DETAILED ACTION

Applicants' arguments, filed 5/25/05, have been fully considered but they are not deemed to be persuasive. Rejections and/or objections not reiterated from previous office actions are hereby withdrawn. The following rejections and/or objections are either reiterated or newly applied. They constitute the complete set presently being applied to the instant application.

Art Unit: 1631

NEW MATTER

Claims 3147, 3175, 3198-3201, 3204-3209, 3211-3221, 3248, 3302-3309, 3326, 3327, and 3362-3379 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

The NEW MATTER rejection based on NEW MATTER being amended into instant claim 3147 etc. directed to "beads" is maintained and reiterated from the previous office action, mailed 11/26/04, due to these limitations still being present in certain claims and not supported by written disclosure as filed. Applicants have newly added the limitation "a bead" (e.g., claim 3147, line 4) which also is NEW MATTER due to not being found as filed regarding written description. This "a bead" rejection basis is necessitated by amendment. The NEW MATTER directed to "a bead" or "beads" was not addressed as to written description specifically as filed by applicants in their response, filed 5/25/05. In an appendix applicants point to pages 13-14; page 14, lines 19-20; page 16, lines 10-11; Examples 1-3 and 5-7; and claims 17 and 21 as originally filed; of the specification for written support for claim 3147, for example, but neither a bead or beads is found therein. These NEW MATTER limitations are present in claims 3147, 3175, 3201, and 3248.

The NEW MATTER rejection directed to a lack of written description as filed for a generic "array" comprising "various" nucleic acids is maintained and reiterated from the previous office action, mailed 11/26/04. In contrast, the arrays with depressions or wells for depositing of various denatured analytes has written basis in Example 1 as filed. Thus, the "various" nucleic acids limitation is connected as filed to depressions or wells for depositing of various analytes. Applicants argue that plural sequences in the specification supports generic arrays with various nucleic acids thereon. This has been responded to previously and the response is repeated that plural sequences may either be the same or different and that the phrase "plural sequences" lacks written support for different or various as a particular type of plural sequences. Applicants again also note a Declaration of Dr. Alexander A. Waldrop, III, which has been responded to previously as being non-persuasive. Applicants further argue that the novelty of the invention resides in fixing nucleic acids in hybridizable form to the surface of a substrate regardless of its shape. In response, this NEW MATTER rejection basis is not directed to claims which cite plural sequences or surface(s) of a substrate regardless of shape. This rejection is directed to claims which specifically cite "various" nucleic acids which indicates some type of variation of nucleic acid type which as filed is only described wherein depressions or wells are practiced apparently to separate one variant from another therebetween the depressions or wells. Such a consideration is not required when plural nucleic acid molecules or sequences are utilized without any distinction as to type or variousness. When applicants, as filed, describe various nucleic acids they also reasonably indicate depressions or wells for separation of the various nucleic acid types. Applicants then argue that In re Peters is analogous in that tapered and nontapered tips has written support and note that the CCPA indicated that the tip
