

The photo.net Web service operated by Philip Greenspun

- photo.net: an online community of people improving their photographic skills
- my travel stories, including Travels with Samantha
- what I've learned from building 200 database-backed Web sites, notably organized into Philip and Alex's Guide to Web Publishing
- The Bill Gates Personal Wealth Clock

These are the most popular sections of this service. For a comprehensive view, visit the site map or the what's new page or my personal home page.

If you want to build a site like this, you should

- read about the free open-source software behind the site
- read about the hardware behind the site
- come to a one-day course or three-week boot camp

If you're a good student, you can join the arsdigita.com staff that maintains this site; if you're a bad student, you can hire ArsDigita to do it for you.

Raison D'Être

I built this site in 1993 to share what I knew. In 1995, I expanded the goal to "also share what some other folks know".

I've finally figured out what's wrong with photography. It's a one-eyed man looking through a little 'ole. Now, how much reality can there be in that?

-- David Hockney
