to make the substance of an interview of record in the application file, unless the examiner indicates he or she will do so. It is the examiner's responsibility to see that such a record is made and to correct material inaccuracies which bear directly on the question of patentability.

Examiners must complete an Interview Summary Form for each interview held where a matter of substance has been discussed during the interview by checking the appropriate boxes and filling in the blanks. Discussions regarding only procedural matters, directed solely to restriction requirements for which interview recordation is otherwise provided for in Section 812.01 of the Manual of Patent Examining Procedure, or pointing out typographical errors or unreadable script in Office actions or the like, are excluded from the interview recordation procedures below. Where the substance of an interview is completely recorded in an Examiners Amendment, no separate Interview Summary Record is required.

The Interview Summary Form shall be given an appropriate Paper No., placed in the right hand portion of the file, and listed on the "Contents" section of the file wrapper. In a personal interview, a duplicate of the Form is given to the applicant (or attorney or agent) at the conclusion of the interview. In the case of a telephone or video-conference interview, the copy is mailed to the applicant's correspondence address either with or prior to the next official communication. If additional correspondence from the examiner is not likely before an allowance or if other circumstances dictate, the Form should be mailed promptly after the interview rather than with the next official communication.

The Form provides for recordation of the following information:

- Application Number (Series Code and Serial Number)
- Name of applicant
- Name of examiner
- Date of interview
- Type of interview (telephonic, video-conference, or personal)
- Name of participant(s) (applicant, attorney or agent, examiner, other PTO personnel, etc.)
- An indication whether or not an exhibit was shown or a demonstration conducted
- An identification of the specific prior art discussed
- An indication whether an agreement was reached and if so, a description of the general nature of the agreement (may be by attachment of a copy of amendments or claims agreed as being allowable). Note: Agreement as to allowability is tentative and does not restrict further action by the examiner to the contrary.
- The signature of the examiner who conducted the interview (if Form is not an attachment to a signed Office action)

It is desirable that the examiner orally remind the applicant of his or her obligation to record the substance of the interview of each case. It should be noted, however, that the Interview Summary Form will not normally be considered a complete and proper recordation of the interview unless it includes, or is supplemented by the applicant or the examiner to include, all of the applicable items required below concerning the substance of the interview.

A complete and proper recordation of the substance of any interview should include at least the following applicable items:

- 1) A brief description of the nature of any exhibit shown or any demonstration conducted,
- 2) an identification of the claims discussed,
- 3) an identification of the specific prior art discussed,
- 4) an identification of the principal proposed amendments of a substantive nature discussed, unless these are already described on the Interview Summary Form completed by the Examiner,
- 5) a brief identification of the general thrust of the principal arguments presented to the examiner,
(The identification of arguments need not be lengthy or elaborate. A verbatim or highly detailed description of the arguments is not required. The identification of the arguments is sufficient if the general nature or thrust of the principal arguments made to the examiner can be understood in the context of the application file. Of course, the applicant may desire to emphasize and fully describe those arguments which he or she feels were or might be persuasive to the examiner.)
- 6) a general indication of any other pertinent matters discussed, and
- 7) if appropriate, the general results or outcome of the interview unless already described in the Interview Summary Form completed by the examiner.

Examiners are expected to carefully review the applicant's record of the substance of an interview. If the record is not complete and accurate, the examiner will give the applicant an extendable one month time period to correct the record.

Examiner to Check for Accuracy

If the claims are allowable for other reasons of record, the examiner should send a letter setting forth the examiner's version of the statement attributed to him or her. If the record is complete and accurate, the examiner should place the indication, "Interview Record OK" on the paper recording the substance of the interview along with the date and the examiner's initials.
