I lead the Camera Systems Engineering team inside of Graham Townsend's Camera Hardware organization. I am responsible for investigating new camera technology that we might apply to future products, and I would like to learn more about the optical zoom technology that is described on your web site. According to the description, your IP appears to contain two key elements: a telephoto lens that fits into a conventional module (no significant increase in focal length), and software that fuses wide angle and telephoto video together. I look forward to learning more about this invention.

I believe you have been in contact with Graham Townsend, but that we have not executed an NDA yet. I'd like to arrange a telephone conference so we can discuss next steps.
