Websense, Inc. Revenue and Financial Data

Forcepoint erects a force field to protect its customers from cyberattacks, external and internal. The company offers a range of on-premise, cloud-based, and hybrid products that analyze systems, scanning for attacks; detect malware and other threats; and act to block and shutdown attacks Its core product is the enterprise-class TRITON product set. The company is the combination of two established companies with strong online security credentials. Raytheon's Cyber Products unit, which has been in the defense security field, acquired corporate cyber security firm Websense for about $1.5 billion in 2015. The company has added security products bought from Intel. Vista Equity Partners, Websense's previous owner, retains a stake in the new concern.
