Applicant: Platinum Brands, Inc.

Commissioner of Trademarks
P.O. Box 1451
Alexandria, VA 22313-1451

Sir:

Request For Reconsideration After Final Rejection

In its Final Rejection, the Examiner continues to rely upon a registered design for plum wines and liquors, U.S Registration No. 78901104 (the ‘104 Container) and U.S Registration No. 78,901,110 (the ‘110 Container) (collectively the “cited marks” attached hereto as Exhibit 1) and contends that the cited registration is confusingly similar to the Applicant’s. Reconsideration of the rejection is respectfully requested.

I. As Previously Argued, the Applicant’s Containers and Cited Containers Are Materially Different

As previously discussed when the Applicant’s container is compared to the cited marks (Exhibit 1) it is readily apparent that the respective containers are different in a number of material respects. As discussed previously, the differences between the respective marks are material and self-evident.

A first significant difference relates to the cap and its relationship to the bottle. The ‘104 Container and ‘110 Containers have a cap with a diameter that is substantially the same diameter as the bottle portion or element. In contrast, the diameter of the applicants cap is distinctively smaller than the diameter of the bottle. This difference further contributes to a different overall impression with respect to the containers.

A second difference is that both the '104 Container and '110 Container have an annular concave region between the cap and shoulder of the bottle that slants from the shoulder inward and then extends back out in a radial direction at an angle of about 90 degrees with respect to the orientation of the bottle. This feature is completely absent in the Applicant's Container. In the Applicant's Container, the shoulder of the bottle extends to the central axis of the bottle in a horizontal direction and then the cap extends perpendicular from the flat surface.

A third difference relates to the location of the label. The '104 Container and '110 Container, depicts the location of a label that is adhered around the circumference of the bottle. This label location and orientation is a feature of the registered mark. The Applicant's mark lacks this feature and therefore is further distinct from the cited mark.

The overall shape of the '104 Container is more broad and squat than the Applicant's bottle which is significantly more elongate. Specifically, the width to height to width ratio of '104 container is approximately 2.5 to 5.5. In contrast, the Applicant's container has a width to height ration of 1.5 to 7.5. This difference alone results in a distinct commercial impression with respect to the two containers. While the '110 Container is slightly more elongate than the '104 Container, the Applicant's mark nevertheless is distinctive for the same reasons discussed above.

II. The Cited mark should not be afforded broad Protection

Moreover, the strength of the cited mark and its scope of protection is not particularly wide in view of other similar bottles that have been registered for similar goods. For example, Voss USA has been issued registrations for cylindrical bottles having cylindrical caps and with horizontal labels which are similar to both the '104 Container and '110 Container for water. See U.S. Registrations Nos. 3440225; 3259981, 75753149, 78621197, 78621263, 78714997 (horizontal label), and 78714999 (horizontal label) (The "Voss marks" attached hereto as Exh. 2)

Whether water and wine can be regarded as "related goods" may be unresolved issue but for present purposes should be considered as related. The two products are both beverages and are generally sold through the same channels of trade- namely through retail food and beverage outlets. The owners of the Voss marks certainly considered that the goods were related when they initiated a lawsuit in the Southern District of New York with respect to the applicant's goods which were limited to wine. See Voss of Norway v. Enoitalia S.p.a., Platinum Brands, LLC and A.V. Imports, Inc. (S.D.N.Y. 2006). A search of the records of the trademark office for the term "drinking water" and wine revealed more than 275 live registrations or applications. Exh. 3. While the applicant has not reviewed each of these results, a number of the applications and registrations list both wine and drinking water. These include Smatts, U.S. No. 3841596; Fit for Fun; U.S. No. 3409270; Dr Red, U.S. No. 3781269; Moods of Norway, U.S. No. 3418587; Budgy Smuggler, U.S. No. 4155063; and Terre Da Vino, U.S. No. 4200548. (collectively attached hereto as Exh. 4) In addition, wine and water are routinely consumed together during meals as most place settings include both water and wine glasses. Thus, for the purpose of this response, it is submitted that the goods water and wine can be considered related.

In view of the foregoing the Applicant respectfully traverses the Examiner's contention that the average purchaser would retain a general impression of the marks as being the same or similar or would believe that the goods come from the same source.

III. The Rejection Based Upon Alleged Non-Distinctive Packaging

The Examiner has also rejected the Application on the grounds that the Applicant's Container is not distinctive. It is not clear if this ground for rejection was continued in the Final Rejection. To the extent that the rejection remains, reconsideration of the rejection is respectfully requested.

In order to determine whether Applicant's applied-for mark for the wine bottle is distinctive and can be registered, the mark must be examined according to the factors set out by Seabrook Foods, Inc. v. Bar-Well Foods Ltd., 568 F.2d 1342, 1344 (C.C.P.A. 1978)(J. Rich). In determining whether the design is arbitrary or distinctive courts have looked to the following factors:

- whether the design is a "common" basic shape or design. Id. See also, In re Hillerich & Bradsby Co., 204 F.2d 287, 40 CCPA 990, 97 USPQ 451 (1953); In re David Crystal, Inc., 49 CCPA 775, 296 F.2d 771, 132 USPQ 1 (1961).
- whether the design was unique or unusual in a particular field. Seabrook Foods at 1344. Decca Records, Inc.*, 51 F.Supp. 493, 58 USPQ 531 (D.C.N.Y.1943).
- whether the design was a mere refinement of a commonly-adopted and well-known form of ornamentation for a particular class of goods viewed by the public as a dress or ornamentation for the goods. Seabrook Foods at 1344. See also In re General Tire & Rubber Co., 404 F.2d 1396, 56 CCPA 867, 160 USPQ 415 (1969); Plastilite Corp. v. Kassnar Imports, 508 F.2d 824, 184 USPQ 348 (Cust. & Pat.App.1975), and

- whether the design is capable of creating a commercial impression distinct from the accompanying words. Seabrook Foods at 1344. See also In re E. J. Brach & Sons, 256 F.2d 325, 45 CCPA 998, 118 USPQ 308 (1958); In re Swift & Co., 223 F.2d 950, 42 CCPA 1048, 106 USPQ 286 (1955).

Here, while the design can be regarded as a basic shape, the design is nevertheless both unique and unusual in the conventional wine industry. As discussed in the Applicant's response submitted on June 28, 2012 (and which is incorporated herein by reference), the fact that the bottle is unique is supported by ample evidence from numerous separate and independent sources. Moreover, to the extent that the applicant's is not inherently distinctive for wine, the applicant has been exclusively using the mark for more than five years and, as such the has acquired distinctiveness under Section 2(f). It is submitted that the existence of container for plum wine that was cited by the Examiner (the cited marks) that includes the cylinder bottle feature does not undermine the conclusion. Plum wine is not conventional wine and the packaging of the plum wine that is presented in cited marks is different than applicants.

III. Response to the Issues raised by the Examiner in the Final Rejection Regarding the Examiner's Additional Exhibits.

In the Final Rejection, the Examiner cites to alleged suppliers of cylindrical wine bottles, apparently available from manufacturers (See generally Attachments 2- 10 to final Office Action). However the existence of trade listings offering for sale cylindrical wine bottles does not establish that the design has actually ever been used in connection with wines, in the US or anywhere in the world. As previously represented, the applicant is not aware of the sales of any wines in the container shape that is the subject of the application in the U.S. To the extent that attachments 2-10 are relevant, they may suggest that the cited marks are not afforded broad scope of protection because of the existence of offers for sales of other cylindrical bottles for use with wine.

In addition, attachments 2-10 to the Final rejection do not disclose structures that are similar or the same as the mark that the applicant seeks to register. For example, it submitted that the existence of cylindrical wooden or tin boxes that are intended to hold conventional wine bottles (Attachment Final Rejection) is inapposite to the relevant inquiry here. The applicant's mark includes the combination of a cylindrical bottle and an extended cylindrical cap that has a smaller diameter than the diameter of the bottle. This structure is not disclosed in the attached internet search pages and, more importantly is not disclosed in connection with the sale of wines.

IV The Applicant Respectfully Disagrees with the Examiner's Contention In the Final Rejection That the Goods are Identical.

In the Final Rejection, the Examiner presumed that the goods were identical. The applicant respectfully disagrees with the Examiner. The cited marks identify the goods as "wine and spirits, namely plum wines and liqueurs." It is submitted that the applicant's goods, namely wine, while sold through similar channels of trade because they are both alcoholic beverages, are nevertheless different. It is submitted that the public and understand that fruit wines, and especially plum wines and liquor are different than wines made from grapes. Even the dictionary that the term "wine" conventionally refers to wines made from grapes. Exh. 5. Plum wine is also defined differently than wine made from grapes by the regulatory authority with jurisdiction over alcoholic beverages. Compare 27 CFR § 4.21(e) with 27 CFR § 4.21(a). It is submitted that plum wine is a specialty product, not widely available, and is primarily imported from Asia.

Exh. 6. It is submitted that Plum Wine does not directly compete with conventional wine made from grapes and occupies a separate and distinct market segment – like that of Sake or dessert wines.

IV. Section 2(f) Statement

The mark has become distinctive of the goods through the applicant's substantially exclusive and continuous use in commerce for at least the five years immediately before the date of this statement. In particular, the applicant has sold wine using since at least as early as January 1, 1997 using the subject mark. In addition, the Applicant previously submitted unsolicited media coverage and consumer responses relating to the bottle. This evidence, including consumer statement of recognition, are powerful proof of secondary meaning. See 37 CFR § 2.41; TMEP 1212.06 et seq. The applicant has sold tens of thousands of cases of the wine since its introduction to the US market.

Wherefore, it is respectfully submitted that each of the grounds of rejection has been traversed.

Fruit wine

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
(Redirected from Plum wine)

Fruit wines are fermented alcoholic beverages made from a variety of base ingredients (other than grapes); they may also have additional flavours taken from fruits, flowers, and herbs. This definition is sometimes broadened to include any fermented alcoholic beverage except beer. For historical reasons, mead, cider, and perry are also excluded from the definition of fruit wine.^{[1][2]}

Fruit wines are usually referred to by their main ingredient (e.g., plum wine or elderberry wine) because the usual definition of wine states that it is made from fermented grape juice.

In the European Union, wine is legally defined as the fermented juice of grapes.^[3]

Fruit wine is commonly called country wine in Great Britain. But the term should not be conflated with the French term vin de pays. In British legislation, the term made-wine is used.^[4]

Fruit wine can be made from virtually any plant matter that can be fermented.^[3] However, some of these products do require the addition of sugar or honey to make them palatable and to increase the alcoholic content (sugar is converted to alcohol in the fermentation). Two commonly produced varieties are elderberry wine and dandelion wine. (A wine made from elderberry flowers is called elder blow wine.^[5])

Fruit wines have traditionally been popular with home winemakers and in areas with cool climates such as North America and Scandinavia; in Africa, India, and the Philippines, wine is made from bananas. Most fruits and berries have the potential to produce wine. Few foods other than grapes have the balanced quantities of sugar, acid, tannin, nutritive salts for yeast feeding and water to naturally produce a stable, drinkable wine, so most country wines are adjusted in one or more respects at fermentation.

The amount of fermentable sugars is often low and need to be supplemented by a process called chaptalization in order to have sufficient alcohol levels in the finished wine. Sucrose is often added so that there is sufficient sugar to ferment to completion while keeping the level of acidity acceptable. If the specific gravity of the initial solution is too high, indicating an excess of sugar, water or acidulated water may be added to adjust the specific gravity down to the winemaker's target range.

Many kinds of fruit have a natural acid content which would be too high to produce a savory and pleasant fruit wine in undiluted form; this can be particularly true, among others, for strawberries, cherries, pineapples, and raspberries. Therefore, much as to regulate sugar content, the fruit mash is generally topped up with water prior to fermentation to reduce the acidity to pleasant levels. Unfortunately, this also dilutes and reduces overall fruit flavour; on the other hand, a loss of flavour can be compensated by adding sugar again after fermentation which then acts as a flavour enhancer, while too much acid in the finished wine will always give it undesired harshness and poignancy.

Many fruit wines suffer from a lack of natural yeast nutrients needed to promote or maintain fermentation. Winemakers can counter this with the addition of nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium available commercially as yeast nutrient. In the opinion of one wine writer fruit wines often do not improve with bottle age and are usually meant to be consumed within a year of bottling.^[6]

The fermentation of fruit wines at home was particularly fashionable in the UK in the 1970s and was popularized in the BBC TV series The Good Life.

Plum wine

Plum liquor, also known as "plum wine", is popular in both Japan and Korea, and is also produced in China. In China, plum wine is called mejiu (白酒).

Umeshu (梅酒) is a Japanese alcoholic drink made by steeping green plums in shōchū (焼酎; clear liquor). It is sweet and smooth.

A similar liquor in Korea, called maesil ju (매실주), is marketed under various brand names, including Mae Hwa Su, Mae Chui Soon, and Seol Joong Mae. Both the Japanese and Korean varieties of plum liquor are available with whole Prunus mume fruits contained in the bottle.

In Taiwan, a popular post-World War II innovation based on Japanese-style plum liquor is wumeijiu (烏梅酒; smoked plum liquor), which is made by mixing Prunus mume liquor (烏梅酒 méijǔ), Prunus salicina liquor (梨酒 lǐjiǔ), and oolong tea liquor.

Another similar drink is plum jerkum, made from fermented plums in a manner similar to the use of apples for cider. It was often associated with the north Cotswolds^[7] and was once a product of the town of Worcester.^[8]

Pineapple wine

Pineapple wine is made from the juice of pineapples. Fermentation of the pineapple juice takes place in temperature-controlled vats and is stopped at near-dryness. The result is a soft, dry, fruit wine with a strong pineapple bouquet. It is made in Hawaii by Tedeschi Vineyards. It is also made in Nigeria by Jacobs Wines, the first pineapple winery in Africa.

Several varieties of pineapple wine are made in Okinawa, Japan, from local produce. Its alcohol content is 11.5% ABV.

Dandelion wine

Dandelion wine is a fruit wine of moderate alcohol content that is made from dandelion petals and sugar, usually combined with an acid (such as lemon juice) and with wine-making chemicals such as sodium metabisulfite.

Rose hip wine

Rose hip wine is a fruit wine.^[9] It can be made from fresh or dried rose hips. To produce this beverage, the rose hips are fermented in syrup with yeast and citric acid, creating an extract. This technique is used with only a few other types of fruit wine, including blackthorn (sloe), hawthorn, and rowan.

One of the factors that affect the taste of this wine is the necessity of removing seeds from the rose hips before fermentation. This prevents a bitter flavor in the wine but is quite time-consuming.

The best kind of wine produced from rose hips is strong and sweet, with at least two years of storage.^[10]

Redcurrant/Whitecurrant wine

Redcurrant/Whitecurrant fruit wine is a beverage that is usually produced in northerly cool areas, where it is hard to grow high-quality grapes. It is simple to produce. Its natural chemical balance is such that it can be self-clarified without any additional substances. Redcurrants and whitecurrants contain only a small amount of carbohydrates; this necessitates the addition of sugar or honey.^[10]

Cherry wine

Cherry fruit wine is produced from cherries, usually tart cherries that provide sufficient acid.^[11] Michigan winemakers, located in the leading tart-cherry-producing region of the United States, produce several varieties of cherry wine, including spiced versions and cherry-grape blends.

"Cherry Kijafa" is a fortified fruit wine that is made in Denmark from cherries with added natural flavors. It usually contains 16% ABV.^[12] It is exported to many countries in Europe and North America.
