tare¹ (tār) n. 1. Any of various weedy plants of the genus Vicia, especially the common vetch. 2. Any of several weedy plants that grow in grain fields. 3. tares An unwelcome or objectional element. [Middle English.]

tare² (tār) n. 1. The weight of a container or wrapper that is deducted from the gross weight to obtain net weight. 2. A deduction from gross weight made to allow for the weight of a container. 3. Chemistry A counterbalance, especially an empty vessel used to counterbalance the weight of a similar container. ♦ tr.v. tared, taring, tares To determine or indicate the tare of, especially to weigh in order to find out the tare. [Middle English, from Old French, ultimately from Arabic tarh, rejection, subtraction, from taraha, to throw away. See trh in Appendix II.]

targe (tärj) n. Archaic A light shield or buckler. [Middle English, from Old French. See TARGET.]

target (tär'tgít) n. 1a. An object, such as a padded disk with a marked surface, that is shot at to test accuracy in rifle or archery practice. b. Something aimed or fired at. 2. An object of criticism or attack. 3. One to be influenced or changed by an action or event. 4. A desired goal. 5. A railroad signal that indicates the position of a switch by its color, position, and shape. 6. The sliding sight on a surveyor's leveling rod. 7. A small round shield. 8a. A structure in a television camera tube with a storage surface that is scanned by an electron beam to generate a signal output current similar to the charge-density pattern stored on the surface. b. A usually metal part in an x-ray tube on which a beam of electrons is focused and from which x-rays are emitted. ♦ tr.v. -get•ed, -get•ing, -gets 1. To make a target of. 2. To aim at or for. 3. To establish as a target or goal. — idiom: on target Completely accurate, precise, or valid: observations that were right on target. [Middle English, small targe, from Old French targuete, variant of targete, diminutive of targe, light shield, of Germanic origin.]

target•a•ble (tär'tgí-tə-bəl) adj. That can be directed at a target; independently targetable nuclear warheads.

target date n. A date established as a target or goal, as for the completion of a project.

target language n. 1. The language into which a text written in another language is to be translated. 2. A language that a nonnative speaker is in the process of learning. 3. Computer Science The computer language, often a machine language, into which a document written in another computer language is to be translated. In all senses also called object language.

Tar•gum (tär'tgōóm', -gōóm') n. Any of several Aramaic explanatory translations or paraphrasings of the Hebrew Scriptures. [Mishnaic Hebrew targum, translation, interpretation, Targum, from Aramaic targmā, back-formation from targmānā, interpreter. See DRAGOMAN.]

Tar Heel or Tar•heel (tär'hél') n. A native or resident of North Carolina. [Perhaps from the tar that was once a major product of the state.]

tar•iff (tär'íf) n. 1a. A list or system of duties imposed by a government on imported or exported goods. b. A duty or duties so imposed. 2. A schedule of prices or fees. ♦ tr.v. -iffed, -iffing, -iffs To fix a duty or price on. [Italian tariffa, from Old Italian, from Arabic taríf, notification, infinitive of 'arafa, to announce, derived stem of 'arafa, to know. See 'rp in Appendix II.]
