
 Android is for everyone

Opportunity.
Powered by choice.

The Android operating system is completely open source. That means anybody—even Android competitors—can choose to download, install, modify, and distribute its source code for free. The result? More people have access to the power of mobile technology than ever before.