1 court reporter? 2 MR. JOHNSON: I did not, Your Honor. THE COURT: Ms. Zhong, did you arrange for the 3 4 court reporter? 5 MS. ZHONG: Yes. Patent owner did arrange for б the court reporter, and we will file the transcript when we receive it. 7 THE COURT: Okay. Yeah, I just wanted to make 8 9 sure. 10 The reason we are here today is the Board received an E-mail from Mr. Johnson dated March 23, 2021 11 12 requesting leave to file a corrected petition in each of 13 the six cases to correct what petitioner deems to be a 14 clerical error. 15 And just to sort of summarize, each of the 16 petitions relied on a Japanese patent application referred to as Morita in the 395 case, Exhibit 1017. 17 18 Petitioner wants to change two sentences in the petition 19 on Page 28. First change is to specifically the date, 20 publication date, for Morita of June 16, 2000. And then 21 the next sentence currently reads "Morita is prior art 22 under at least Section 102-B," and petitioner wants to 23 change that sentence to say "Morita is prior art under 24 Section 102-A and 102-B." 25 Mr. Johnson, we are a little puzzled why this change is necessary. The publication date is printed on the front of Morita, and it seems like that second sentence you did put patent owner on notice that you may be relying on something other than Section 102-B.

5 So why don't you explain, we want to make sure 6 we are not missing anything here, so why don't you 7 explain why you think this change is necessary.

MR. JOHNSON: Well, Your Honor, that's exactly 8 9 right. We didn't really think it was necessary, but we 10 just didn't want a technical argument that because we didn't affirmatively state the publication date or list 11 out 102-A and B that they would try to just have a 12 13 technical argument about that it was not prior art or 14 that we didn't prove it was prior art and have our 15 petition thrown out. So we just thought the better 16 course would be to reach out to them and see if they were going to challenge it as prior art, and if they 17 18 were then we would file to correct.

In response to our reaching out last week when we recognized the issue, they didn't respond one way or the other whether or not they were going to challenge it as prior art. They just said that they found it to be substantive and that we needed to re-file, so at that point we were left with no option but to just seek to correct it. We think it's pretty obvious what it is
