(57) ABSTRACT

User interfaces may be used by a law enforcement officer to communicate information to and obtain feedback from a person that is held in a secure holding area of a law enforcement vehicle. The user interfaces may be presented via hardware interfaces in the law enforcement vehicle and a computing device. The computing device may receive a request to present a user interface to a person in the secure holding area. Subsequently, the user interface for the person may be generated based on contextual information from one or more sources. These sources may include an input provided to the computing device by a law enforcement officer, an input received from a network operations center, or an input obtained from an analysis of images or videos from a camera in the law enforcement vehicle. The user interface is then presented to the person in the secure holding area.
