1 JUDGE NEW: Please identify yourselves.

MR. SALMEN: Yes, your Honor. My name is Heinz Salmen from the law firm Rakoczy Molino Mazzochi Siwik on behalf of Petitioner Mylan Pharmaceuticals, Inc. With me on the call is Neil McLaughlin also from the Rakoczy firm.

JUDGE NEW: Thank you. Welcome, Mr. Salmen.

MR. SALMEN: Thank you, your Honor.

MS. FISHMAN: This is Deborah Fishman of the law firm Arnold & Porter on behalf of patent owner Regeneron.

And with me today on the call are my colleagues Amanda Antons and Alice Ho, also of the Arnold & Porter firm.

JUDGE NEW: Thank you very much. Do either party have a court reporter.

I believe we have three items to talk about today on our agenda according to the e-mail we received. The very first one concerns the -- there doesn't seem to be much dispute between the parties on this one. Particularly in light of the view, in view of the fact patent owner has confirmed it will not oppose Petitioner's motion to update its mandatory notice if needed. Do I understand that correctly?

MR. SALMEN: Yes.

MS. FISHMAN: Yep.

JUDGE NEW: So there's no issue there for us to resolve. With respect to the second issue, that is with	th respect to the word counts in the petition and in the preliminary response, because the word count is prescribed by 35 USC 324, I don't know that the parties	3
can actually stipulate to increasing that so what I'd like to do is solicit from you now a request that you both be allowed to extend your briefs by the word count	t
set forth in the e-mail, that is to say 128 words for	the patent owner and I'm sorry, 128 words for the patent owner and 137 words in the patent owner response, and that's in 880 and 881.

Would patent owner care to make a request to that effect?

MS. FISHMAN: Certainly your Honor. In lieu of seeking dismissal, patent owner would request an additional 128 words in the 881 IPR for its POR should it be instituted. And an additional 137 words in the 880 IPR for its POR should that IPR be instituted.

JUDGE NEW: Is there any objection to that on the part of Petitioner?

MR. SALMEN: Your Honor, I have no objection on behalf of Petitioner. However, I believe patent owner may have gotten the word number reversed.
