19	almost substantially identical,	19	because they had more words?
20	Argentum and Apotex, one member of our	20	MS. LOVE: Well, I think that is
21	team noted that they in a number of	21	the very minimum for fairness here if
22	cases, hundreds of cases ran together	22	there was further punishment

3	noticed this when we first went	3	Certainly striking the last 439 words
4	through it, and it turns out that	4	of their petition is one possibility,
5	there has been a number of cases that	5	as it is for Apotex their last 304

7	issue of Petitioners doing that and	7	Of course striking the petition
8	some other evasions of the word limit	8	completely is a third possibility.
9	in order to give themselves more space	9	HON. POLLOCK: We will take that
10	in order to make the argument in the	10	under advisement. How about number
11	petition.	11	four?
12	And here we looked at Apotex's	12	MS. LOVE: Number four, Your

12	introduced negative limitation which	12	MS. LOVE: Because we believe
13	is really an issue one of the	13	that it takes a little more space and
14	issues that the Board analyzes in the	14	analysis then we would want to give up
15	institution decision, whether or not	15	in our actual paper and because this
16	that negative limitation has written	16	is a statutory issue, a jurisdictional
17	description support under 112 in the	17	issue, we believe that we are taking

I don't know that the Board requires a particular format, but so it does seem to be like a tit for tat as Your Honor mentioned. They already get 14,000 words, the same that we had in our petition. Plus if they are envisioning filing a motion to amend, they get another 25 pages.  So I really don't think and I	9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22	MS. LOVE: Yes, Your Honor.
