This document discusses, among other things, a system and method of allowing access to a value holding account. In various example embodiments, the value holding account is associated with a first account code that allows access to the value holding account. Some example embodiments include receiving a request for a second account code that is based on the first account code, and providing the second account code based on receiving the request for the second account code. The first account code may allow access to the value holding account for a first determinable period and the second account code may allow access to the value holding account for a second determinable period that is different from the first determinable period.
