Introducing the VCR Commander Service

The VCR Commander™ service allows you to easily record programs whether your television is on or off. You simply select programs to record from the Explorer® Digital Home Communications Terminal (DHCT) Interactive Program Guide (IPG) or use the VCR Timer feature. The VCR Commander service works with models of the Explorer DHCT that have the infrared (IR) port on the back of the unit to control VCR recording.

Before you can use the VCR Commander service, you must connect the IR Blaster and then set up the DHCT to recognize your brand of VCR.

Use this guide for the following tasks:

- Connecting the IR Blaster to the Explorer DHCT and to your VCR
- Setting up the VCR Commander service to work with your brand of VCR
- Scheduling a program to record on your VCR

Notes:

- The IR Blaster is compatible with all Explorer DHCTs except the Explorer 2000; for the Explorer 2000 refer to the VCR Commander™ Module User's Guide.
 - Refer to your DHCT user's installation guide for information about setting up your Explorer DHCT, and to your remote control user's guide for information about setting up and using your remote control.
