had N1m until I've crashed it by accident. got used to it's interface so got myself N2 - these phones probably are the best I've ever used although they lack wifi or GPRS is slow. the whole idea of gesture control is just amazing. even now among all those iphones/htc etc. around this is real eye-catcher - everyone who sees it just goes WTF?!!!! is this :D

the advantage of the interface loaded on the 1gb card is that u can buy any memory card (up to 32gb) then instal the user interface on that memory card u bought (or any memory card that u hv)and use that instead of the 1gb. it is probably d 1st fone to accept memory cards up to 32gb back when the iPhone and Samsung are on the rise, and Nokia are crashing, there was Neonode.

Happily Apple violated their slide-to-unlock patent, and Neonode is not bankrupt.

The technology is awesome, but the interface is honestly very ugly.

I meant that's what Neonode claims the advantage is, I don't understand it either.
