BEFORE THE PATENT TRIAL AND APPEAL BOARD

TEVA PHARMACEUTICALS USA, INC.,
Petitioner

v.

ALLERGAN, INC.
Patent Owner

Case IPR2017-00576
Patent 8,685,930

PATENT OWNER ALLERGAN, INC.'S
OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR JOINDER

PATENT OWNER'S OPPOSITION TO MOTION FOR JOINDER

I. STATEMENT OF THE PRECISE RELIEF REQUESTED

Pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 315(b)-(c) and 37 C.F.R. § 42.22, Allergan, Inc. (“Allergan”) respectfully requests that the Board deny Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc.’s (“Teva”) Motion for Joinder, together with Teva’s petition for inter partes review of U.S. Patent No. 8,685,930 (“the ’930 patent”), seeking cancellation of claims 1-36 of the ’930 patent (“the Teva IPR”) and joinder of this proceeding with Mylan Pharmaceuticals Inc. v. Allergan, Inc., Case IPR2016-01127 (“IPR 1127”).

II. STATEMENT OF MATERIAL FACTS

1. Allergan, Teva, and other entities are involved in litigation over the ’930 and related patents in Allergan, Inc. v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., No. 2:15-cv-01455, filed by Allergan, in the Eastern District of Texas.

2. The complaint in Allergan, Inc. v. Teva Pharmaceuticals USA, Inc., et al., No. 2:15-cv-01455 was filed by Allergan against defendants, including Teva, on August 24, 2015.

3. On June 3, 2016, Mylan Pharmaceuticals, Inc. (“Mylan”) filed its petition for inter partes review seeking cancellation of claims 1-36 of the ’930 patent. (IPR 1127, Paper 3.)

4. On September 9, 2016, Allergan filed a Preliminary Response. (IPR 1127, Paper 7).

5. On December 8, 2016, the Board instituted review of claims 1-36 of the '930 patent in IPR 1127. (IPR 1127, Paper 8.)

6. Teva submitted its petition for inter partes review of claims 1-36 of the '930 patent and its Motion for Joinder on January 6, 2017, more than one year after Allergan filed its complaint alleging infringement of the '930 patent against Teva.

III. ARGUMENT

The Board should deny Teva's Motion for Joinder because the applicable statutory scheme, 35 U.S.C. § 315(b)-(c), prohibits the joinder of time barred petitions to existing inter partes review proceedings.

Congress created the current inter partes review scheme in 2011 when it enacted the American Invents Act ("AIA"). 35 U.S.C. § 315(b) was part and parcel of this scheme. § 315(b) imposes a mandatory time bar on the institution of inter partes review proceedings:

An inter partes review may not be instituted if the petition requesting the proceeding is filed more than 1 year after the date on which the petition, real party in interest, or privy of the petitioner is served with a complaint alleging infringement of the patent.

35 U.S.C. § 315(b) (emphasis added).

Section 315(b) provides an exception from this time bar, but only for “a request for joinder”: “The time limitation set forth in the preceding sentence shall not apply for a request for joinder under subsection (c).” Id. The joinder provision—i.e. 35 U.S.C. § 315(c)—permits the Board discretion to join a party to an existing inter partes review provided certain criteria are met.

If the Director institutes an inter partes review, the Director, in his or her discretion, may join a party to that inter partes review any person who properly files a petition under section 311 that the Director, after receiving a preliminary response under section 313 or the expiration of the time for filing such a response, determines warrants the institution of an inter partes review under section 314.

35 U.S.C. § 315(c) (emphasis added).

Thus, sections 315(b)-(c) provide that if a party properly files a petition within the one-year deadline described in section 315(b), and then files a request for joinder under subsection (c) after that deadline expires, section 315(b) would permit the Board to grant the joinder request. Properly construed, the statutory scheme codified at sections 315(b)-(c) requires that the petition be “properly filed” for the consideration of both the petition and the joinder request, contemplating that the petition would have been filed within the one-year period authorized by section 315(b).¹

Applying section 315(b)-(c)'s proper construction, Teva's Motion for Joinder should be denied because its petition for inter partes review is time-barred, thus not properly filed. Allergan sued Teva for infringement of the '930 patent in the Eastern District of Texas on August 24, 2015. Teva filed its petition for inter partes review and Motion for Joinder on January 6, 2017, more than one year after Allergan brought the relevant infringement action. Under section 315(b)'s one-year time bar, Teva's petition for inter partes review is untimely—i.e. barred. As noted above, section 315(c)'s proper construction permits the Board to join inter partes review proceedings only when the underlying petition was properly filed. Because Teva's petition for inter partes review is barred by section 315(b), the board has no discretion to grant Teva's Motion for Joinder of its improperly filed petition. Consequently, in view of the relevant statutory scheme, the Board should deny Teva's Motion for Joinder.
