Acknowledgements

First of all, I wish to express my gratitude to my supervisor, Prof. Dr. Roland Bodmeier, for his kind supervision, his helpful advice and professional guidance, for providing this interesting research topic and his scientific support. It was a great experience and pleasure to study, to work and to do research in his international group.

I deeply thank Prof. Dr. Philippe Maincent (Faculté de Pharmacie, Université Poincaré, Nancy, France) for useful discussions and for his evaluation of my thesis. I am also very grateful to Dr. Christiane Damgé (Centre Européen d'Etude du Diabète, Université Louis Pasteur, Strasbourg, France). The opportunity to work in her research group was extremely valuable for me and my studies.

I would like to thank all the helpful people at the Free University Berlin for giving me the opportunity to use advanced methods of instrumental analytics and their kind help in data interpretation: Priv.-Doz. Dr. Gerd Buntkowsky and Thomas Emmler (Institute of Chemistry) for performing the ^{13}C-CP/MAS NMR measurements, Prof. Ronald Gust and Ingo Ott (Institute for Pharmacy) for atom absorption spectroscopy studies, Bernhard Behrens (Institute for Chemistry) for atom emission spectroscopic measurements, Priv.-Doz. Dr. Wolf-Dietrich Hunnius (Institute for Chemistry) for performing FT-Raman investigations, Dr. Volker Bähr and Petra Exner (University Hospital B. Franklin) for the support with radioimmunoassays, and Dr. Christine Prusas (Institute for Poultry diseases) for providing chicken erythrocytes.

Furthermore, I am grateful to Prof. Dr. Ronald Gust, Prof. Dr. Hans Hubert Borchert, Priv.-Doz. Dr. Ralph Lipp, Dr. Wolfgang Mehnert and Boris Petri for serving as members of my thesis advisor committee.

I sincerely wish to thank Dirk Sticha, Heike Friedrich, Oliver Bley, Katrin Johannsen, Mesut Ciper, and all my friends and colleagues in the Kelchstraße for their support, proof-readings, constructive discussions in early Monday seminars and the stimulating and enjoyable atmosphere in the group. I am grateful to Dr. Jürgen Siepmann for his readiness to discuss my work and his valuable suggestions. Special thanks go also to Andreas Krause and Eva Ewest for their support and to Angelika Schwarz for her help in the jungle of university bureaucracy.

Finally, I want to thank Matthias and my family for their love and support through the years and their never-ending encouragement and confidence in me.
