Order

Before the Court are the parties' claim construction briefs. Plaintiff Proxense, LLC filed its complaint for patent infringement on May 2, 2023. ECF No 1. Defendant Google, LLC submitted the opening Markman Brief on November 6, 2023, and the Reply Markman Brief on December 20, 2023. ECF Nos. 40, 48, respectively. Proxense submitted its response on December 1, 2023 and its sur-reply brief on January, 5, 2024. ECF Nos. 45, 50, respectively. The parties also submitted their Joint Claim Construction Statement on January 10, 2024. ECF No 51. The Court held the Markman hearing on January 19, 2024. This Order informs the parties of the Court's final constructions of the disputed terms. Further, the Court adopts the agreed constructions from the Joint Claim Construction Statement. ECF No. 51 at 2.

I. Legal Standard

Generally, courts construe claim terms according to their plain and ordinary meaning. Phillips v. AWH Corp., 415 F.3d 1303, 1312 (Fed. Cir. 2005) (en banc). The Federal Circuit applies a "heavy presumption" in favor of construing terms according to their plain and ordinary meaning, that is, the "meaning that the term would have to a person of ordinary skill in the art in question at the time of the invention." Azure Networks, LLC v. CSR PLC, 771 F.3d 1336, 1347 (Fed. Cir.

2014) (vacated on other grounds); Phillips, 415 F.3d at 1313. The "only two exceptions to [the] general rule" that claim terms are construed according to their plain and ordinary meaning are when the patentee acts as his own lexicographer or disavows the full scope of the claim term either in the specification or during prosecution. Thorner v. Sony Computer Entm't Am. LLC, 669 F.3d 1362, 1365 (Fed. Cir. 2012). To act as his own lexicographer, the patentee must "clearly set forth a definition of the disputed claim term," and "clearly express an intent to define the term." Id. at 1365. To disavow the full scope of a claim term, the patentee's statements in the specification or prosecution history must represent "a clear disavowal of claim scope." Id. at 1366. Accordingly, when "an applicant's statements are amenable to multiple reasonable interpretations, they cannot be deemed clear and unmistakable." 3M Innovative Props. Co. v. Tredegar Corp., 725 F.3d 1315, 1326 (Fed. Cir. 2013). While the specification "may aid the court" in analyzing disputed language in a claim, "particular embodiments and examples appearing in the specification will not generally be read into the claims." Comark Commc'ns, Inc. v. Harris Corp., 156 F.3d 1182, 1187 (Fed. Cir. 1998) (internal citations omitted). Absent a "clear indication in the intrinsic record that the patentee intended the claims to be…limited," courts do not read limitations found in the specification into the claims. Liebel-Flarsheim Co. v. Medrad, Inc., 358 F.3d 898, 913 (Fed. Cir. 2004).
