Well, what do you contend is missing from the Board's construction? MR. LAHAV: Objection; form. Go ahead. I lodged my objection. Go ahead. THE WITNESS: You're done? MR. LAHAV: Yes. THE WITNESS: I would prefer to look at the patent to show to be able to accurately and precisely tell you the the other attribute of the of the gap. BY MR. MAIER: Q. Well, sir, you understand that your opinions have to be in your declaration; right? MR. LAHAV: Objection; form. THE WITNESS: I I said that the structure is and the construction is separated by a gap there between, yes. And you talked about a gap. You just you said a gap had a distance and a volume.	2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23	" because the gap and the volume resulting therefrom between the anode and cathode."  Do you see where I am reading from?  A. So let me I I can read it here from here. I would prefer to quote it directly, but since this is a quote:  "So as to form a gap between the cathode or the anode that is sufficient to allow current to flow through a region between the anode and the cathode."  So that's an additional attribute, that gap has to be sufficient to allow current to flow Q. Well, you didn't A through a region 245 between the anode 238 and the cathode 216.  Q. You didn't put that in your construction, did you?  MR. LAHAV: Objection; form.  BY MR. MAIER:  Q. Look at your construction.  A. It is not it is not in the construction.  Q. So what you've added to the Board's
