ARGUMENT(S)
Response to Office Action In response to an Office Action from the Trademark Examining Attorney dated June 16, 2015, Applicant submitted a response on October 1, 2015 and the Examining Attorney subsequently re-refused registration, issuing a final office action on October 30, 2015. Applicant hereby respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider Applicant's arguments as submitted below. The Examining Attorney has refused registration of the Applicant's mark (the "Applicant's Mark") pursuant to Trademark Act Section 2(e)(4), 15 U.S.C. § 1052(e)(4) on the basis that the primary significance of Applicant's Mark is as a surname. Applicant respectfully disagrees with the findings and requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider the refusal and allow registration of the Applicant's Mark. The test for determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname is whether the primary significance of the mark as a whole is seen as primarily merely a surname to the purchasing public. In re Hutchinson Technology, Inc., 852 F.2d 552, 554, 7 USPQ2d 1490, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Kahan & Weisz Jewelry Mfg. Corp., 508 F.2d 831, 832, 184 USPQ 421, 422 (CCPA 1975); In re Harris Intertype Corp., 51888 F.2d 629, 631, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975); Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145, 149 (Com'r Pat.1955). "[I]t is the impact or impression which should be evaluated in determining whether or not the primary significance of a word when applied to a product is a [sic] surname significance. If it is, and it is only that, then it is primarily merely a surname." In re Giger, 78 USPQ2d 1405, 1407 (TTAB 2006), quoting In re Harris-Intertype Corp., 518 F.2d 629, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975), quoting Ex parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145 (Comm'r 1955) (emphasis in the original). Several factors are also relevant in determining the primary significance of a mark in surname cases, including: (1) the degree of the surname's rareness; (2) whether anyone connected with the applicant has the mark as a surname; (3) whether the mark has any recognized meaning other than as a surname; (4) whether the mark has the structure and pronunciation of a surname; and (5) whether the mark has the "look and feel" of a surname. See In re Benthin Management GmbH, 37 USPQ2d 1332 (TTAB 1995). The Applicant's Mark is not primarily merely a surname. For purposes of this response, the Applicant focuses on three factors. First, Sutro is an extremely rare surname in the United States. Second, the term Sutro has recognized meaning and significance other than as a surname. Both residents and visitors alike widely recognize and know Sutro as a historical district within San Francisco, as a San Francisco mayor, and there are many third party companies using SUTRO as a trademark. Third, the term Sutro does not have the "look and feel" of a surname. A. The Applicant's Mark Is An Extremely Rare Surname As evidence attached to the Office Action, the Examining Attorney provided evidence that SUTRO appears 168 times as a surname in a nationwide telephone dictionary of names. None of these records has been verified to ascertain if the listed individual has died, married or moved out of the country. Nor has the list been vetted for duplicate entries. In a country with over 300 million people, an unsupported total of 168 people with the surname is extremely rare in the United States. See In re Joint-Stock Co. "Baik," 84 USPQ2d 1921, 1923 (TTAB 2008) (BAIK considered "extremely rare" based on 456 directory listings.) See also In re United Distillers PLC, 57 USPQ2d 1220, 1221 (TTAB 200) (HACKLER held rare with 1,295 listings). Applicant respectfully submits that the use of SUTRO as surname among such a tiny portion of the population does not constitute prima facie evidence that the term has primarily surname significance. If both 1,295 listings and 456 listings of a surname have been held rare by the TTAB, then a mere 168 listings should also be held rare. The fact that SUTRO is an extremely rare surname in the United States holds strongly in the Applicant's favor. B. The Applicant's Mark Has Recognized Meaning Other Than As A Surname. A mark that has recognized meaning other than as a surname is less likely to be considered primarily merely a surname. In re BDH Two, Inc., 26 USPQ2d 1556 (TTAB 1993) (GRAINGERS for crackers and chips made from cereal grains would not be perceived as a surname, but consumers "probably will view the mark as suggestive of the grain-based nature of the products."); In re the Monotype Corp. Plc, 14 USPQ2d 1070, 1070 (TTAB 1989) (finding that the word CALLISTO has significant non- surname meaning from Greek mythology). Further, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. See In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002); see also In re Jack B. Binion, 93 U.S.P.Q.2d 1531, 2009 WL 5194992 (TTAB 2009). As a basis for the denial, the Examining Attorney states that the word SUTRO "has no meaning or significance other than as a surname." This statement, however, is unsupported. The term SUTRO defines a famous historical district in the westernmost area in San Francisco, within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, as further described below. This area was developed by the famous Adolph Sutro, a former San Francisco mayor, in the late 19th century, and remains a popular recreation and entertainment district within the city. The term also is the name of many different Bay Area based companies and other third party companies. The test to be applied in determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname, "is not the rarity of the name, nor whether it is the applicant's name, nor whether it appears in one or more telephone directories, nor whether it is coupled with a baptismal name or initials. The test should be: What is its primary significance to the purchasing public?" Ex Parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 U.S.P.Q. (BNA) 145 (Com'r Pat. & Trademarks July 8, 1955). In Rivera the court reasoned, "Applying the test to the mark sought here to be registered, it is not believed that the average member of the purchasing public would, upon seeing 'Rivera' used as a trademark on watches, be likely to think of its being a surname-even though it does not appear to have any meaning as a word in the language. The decision of the Examiner of Trademarks is reversed." Id. Similarly, the public associates the term SUTRO with the famous San Francisco historical Sutro District, as this district, as stated above, remains a popular entertainment district and tourist attraction within the city to the present day. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.) A term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002). The Sutro Historic District is a National Park Service historic district in the Lands End area of the Outer Richmond District in western San Francisco, California. It is within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, since being acquired by the National Park Service in 1977. In 1881 Adolph Sutro purchased the undeveloped land and over time, he established a private railroad company, the Sutro Gardens, Sutro Baths and extensively expanded the 1869 Cliff House. Today, this historic district encompasses famous attractions such as Sutro Heights, the Sutro Bath ruins, Mount Sutro Forest, Sutro Tower, and the historic Cliff House. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.) The Cliff House is one of the most famous restaurants in San Francisco and features on its website and venue feature information about the famous historic SUTRO district and related attractions. Thus, because the Sutro District is universally regarded as a historic district, the term SUTRO should not be regarded as primarily merely a surname. Furthermore, Adolph Sutro is a historical figure. As stated previously, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical person. Id. In addition to serving as the mayor of San Francisco from 1894 to 1896, Adolph Sutro was an entrepreneur and real estate developer who helped shape the landscape of late 19th century San Francisco. Interested in providing inexpensive recreation for the general public, he changed San Francisco's sparse and undeveloped Point Lobos area into a flourishing recreational complex that during its heyday boasted the Cliff House, Sutro Baths and Sutro Heights. (See Attached Evidence relating to Adolph Sutro). Adolph Sutro is still talked about today as is evidenced by the 171 News recent articles in Nexi Lexis that come up in the search results when searching for "Adolph and Sutro and Mayor." (See LexisNexis screenshot attached). These articles are particularly timely with the upcoming elections and make many references and comparisons to Adolph Sutro and the People Party who initially supported his candidacy. In addition, the public not only associates the term SUTRO with the Sutro District, but also with various types of well known and established products and services, many of which are located in the San Francisco Bay Area. For example, Sutro Biopharma is a well known biopharmaceutical company and is located in San Francisco, home of the famous Sutro District (<http://www.sutrobio.com/contact-us/>). (See Evidence Attached). Other examples of companies with the name Sutro located in the Bay Area include: Sutro Stewards (<http://sutrostewards.org/page/mission>); Sutro Elementary (<http://www.sutroelementary.com/>); Sutro Backpacks (handcrafted in San Francisco found here <http://www.rickshawbags.com/sutro-backpack-cordura.html#272=89>); Sutro Eyewear (<http://www.sutrovision.com/contact/>); Sutro Software (<https://sutrosoft.com/contact>); Sutro Energy Group (<http://www.sutroenergygroup.com/projects.html>); Sutro Property Management (<http://www.sutroprop.com/>); Sutro Labs (<http://www.sutrolab.com/www.sutrolab.com/lab-profile>); Sutro Footwear (<http://www.sutrofootwear.com/pages/about-us>). (See Evidence Attached). It is important to also note that the term SUTRO has active US trademark registrations. Shoebiz, Inc. has registered the term SUTRO in class 25 for men's, women's and children's footwear, namely, shoes, boots and sandals (registration no. 4340751). Jim Parkinsson has registered the term SUTRO in class 9 for type face fonts recorded on magnetic and optical media (registration no. 2808156). Corn Products International has a registration for Non-crystallizing sorbitol solution (registration no. 3682298). And Instragram, a popular company, has registered the term SUTRO in class 009 (registration no. 4927357). (See Registrations Attached). Furthermore, the Examining Attorney's assertion that because the term SUTRO is not in the dictionary, it cannot have meaning or significance outside of a surname is, again, incorrect. A quick review of the American Heritage Dictionary shows no entry for the terms TRIBECA or ALLERTON, but anyone familiar with the neighborhoods of New York City will understand both terms have very distinct meanings. The same is true is true for the term SUTRO. The general public will understand that the term SUTRO has a very distinct meaning, as the name of a historic district in San Francisco. As such, the word SUTRO has a meaning independent from that of a surname. C. The Applicant's mark does not have the "look and feel" of a surname The term SUTRO does not have the "look and feel" of a surname. Previously, the TTAB rejected an examining attorney's argument that the mere fact that the mark PINTRO ends in "O" imbues the mark with the look and feel of a surname. The examining attorney argued that "many surnames end with the letter 'O', for example, Amato, Bruno, Castro, DeMarco, Gallo, Romano. CASTRO even ends with the same last three letters as PINTRO." The TTAB found no shared "pattern" such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname. The TTAB explained, "In fact, the only example the examining attorney offers with a common letter string of three letters is Castro. We also find this unpersuasive. We see no shared "pattern" such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname." It is in the case of a rare surname that we need to weigh "look and feel" carefully, particularly where there is no "cue," such as a title, an initial or possessive form to signal that the term is a surname. In re Nelson Souto Major Piquet, 5 USPQ2d 1367, 1368 (TTAB 1987). In this case, the TTAB found that there is no evidence that relevant purchasers would be "preconditioned" to perceive PINTRO as a surname. Id. Similarly, the mark SUTRO ends in "O", which does not necessarily imply that the mark has the look and feeling of a surname. Given the evidence offered above, there is no shared pattern such that the public would assume that SUTRO is a surname or that relevant purchasers would be preconditioned to perceive SUTRO as a surname. D. Conclusion Taking into account the totality of the circumstances, it is clear that the name SUTRO is not seen as primarily merely a surname. First, the term SUTRO is a very rare surname. Second, the term SUTRO is both the name of a historical figure and historical place. Third, there are many companies located in San Francisco, where the historic district is located, that are named SUTRO. Fourth, there are other companies that have federal trademark registrations for the mark SUTRO. And finally, SUTRO does not have the look and feel of a surname. Again, taking into account all of these considerations, one cannot reasonably argue that the term SUTRO is primarily seen as merely a surname. Thus, Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney allow this application to proceed to registration.

Request for Reconsideration after Final Action

To the Commissioner for Trademarks:

Application serial no. 86629747 SUTRO(Standard Characters, see <http://tmng-al.uspto.gov/resting2/api/img/86629747/large>) has been amended as follows:

ARGUMENT(S)

In response to the substantive refusal(s), please note the following:

Response to Office Action In response to an Office Action from the Trademark Examining Attorney dated June 16, 2015, Applicant submitted a response on October 1, 2015 and the Examining Attorney subsequently re-refused registration, issuing a final office action on October 30, 2015. Applicant hereby respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider Applicant's arguments as submitted below. The Examining Attorney has refused registration of the Applicant's mark (the "Applicant's Mark") pursuant to Trademark Act Section 2(e)(4), 15 U.S.C. § 1052(e)(4) on the basis that the primary significance of Applicant's Mark is as a surname. Applicant respectfully disagrees with the findings and requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider the refusal and allow registration of the Applicant's Mark. The test for determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname is whether the primary significance of the mark as a whole is seen as primarily merely a surname to the purchasing public. In re Hutchinson Technology, Inc., 852 F.2d 552, 554, 7 USPQ2d 1490, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Kahan & Weisz Jewelry Mfg. Corp., 508 F.2d 831, 832, 184 USPQ 421, 422 (CCPA 1975); In re Harris Intertype Corp., 51888 F.2d 629, 631, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975); Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145, 149 (Com'r Pat.1955). "[I]t is the impact or impression which should be evaluated in determining whether or not the primary significance of a word when applied to a product is a [sic] surname significance. If it is, and it is only that, then it is primarily merely a surname." In re Giger, 78 USPQ2d 1405, 1407 (TTAB 2006), quoting In re Harris-Intertype Corp., 518 F.2d 629, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975), quoting Ex parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145 (Comm'r 1955) (emphasis in the original). Several factors are also relevant in determining the primary significance of a mark in surname cases, including: (1) the degree of the surname's rareness; (2) whether anyone connected with the applicant has the mark as a surname; (3) whether the mark has any recognized meaning other than as a surname; (4) whether the mark has the structure and pronunciation of a surname; and (5) whether the mark has the "look and feel" of a surname. See In re Benthin Management GmbH, 37 USPQ2d 1332 (TTAB 1995). The Applicant's Mark is not primarily merely a surname. For purposes of this response, the Applicant focuses on three factors. First, Sutro is an extremely rare surname in the United States. Second, the term Sutro has recognized meaning and significance other than as a surname. Both residents and visitors alike widely recognize and know Sutro as a historical district within San Francisco, as a San Francisco mayor, and there are many third party companies using SUTRO as a trademark. Third, the term Sutro does not have the "look and feel" of a surname. A. The Applicant's Mark Is An Extremely Rare Surname As evidence attached to the Office Action, the Examining Attorney provided evidence that SUTRO appears 168 times as a surname in a nationwide telephone dictionary of names. None of these records has been verified to ascertain if the listed individual has died, married or moved out of the country. Nor has the list been vetted for duplicate entries. In a country with over 300 million people, an unsupported total of 168 people with the surname is extremely rare in the United States. See In re Joint-Stock Co. "Baik," 84 USPQ2d 1921, 1923 (TTAB 2008) (BAIK considered "extremely rare" based on 456 directory listings.) See also In re United Distillers PLC, 57 USPQ2d 1220, 1221 (TTAB 200) (HACKLER held rare with 1,295 listings). Applicant respectfully submits that the use of SUTRO as surname among such a tiny portion of the population does not constitute prima facie evidence that the term has primarily surname significance. If both 1,295 listings and 456 listings of a surname have been held rare by the TTAB, then a mere 168 listings should also be held rare. The fact that SUTRO is an extremely rare surname in the United States holds strongly in the Applicant's favor. B. The Applicant's Mark Has Recognized Meaning Other Than As A Surname. A mark that has recognized meaning other than as a surname is less likely to be considered primarily merely a surname. In re BDH Two, Inc., 26 USPQ2d 1556 (TTAB 1993) (GRAINGERS for crackers and chips made from cereal grains would not be perceived as a surname, but consumers "probably will view the mark as suggestive of the grain-based nature of the products."); In re the Monotype Corp. Plc, 14 USPQ2d 1070, 1070 (TTAB 1989) (finding that the word CALLISTO has significant non-surname meaning from Greek mythology). Further, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. See In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002); see also In re Jack B. Binion, 93 U.S.P.Q.2d 1531, 2009 WL 5194992 (TTAB 2009). As a basis for the denial, the Examining Attorney states that the word SUTRO "has no meaning or significance other than as a surname." This statement, however, is unsupported. The term SUTRO defines a famous historical district in the westernmost area in San Francisco, within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, as further described below. This area was developed by the famous Adolph Sutro, a former San Francisco mayor, in the late 19th century, and remains a popular recreation and entertainment district within the city. The term also is the name of many different Bay Area based companies and other third party companies. The test to be applied in determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname, "is not the rarity of the name, nor whether it is the applicant's name, nor whether it appears in one or more telephone directories, nor whether it is coupled with a baptismal name or initials. The test should be: What is its primary significance to the purchasing public?" Ex Parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 U.S.P.Q. (BNA) § 145 (Com'r Pat. & Trademarks July 8, 1955). In Rivera the court reasoned, "Applying the test to the mark sought here to be registered, it is not believed that the average member of the purchasing public would, upon seeing "Rivera" used as a trademark on watches, be likely to think of its being a surname-even though it does not appear to have any meaning as a word in the language. The decision of the Examiner of Trademarks is reversed." Id. Similarly, the public associates the term SUTRO with the famous San Francisco historical Sutro District, as this district, as stated above, remains a popular entertainment district and tourist attraction within the city to the present day. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.) A term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002). The Sutro Historic District is a National Park Service historic district in the Lands End area of the Outer Richmond District in western San Francisco, California. It is within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, since being acquired by the National Park Service in 1977. In 1881 Adolph Sutro purchased the undeveloped land and over time, he established a private railroad company, the Sutro Gardens, Sutro Baths and extensively expanded the 1869 Cliff House. Today, this historic district encompasses famous attractions such as Sutro Heights, the Sutro Bath ruins, Mount Sutro Forest, Sutro Tower, and the historic Cliff House. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.) The Cliff House is one of the most famous restaurants in San Francisco and features on its website and venue feature information about the famous historic SUTRO district and related attractions. Thus, because the Sutro District is universally regarded as a historic district, the term SUTRO should not be regarded as primarily merely a surname. Furthermore, Adolph Sutro is a historical figure. As stated previously, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical person. Id. In addition to serving as the mayor of San Francisco from 1894 to 1896, Adolph Sutro was an entrepreneur and real estate developer who helped shape the landscape of late 19th century San Francisco. Interested in providing inexpensive recreation for the general public, he changed San Francisco's sparse and undeveloped Point Lobos area into a flourishing recreational complex that during its heyday boasted the Cliff House, Sutro Baths and Sutro Heights. (See Attached Evidence relating to Adolph Sutro). Adolph Sutro is still talked about today as is evidenced by the 171 News recent articles in Nexi Lexis that come up in the search results when searching for "Adolph and Sutro and Mayor." (See LexisNexis screenshot attached). These articles are particularly timely with the upcoming elections and make many references and comparisons to Adolph Sutro and the People Party who initially supported his candidacy. In addition, the public not only associates the term SUTRO with the Sutro District, but also with various types of well known and established products and services, many of which are located in the San Francisco Bay Area. For example, Sutro Biopharma is a well known biopharmaceutical company and is located in San Francisco, home of the famous Sutro District (<http://www.sutrobio.com/contact-us/>). (See Evidence Attached). Other examples of companies with the name Sutro located in the Bay Area include: Sutro Stewards (<http://sutrostewards.org/page/mission>); Sutro Elementary (<http://www.sutroelementary.com/>); Sutro Backpacks (handcrafted in San Francisco found here <http://www.rickshawbags.com/sutro-backpack-cordura.html#272=89>); Sutro Eyewear (<http://www.sutrovision.com/contact/>); Sutro Software (<https://sutrosoftware.com/contact>); Sutro Energy Group (<http://www.sutroenergygroup.com/projects.html>); Sutro Property Management (<http://www.sutroprop.com/>); Sutro Labs (<http://www.sutrolab.com/www.sutrolab.com/lab-profile>); Sutro Footwear (<http://www.sutrofootwear.com/pages/about-us>). (See Evidence Attached). It is important to also note that the term SUTRO has active US trademark registrations. Shoebiz, Inc. has registered the term SUTRO in class 25 for men's, women's and children's footwear, namely, shoes, boots and sandals (registration no. 4340751). Jim Parkinson has registered the term SUTRO in class 9 for type face fonts recorded on magnetic and optical media (registration no. 2808156). Corn Products International has a registration for Non- crystallizing sorbitol solution (registration no. 3682298). And Instragram, a popular company, has registered the term SUTRO in class 009 (registration no. 4927357). (See Registrations Attached). Furthermore, the Examining Attorney's assertion that because the term SUTRO is not in the dictionary, it cannot have meaning or significance outside of a surname is, again, incorrect. A quick review of the American Heritage Dictionary shows no entry for the terms TRIBECA or ALLERTON, but anyone familiar with the neighborhoods of New York City will understand both terms have very distinct meanings. The same is true is true for the term SUTRO. The general public will understand that the term SUTRO has a very distinct meaning, as the name of a historic district in San Francisco. As such, the word SUTRO has a meaning independent from that of a surname. C. The Applicant's mark does not have the "look and feel" of a surname The term SUTRO does not have the "look and feel" of a surname. Previously, the TTAB rejected an examining attorney's argument that the mere fact that the mark PINTRO ends in "O" imbues the mark with the look and feel of a surname. The examining attorney argued that "many surnames end with the letter 'O', for example, Amato, Bruno, Castro, DeMarco, Gallo, Romano. CASTRO even ends with the same last three letters as PINTRO." The TTAB found no shared "pattern" such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname. The TTAB explained, "In fact, the only example the examining attorney offers with a common letter string of three letters is Castro. We also find this unpersuasive. We see no shared "pattern" such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname." It is in the case of a rare surname that we need to weigh "look and feel" carefully, particularly where there is no "cue," such as a title, an initial or possessive form to signal that the term is a surname. In re Nelson Souto Major Piquet, 5 USPQ2d 1367, 1368 (TTAB 1987). In this case, the TTAB found that there is no evidence that relevant purchasers would be "preconditioned" to perceive PINTRO as a surname. Id. Similarly, the mark SUTRO ends in "O", which does not necessarily imply that the mark has the look and feeling of a surname. Given the evidence offered above, there is no shared pattern such that the public would assume that SUTRO is a surname or that relevant purchasers would be preconditioned to perceive SUTRO as a surname. D. Conclusion Taking into account the totality of the circumstances, it is clear that the name SUTRO is not seen as primarily merely a surname. First, the term SUTRO is a very rare surname. Second, the term SUTRO is both the name of a historical figure and historical place. Third, there are many companies located in San Francisco, where the historic district is located, that are named SUTRO. Fourth, there are other companies that have federal trademark registrations for the mark SUTRO. And finally, SUTRO does not have the look and feel of a surname. Again, taking into account all of these considerations, one cannot reasonably argue that the term SUTRO is primarily seen as merely a surname. Thus, Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney allow this application to proceed to registration.

Response to Office Action

In response to an Office Action from the Trademark Examining Attorney dated June 16, 2015, Applicant submitted a response on October 1, 2015 and the Examining Attorney subsequently re-refused registration, issuing a final office action on October 30, 2015. Applicant hereby respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider Applicant's arguments as submitted below.

The Examining Attorney has refused registration of the Applicant's mark (the "Applicant's Mark") pursuant to Trademark Act Section 2(e)(4), 15 U.S.C. § 1052(e)(4) on the basis that the primary significance of Applicant's Mark is as a surname. Applicant respectfully disagrees with the findings and requests that the Examining Attorney reconsider the refusal and allow registration of the Applicant's Mark.

The test for determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname is whether the primary significance of the mark as a whole is seen as primarily merely a surname to the purchasing public. In re Hutchinson Technology, Inc., 852 F.2d 552, 554, 7 USPQ2d 1490, 1492 (Fed. Cir. 1988); In re Kahan & Weisz Jewelry Mfg. Corp., 508 F.2d 831, 832, 184 USPQ 421, 422 (CCPA 1975); In re Harris Intertype Corp., 518 F.2d 629, 631, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975); Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145, 149 (Com'r Pat.1955).

"[I]t is the impact or impression which should be evaluated in determining whether or not the primary significance of a word when applied to a product is a [sic] surname significance. If it is, and it is only that, then it is primarily merely a surname." In re Giger, 78 USPQ2d 1405, 1407 (TTAB 2006), quoting In re Harris-Intertype Corp., 518 F.2d 629, 186 USPQ 238, 239 (CCPA 1975), quoting Ex parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 USPQ 145 (Comm'r 1955) (emphasis in the original).

Several factors are also relevant in determining the primary significance of a mark in surname cases, including: (1) the degree of the surname's rareness; (2) whether anyone connected with the applicant has the mark as a surname; (3) whether the mark has any recognized meaning other than as a surname; (4) whether the mark has the structure and pronunciation of a surname; and (5) whether the mark has the "look and feel" of a surname. See In re Benthin Management GmbH, 37 USPQ2d 1332 (TTAB 1995).

The Applicant's Mark is not primarily merely a surname. For purposes of this response, the Applicant focuses on three factors. First, Sutro is an extremely rare surname in the United States. Second, the term Sutro has recognized meaning and significance other than as a surname. Both residents and visitors alike widely recognize and know Sutro as a historical district within San Francisco, as a San Francisco mayor, and there are many third party companies using SUTRO as a trademark. Third, the term Sutro does not have the "look and feel" of a surname.

A. The Applicant's Mark Is An Extremely Rare Surname

As evidence attached to the Office Action, the Examining Attorney provided evidence that SUTRO appears 168 times as a surname in a nationwide telephone dictionary of names. None of these records has been verified to ascertain if the listed individual has died, married or moved out of the country. Nor has the list been vetted for duplicate entries. In a country with over 300 million people, an unsupported total of 168 people with the surname is extremely rare in the United States. See In re Joint-Stock Co. "Baik," 84 USPQ2d 1921, 1923 (TTAB 2008) (BAIK considered "extremely rare" based on 456 directory listings.) See also In re United Distillers PLC, 57 USPQ2d 1220, 1221 (TTAB 200) (HACKLER held rare with 1,295 listings). Applicant respectfully submits that the use of SUTRO as surname among such a tiny portion of the population does not constitute prima facie evidence that the term has primarily surname significance. If both 1,295 listings and 456 listings of a surname have been held rare by the TTAB, then a mere 168 listings should also be held rare.

The fact that SUTRO is an extremely rare surname in the United States holds strongly in the Applicant's favor.

B. The Applicant's Mark Has Recognized Meaning Other Than As A Surname.

A mark that has recognized meaning other than as a surname is less likely to be considered primarily merely a surname. In re BDH Two, Inc., 26 USPQ2d 1556 (TTAB 1993) (GRAINGERS for crackers and chips made from cereal grains would not be perceived as a surname, but consumers "probably will view the mark as suggestive of the grain-based nature of the products."); In re the Monotype Corp. Plc, 14 USPQ2d 1070, 1070 (TTAB 1989) (finding that the word CALLISTO has significant non-surname meaning from Greek mythology).

Further, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. See In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002); see also In re Jack B. Binion, 93 U.S.P.Q.2d 1531, 2009 WL 5194992 (TTAB 2009).

As a basis for the denial, the Examining Attorney states that the word SUTRO "has no meaning or significance other than as a surname." This statement, however, is unsupported. The term SUTRO defines a famous historical district in the westernmost area in San Francisco, within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, as further described below. This area was developed by the famous Adolph Sutro, a former San Francisco mayor, in the late 19th century, and remains a popular recreation and entertainment district within the city. The term also is the name of many different Bay Area based companies and other third party companies.

The test to be applied in determining whether a mark is primarily merely a surname, "is not the rarity of the name, nor whether it is the applicant's name, nor whether it appears in one or more telephone directories, nor whether it is coupled with a baptismal name or initials. The test should be: What is its primary significance to the purchasing public?" Ex Parte Rivera Watch Corp., 106 U.S.P.Q. (BNA) ¶ 145 (Com'r Pat. & Trademarks July 8, 1955).

In Rivera the court reasoned, "Applying the test to the mark sought here to be registered, it is not believed that the average member of the purchasing public would, upon seeing "Rivera" used as a trademark on watches, be likely to think of its being a surname-even though it does not appear to have any meaning as a word in the language. The decision of the Examiner of Trademarks is reversed." Id.

Similarly, the public associates the term SUTRO with the famous San Francisco historical Sutro District, as this district, as stated above, remains a popular entertainment district and tourist attraction within the city to the present day. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.)

A term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical place or person. In re Pyro-Spectaculars, Inc., 63 USPQ2d 2022, 2024 (TTAB 2002). The Sutro Historic District is a National Park Service historic district in the Lands End area of the Outer Richmond District in western San Francisco, California. It is within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, since being acquired by the National Park Service in 1977. In 1881 Adolph Sutro purchased the undeveloped land and over time, he established a private railroad company, the Sutro Gardens, Sutro Baths and extensively expanded the 1869 Cliff House. Today, this historic district encompasses famous attractions such as Sutro Heights, the Sutro Bath ruins, Mount Sutro Forest, Sutro Tower, and the historic Cliff House. (See Evidence Attached relating to Sutro District, Sutro Baths, Sutro Heights, Sutro Tower and Mount Sutro Forest.) The Cliff House is one of the most famous restaurants in San Francisco and features on its website and venue feature information about the famous historic SUTRO district and related attractions. Thus, because the Sutro District is universally regarded as a historic district, the term SUTRO should not be regarded as primarily merely a surname.

Furthermore, Adolph Sutro is a historical figure. As stated previously, a term with surname significance may not be primarily merely a surname if that term also identifies a historical person. Id. In addition to serving as the mayor of San Francisco from 1894 to 1896, Adolph Sutro was an entrepreneur and real estate developer who helped shape the landscape of late 19th century San Francisco. Interested in providing inexpensive recreation for the general public, he changed San Francisco's sparse and undeveloped Point Lobos area into a flourishing recreational complex that during its heyday boasted the Cliff House, Sutro Baths and Sutro Heights. (See Attached Evidence relating to Adolph Sutro). Adolph Sutro is still talked about today as is evidenced by the 171 News recent articles in Nexi Lexis that come up in the search results when searching for "Adolph and Sutro and Mayor." (See LexisNexis screenshot attached). These articles are particularly timely with the upcoming elections and make many references and comparisons to Adolph Sutro and the People Party who initially supported his candidacy.

In addition, the public not only associates the term SUTRO with the Sutro District, but also with various types of well known and established products and services, many of which are located in the San Francisco Bay Area. For example, Sutro Biopharma is a well known biopharmaceutical company and is located in San Francisco, home of the famous Sutro District (<http://www.sutrobio.com/contact-us/>). (See Evidence Attached).

Other examples of companies with the name Sutro located in the Bay Area include: Sutro Stewards (<http://sutrostewards.org/page/mission>); Sutro Elementary (<http://www.sutroelementary.com/>); Sutro BackPacks (handcrafted in San Francisco found here <http://www.rickshawbags.com/sutro-backpack-cordura.html#272=89>); Sutro Eyewear (<http://www.sutrovision.com/contact/>); Sutro Software (<https://sutrosoftware.com/contact>); Sutro Energy Group (<http://www.sutroenergygroup.com/projects.html>); Sutro Property Management (<http://www.sutroprop.com/>); Sutro Labs (<http://www.sutrolab.com/www.sutrolab.com/lab-profile>); Sutro Footwear (<http://www.sutrofootwear.com/pages/about-us>). (See Evidence Attached).

It is important to also note that the term SUTRO has active US trademark registrations. Shoebiz, Inc. has registered the term SUTRO in class 25 for men's, women's and children's footwear, namely, shoes, boots and sandals (registration no. 4340751). Jim Parkinson has registered the term SUTRO in class 9 for type face fonts recorded on magnetic and optical media (registration no. 2808156). Corn Products International has a registration for Non-crystallizing sorbitol solution (registration no. 3682298). And Instragram, a popular company, has registered the term SUTRO in class 009 (registration no. 4927357). (See Registrations Attached).

Furthermore, the Examining Attorney's assertion that because the term SUTRO is not in the dictionary, it cannot have meaning or significance outside of a surname is, again, incorrect. A quick review of the American Heritage Dictionary shows no entry for the terms TRIBECA or ALLERTON, but anyone familiar with the neighborhoods of New York City will understand both terms have very distinct meanings. The same is true for the term SUTRO. The general public will understand that the term SUTRO has a very distinct meaning, as the name of a historic district in San Francisco. As such, the word SUTRO has a meaning independent from that of a surname.

C. The Applicant's mark does not have the "look and feel" of a surname

The term SUTRO does not have the "look and feel" of a surname. Previously, the TTAB rejected an examining attorney's argument that the mere fact that the mark PINTRO ends in "O" imbues the mark with the look and feel of a surname. The examining attorney argued that "many surnames end with the letter 'O', for example, Amato, Bruno, Castro, DeMarco, Gallo, Romano. CASTRO even ends with the same last three letters as PINTRO."

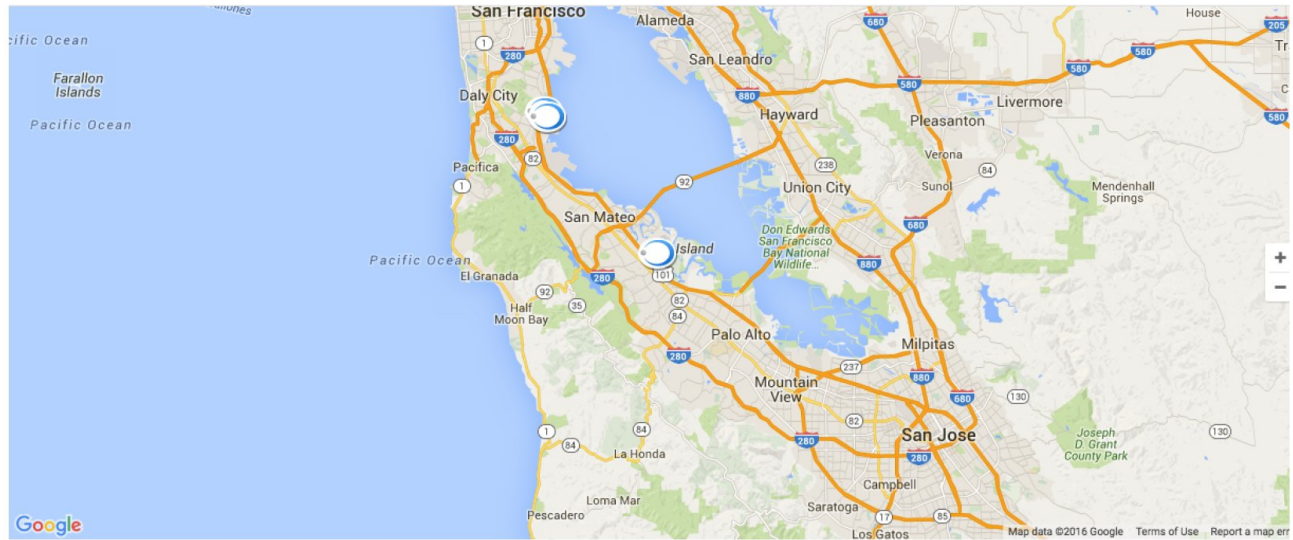

The TTAB found no shared “pattern” such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname. The TTAB explained, “In fact, the only example the examining attorney offers with a common letter string of three letters is Castro. We also find this unpersuasive. We see no shared “pattern” such that the public would assume that PINTRO is a surname.”

It is in the case of a rare surname that we need to weigh “look and feel” carefully, particularly where there is no “cue,” such as a title, an initial or possessive form to signal that the term is a surname. In re Nelson Souto Major Piquet, 5 USPQ2d 1367, 1368 (TTAB 1987). In this case, the TTAB found that there is no evidence that relevant purchasers would be “preconditioned” to perceive PINTRO as a surname. Id.

Similarly, the mark SUTRO ends in “O”, which does not necessarily imply that the mark has the look and feeling of a surname. Given the evidence offered above, there is no shared pattern such that the public would assume that SUTRO is a surname or that relevant purchasers would be preconditioned to perceive SUTRO as a surname.

D. Conclusion

Taking into account the totality of the circumstances, it is clear that the name SUTRO is not seen as primarily merely a surname. First, the term SUTRO is a very rare surname. Second, the term SUTRO is both the name of a historical figure and historical place. Third, there are many companies located in San Francisco, where the historic district is located, that are named SUTRO. Fourth, there are other companies that have federal trademark registrations for the mark SUTRO. And finally, SUTRO does not have the look and feel of a surname. Again, taking into account all of these considerations, one cannot reasonably argue that the term SUTRO is primarily seen as merely a surname. Thus, Applicant respectfully requests that the Examining Attorney allow this application to proceed to registration.

- Report management and conference planning. Sutro Energy Group managed the day-to-day aspects of "The State Clean Energy Cookbook" project, a joint effort of Stanford's Steyer-Taylor Center for Energy Policy and Finance and Hoover Institution. Tasks included primary research, conference agenda planning, recruiting conference attendees and speakers, chapter drafting, and managing the final design and publication of the report.
- Survey implementation and analysis. On behalf of a San Francisco policy firm, Sutro Energy Group designed and implemented a survey of cleantech investors, recruited participants, and prepared an analysis of the results with recommendations on how to encourage more investment in the space.
- Project diligence and management. Prior to the founding of Sutro Energy Group, Ms. Schuetz performed diligence on potential emissions reduction projects for TerraPass. For qualified projects, she managed all aspects of data collection and verification to maximize return to the project owner through the sale of carbon offsets.

Hy.dro.sol [hahy-druh-sawl, -sol]
noun Physical Chemistry

1. Hydrosol. An herbal distillate obtained by steam distillation of therapeutic & aromatic flora. The distillate will contain essential oil compounds as well as organic acids. Compounds with a higher vaporization point will remain behind and will include many of the water soluble plant pigments and flavonoids. Our therapeutic hydrosol is steamed distilled in small batches to preserve the integrity of the waters components. We have formulated our hydrosols specifically for their skin nourishing properties when used topically and for their soothing effects on the mind and body when inhaled. Hydrosols are a Holographic Substance containing the complete matrix of the substance from which they were distilled.

Hydrosol should not be confused with traditional cosmetic sprays where essential oils are isolated in distilled water with cosmetic carriers. Hydrosols are produced for their therapeutic properties as opposed to their scent although they are self scented by the property from which it was distilled. During the distillation process, the healing properties of its primary constituent are compressed into particles small enough to be absorbed by the body for immediate distribution.

Mission

Mission

The mission of the Sutro Stewards is to create urban recreational opportunities while practicing sustainable habitat conservation through stewardship.

Sutro Stewards work to conserve habitat through ecological restoration and native plant propagation while providing recreational opportunities in the UCSF Mount Sutro Open Space Reserve. Mount Sutro Open Space, located in the geographic center of San Francisco, was overlooked by surrounding communities for a century. In the last decade, the true value of the open space was revealed through the Sutro Stewards' creation of multi-use trails, allowing the public to explore this exceptional place.

Since 2006, we have mobilized volunteers to build trails, remove invasive species, and grow and install native plants. We are the largest organized independent volunteer pool in San Francisco, engaging over 1,000 volunteers each year and hosting six or more events a month. We work with city agencies and land managers to continue to expand the network of connectivity between San Francisco opens spaces and engage community in the planning of improvements and long term stewardship of each project.

Make a donation to support our three program areas - trail maintenance and building, native plant nursery, and habitat conservation - as well as public education programs like our annual wildflower walks.

The glorious historic forest on Mt Sutro

Mount Sutro Cloud Forest

On the slopes of Mount Sutro \(see map here\), a 900-foot hill in San Francisco California, is a glorious historic forest that is over a hundred years old. It was planted by Adolf Sutro, one of the city's most colorful characters, and a former Mayor of the city. This 80-acre forest is a remnant of 1100 acres of eucalyptus that once covered most of the western side of the city.

If you walk into the forest today, it doesn't feel like you're in the heart of the city. Some of the trees are 200 feet tall (nearly as tall as the redwoods of Muir Woods, where the tallest tree is 252 feet). Many are over 100 feet in height.

Mt Sutro is squarely in San Francisco's fog belt, and one of the most ethereal aspects of this forest is watching the fog blow in. In addition to the winter rain, the forest is watered by the summer and fall fog, making it functionally a Cloud Forest. On a foggy day, inside the forest may be the most beautiful place in all San Francisco. (Muddy, but ethereal.)

Over forty-five species of birds frequent the woods, and its sounds are bird-twitter, the creaking of the trees, the rustling of leaves, and if you are fortunate, the hammering of the downy woodpecker or at dusk, the soft resonant hooting of the Great Horned Owl.

Of the 80 acres, 61 belongs to UCSF, which has committed to maintain it as open space, but is planning to cut down thousands of the trees on around 25 acres. (The effort to provide information and to save the forest has its website at <http://www.SaveSutro.com>)

Another 12 contiguous acres belongs to the City, and is officially called the Interior Green Belt, together with 7 acres of tree across Clarendon Avenue. Trails in both areas offer access to hikers. The trails are maintained by the volunteer group Sutro Stewards. (They encourage UCSF's plan to transform the forest into a park.)

SURROUNDING NEIGHBORHOODS

Mount Sutro Forest is bounded on the south and west by the Forest Knolls neighborhood (and Laguna Honda lake), and on the East by Cole Valley. On the northern side, UCSF has its Parnassus Campus, including the new Stem Cell Research Building, which looks like a space-ship that's landed in the forest. UCSF student housing at Aldea San Miguel lies on the mountainside, just off Clarendon Avenue.

Sutro Baths History

The Ambitious & Magnificent Sutro Baths

Adolph Sutro, the self-made millionaire who designed Sutro Heights and later the second Cliff House, developed the amazing Sutro Baths in 1894. With his special interest in natural history and marine studies, he constructed an ocean pool aquarium among the rocks north of the Cliff House. Sutro then expanded his ocean front complex by constructing a massive public bathhouse that covered three acres and boasted impressive engineering and artistic details.

Sutro's dream for the Baths was to provide a healthy, recreational and inexpensive swimming facility for thousands of San Franciscans. A classic Greek portal opened to a massive glass enclosure containing seven swimming pools at various temperatures. There were slides, trapezes, springboards and a high dive. The power of the Pacific Ocean during high tide could fill the 1.7 million gallons of water required for all the pools in just one hour. The Baths could accommodate 10,000 people at one time and offered 20,000 bathing suits and 40,000 towels for rent.

Typical of Sutro's progressive spirit, he designed the Baths to provide its visitors with educational as well as recreational opportunities. The front entrance contained natural history exhibits, galleries of sculptures, paintings, tapestries and artifacts from Mexico, China, Asia, and the Middle East, including the popular Egyptian mummies. In addition to swimming, Sutro Baths offered visitors many other attractions including band concerts, talent shows, and restaurants. With several railroads providing transportation to the area by the late 1890s, a visit to Sutro Baths crowned an all-day family excursion to the shore, including stops at Sutro Heights, the Cliff House and Ocean Beach.

The End of an Era

For all their glamour and excitement, the Baths were not commercially successful over the long-term. Adolph Sutro died in 1898 and for many years, his family continued to manage his properties. Overtime, the Baths became less popular, due to the Great Depression, reduction in available public transportation and new public health codes. In attempts to make the facility profitable, the owners converted the baths into an ice-skating rink but Sutro Baths never regained its popularity and the ice-skating revenue was not enough to maintain the enormous building. In 1964, developers with plans to replace the Baths with high-rise apartments bought the site and began demolition of the once great structure. In 1966, a fire destroyed what was left of the Baths; the city did not pursue the high-rise apartment plans. The concrete ruins just north of the Cliff House are the remains of the grand Sutro Baths and have been part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area since 1973.

Sutro Heights History

Sutro Heights, circa 1890

PARC, NPS

In 1885, self-made millionaire Adolph Sutro created the Sutro Heights Park, an elegant and formal public garden that covered over twenty acres in the area now known as Lands End. Inspired by the rugged beauty and incredible scenery, Sutro intentionally designed the grounds to capture the views of the Pacific Ocean, the Golden Gate and the Marin Headlands.

Adolph Sutro planned his park on a grand scale. Sutro Heights was a fantastic collection of flower beds, forests, elegant wide walkways, hedge mazes and "parterres" (a popular Victorian landscape feature where flowers and bushes were carefully trimmed into shapes of names or designs). Builders constructed an observation platform plaza that overlooked the Cliff House as well as the Dolce far Niente balcony, a long terrace-like structure on the cliff overlooking Ocean Beach. To provide garden decorations, he imported over 200 concrete replicas of Greek and Roman statuary from Belgium, with the intent to provide examples of European culture to his San Francisco visitors. The sculptures, along with rustic benches, chairs and tables were carefully placed throughout the grounds. The garden contained many buildings ranging from simple garden sheds to an elaborate glass-paned conservatory. To keep the grounds in excellent condition, Sutro maintained a full-time staff of 17 gardeners, machinist and drivers.

Sutro Tower

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Sutro Tower is a 977 ft (298 m) three-pronged TV and radio antenna tower in San Francisco, CA. Rising from a hill between Twin Peaks and Mount Sutro near Clarendon Heights, it is a prominent feature of the city skyline and a landmark for city residents and visitors.

History [edit]

Before the construction of Sutro Tower in 1973, television reception in San Francisco was spotty because the many hills of the city blocked the line-of-sight television signal. The great height of the new tower helped to resolve that problem. Transmitters had been scattered throughout the Bay Area, including at San Bruno Mountain, Mt. Allison, Monument Peak, and Mt. Diablo. By having all the main Bay Area television station transmitters in one location, reception was improved by allowing a receiving antenna pointed in a single direction to receive all those stations rather than a subset.

Local residents opposed the tower even before it was completed, including criticism of the aesthetic effect the tower would have on the rest of San Francisco. San Francisco writer Herb Caen once wrote, "I keep waiting for it to stalk down the hill and attack the Golden Gate Bridge." Acknowledging both displeasure and affection for its undeniable prominence on the city's skyline, it is sometimes referred to light-heartedly as the Sutro Monster^[7] or Space Claw.^{[8][9]}

When first built, the long legs of the tower were illuminated at night with long tubes of white light that looked like long fluorescent tubes. However, public outcry resulted in the lights being removed soon after they were turned on.^[citation needed]

Despite the initial revulsion of some residents, Sutro Tower is now recognized by many as a Bay Area icon, it appears in local art, television shows, and movies^[citation needed] as one of the architectural symbols of the city. The tower is featured in video games, business logos, on clothing, as furniture^[10] and even tattoos.^[11] The U.S. band Information Society used it on the cover of their album 'Don't Be Afraid' . A local entertainment guide, SF Station, uses it as a logo, as do the collaborative art game SFZero and the Expose SF art competition.

Construction [edit]

This section does not cite any sources. Please help improve this section by adding citations to reliable sources. Unsourced material may be challenged and removed. (March 2015)

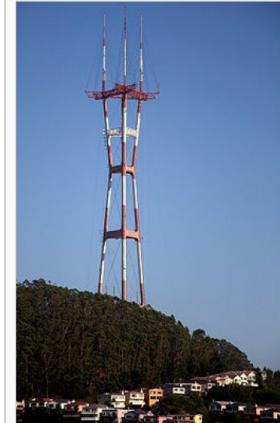

Construction commenced in 1971 by Kline Towers of Columbia, South Carolina, and the tower was completed in 1973, with the first transmissions on July 4, 1973. Approximately 3,750 m³ (132,000 cu ft) of concrete were used to make the foundation of the 3.7 million pound (1,700 ton) tower. Earthquake proofing includes ballasting two thirds of the weight of the structure below ground, resulting in a center of gravity at sixteen feet below ground level. It is used to transmit the signals of eleven television stations and four FM radio stations and for various other communications services.

The tower is owned by Sutro Tower Inc., which in turn is owned by a consortium of the four major television broadcasters in San Francisco at the time of its construction: KTVU (previously owned by Cox Enterprises, now owned by Fox Television Stations); KRON-TV (owned by the San Francisco Chronicle at the time of the tower's completion, now owned by Media General); KPIX (a former Westinghouse Broadcasting property, now owned by CBS); and KGO-TV (an ABC-owned station). Sutro Tower also leases space to other Bay Area radio and television stations, including PBS outlet KQED; independent station KOFY-TV; and KBCW, a sister station to KPIX.

Three other major Bay Area TV stations are unable to be located at Sutro Tower—the NBC-owned duopoly of KNTV and KSTS; and KTVU's duopoly partner KICU-TV. KNTV, which assumed the area's NBC affiliation from KRON-TV in 2002, relocated its transmitter from Loma Prieta Peak to San Bruno Mountain, five miles south of Sutro Tower; KSTS and KICU-TV transmit from east of Fremont. Those locations allow these stations to maintain primary coverage over San Jose and the South Bay—San Jose is the city of license for all three stations.

Named after Adolph Sutro, a businessman and former mayor of San Francisco who had a mansion located about 100 feet away from where the tower is now located, it is built on one of the highest peaks in the city. The tower stands 297.8 m (977 ft) above ground and 552 m (1,811 ft) above sea level. It is the tallest structure in the city, surpassing the 258.4 m (848 ft) Transamerica Pyramid by more than 39 m (128 ft). The old site of the Sutro Mansion, and thus the land on which the tower stands, is owned by Adolph Sutro's descendants.^[citation needed]

[3][4][5]

Access [edit]

The facility is accessible only by authorized vehicles. The area near the site offers beautiful panoramic viewpoints of San Francisco. There is a platform near the top of the tower, 232 m (761 ft) above ground and 486.2 m (1,595 ft) above sea level. Only authorized maintenance workers can access the tower via a small two-person elevator that runs inside the west tower enclosed leg. There is no public access within the Sutro Tower property lines.

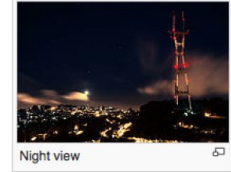

On a clear day, the tower can be seen from the East Bay peak of Mount Diablo and is sometimes the only part of San Francisco seen above the coastal fog when it is blown inland, typically on summer mornings and evenings.

In popular culture [edit]

The tower is an important presence in the 1977 San Francisco horror novel Our Lady of Darkness by Fritz Leiber.

The video game Grand Theft Auto: San Andreas, set in a fictionalized San Francisco, contains a radio tower that bears a striking resemblance to Sutro Tower. Versions of the tower are also seen in Midway's 1997 game San Francisco Rush and Need for Speed Underground 2.

The MMORPG Defiance includes Sutro Tower as the location of the mission Turret Turnabout.

SUTRO BATHS

Just north of the Cliff House are the historically protected ruins of the once grand Sutro Baths built by Adolph Sutro. Sutro had been developing the project for years, attempting four separate times to insulate the site from waves using sea walls, the first three of which collapsed into the Pacific Ocean. On March 14, 1896 the Sutro Baths finally opened to a dazzled public at a cost of more than $500,000. Spread over three acres, the artistic detail and engineering ingenuity were impressive.

A classic Greek portal opened to a massive glass enclosure containing one fresh water tank and six salt-water tanks, all at various temperatures. Together the pools held 1,685,000 gallons of seawater and could be filled or emptied in one hour by the high or low tides. There were 20,000 bathing suits and 40,000 towels for rent as well as slides, trapezes, springboards, and a high dive for up to 1,600 bathers.

Sutro District

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

The Sutro Historic District is a National Park Service historic district in the Lands End area of the Outer Richmond District in western San Francisco, California.^[1] It is within the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, since being acquired by the National Park Service in 1977.^[2]

The historic district includes attractions along Point Lobos Avenue at the coast originally built by Adolph Sutro, a Comstock Lode silver baron, and a major land owner/developer in and mayor of San Francisco.^[3]^[4] The 49-Mile Scenic Drive passes through it.

History [edit]

Adolf Sutro Era [edit]

In 1881, Adolf Sutro purchased 22 acres (89,000 m²) of undeveloped land south of Point Lobos (San Francisco) and north of Ocean Beach at the western edge of the city. It included a promontory overlooking the Pacific, with scenic views of the Marin Headlands, Mount Tamalpais, and the Golden Gate. Sutro built his residence on a rocky ledge there, above the first Cliff House. The property had scenic views of the Pacific Ocean, Ocean Beach, Seal Rocks, the first and second Cliff House, Marin Headlands, Mount Tamalpais, and the Golden Gate.

Features Sutro developed on his land holdings in the Lands End area include:^[2]

- Sutro Heights Park, on the site of the former Sutro Heights estate of Adolph Sutro. He opened the extensive gardens to the public in 1885. They were a city park from 1938 to 1976, when the City of San Francisco transferred ownership of Sutro Heights to the National Park Service, to be managed as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.^[5]
- Sutro's Aquarium (opened 1887), a concrete basin located in a cove just north of the Cliff House, fed fresh seawater by a 8 feet (2.4 m) high and 153 feet (47 m) long tunnel cut through an adjacent cliff. A heated, glass- enclosed pool was sited on higher ground above the tidal basin and featured a stocked supply of more exotic sea creatures.^[2]
- Sutro Baths (1894-1964), a massive public bath house and freshwater swimming facility. It included six saltwater swimming tanks of varying sizes, shapes, and water temperatures, tier of bleacher-like seats, providing seating for thousands of spectators, and a massive arched glass roof made from 100,000 square feet of stained glass and supported by 600 tons of iron girders.^[2]^[6]
- Cliff House (1896-1907), the second and elaborate Victorian chateau-style palace building.^[7]
- Sutro Pleasure Grounds at Merrie Way (1896-1898), a grand amusement park.^[8]

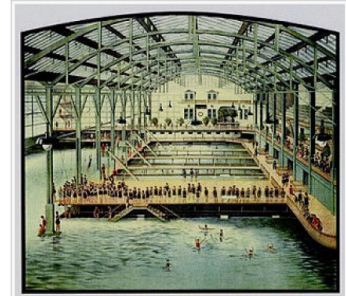

The Park and Ocean Railroad had provided relatively expensive transport to the Cliff House via Golden Gate Park. To provide inexpensive and more scenic transportation for visitors to the "Sutro District" features, in 1885 he invested significantly in The Cliff House and Ferries Railroad, a new passenger steam train line from downtown San Francisco via Point Lobos to the Sutro Heights area.^[2]^[3]

Post-Sutro Era [edit]

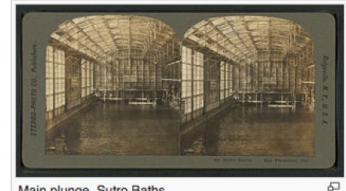

Adolph Sutro died in 1898. His daughter Emma Sutro Merritt then moved into the Sutro Heights estate. Until the early 1920s the gardens remained in relatively good condition with the plantings maintained in a state of maturity. In 1920, the ownership of Sutro Heights was transferred to the City of San Francisco under the condition that it be "forever held and maintained as a free public resort or park under the name of Sutro Heights." Between 1920 and 1933 the Merritts continued to allow visitors access to Sutro Heights, but provided for minimal maintenance of the site.

The second Cliff House burned to the ground in 1907. The third Cliff House was a lower Neoclassical style structure designed by Reid & Reid. It opened in 1909 and prospered until 1918, when the involvement of the United States in World War I required closure of all establishments within a half mile of Fort Miley Military Reservation to the north on Point Lobos (San Francisco). The Cliff House closed once more in 1925, not to reopen again until 1937.

In 1933, at the request of Emma Sutro Merritt, the City of San Francisco agreed to assume maintenance of Sutro Heights but there was no major improvement or rehabilitation of the grounds. The garden's condition declined after maintenance responsibility was dedeed to the City, and it accelerated after her death in 1938.

In 1937, the city submitted a proposal to the Works Progress Administration (WPA) for the rehabilitation of the grounds at Suto Heights. When Emma Suto Merritt died in residence at Suto Heights in 1938, the WPA was in the process of further stabilizing the western slopes with an elaborate series of artificial concrete cliffs. Following her death, the WPA proceeded to demolish the aging Suto residence, then in a state of serious disrepair, and also the remains of the conservatory, entrance gates, and Dolce far Niente Balcony vista point.^[2]

During World War II, Suto Heights was closed for security reasons because of its proximity to Fort Miley Military Reservation.^[2] In 1949 the City of San Francisco commissioned a plan for the rehabilitation of the park. Little of the plan was implemented, except converting most of the planting beds to lawns. Between the late 1940s and the 1970s there was considerable vandalism and neglect at Suto Heights Park.^[2]

In 1951, battered still further by an even steeper drop in attendance at the Suto Baths during World War II, Gustav Suto offered the property for sale. George K. Whitney, owner of the Cliff House and nearby Playland at the Beach at Ocean Beach purchased it. He converted all of the swimming tanks to one large ice skating complex. Robert D. Fraser, a controversial developer, acquired the property in 1964 intending to build an apartment tower. In 1967 a fire at Suto Baths burned the once-grand structure to its foundations, and resulting sentiments impeded Fraser's development plan.^[2]

National Park Service [edit]

National Park Service management efforts since the City of San Francisco transferred ownership of Suto Heights Park to it in 1977 are to identify and preserve the historic features remaining on the site. Concrete headers, planters, fountains, and statues were removed for storage and cataloging. Reproductions of the remaining statues, including the entrance gate lions, and the Stag and Diana, were cast and re-erected on the site.^[2]

In 1976, the National Park Service acquired the ownership of the Suto Baths site. The site is heavily visited by people who examine the remains of the baths and experience the feeling and setting of the site. In 1977, the National Park Service also acquired the ownership of the third Cliff House that was built in 1909.

Historic district [edit]

The National Park Service applied to have the area listed as a historic district on the National Register of Historic Places in 2000, under the proposed names Suto Historic Landscape District and/or Adolph Suto Historic District.^[9] The historic district listing was unsuccessful, but the Camera Obscura at the Cliff House was added to the National Register.

Present day [edit]

The Suto Historic District, including Suto Heights Park and the Suto Baths site, continue to provide open space for strolling, exploring history, wildlife viewing, picnicking, and other recreation activities. The historic Cliff House and Camera Obscura are still visitor attractions.

The National Park Service–Golden Gate National Recreation Area has on site interpretive history programs and events, and various historical information/images websites and online history documents (see References + External links below).

Adolph Heinrich Joseph Sutro (April 29, 1830 – August 8, 1898) was the 24th mayor of San Francisco, and first German-American Jewish mayor, serving in that office from 1895 until 1897. He is today perhaps best remembered for the various San Francisco lands and landmarks that still bear his name.

Sutro Tunnel [edit]

Born to a Jewish family^[1] in Aachen, Rhine Province, Prussia (today North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany), Sutro, educated as an engineer, arrived in the United States at age 20. In 1860, he introduced himself to William Ralston of the Bank of California and introduced his plans for de-watering and de-gassing the mine shafts of the Comstock Lode by driving a tunnel through Mount Davidson to drain the water. Sutro incorporated the Sutro Tunnel company and raised US$3 million, a considerable fortune through this work in Nevada. He included the miners in his scheme, and planned to sail to Europe to negotiate with the Parisian Bank, but the Franco-Prussian War commenced in the middle of July 1870. Sutro was stymied, but out of the blue came an offer from a London bank led by a banker named McClamont, who offered $750,000 in gold per year for the Comstock.

According to historian Samuel Dickson, "... Sutro set off blasts of dynamite, ... leading the way for tunnel diggers. He fought avalanches, mud slides and poisonous gases. He dug air shafts to relieve the danger; the shafts filled with water, one of them to the depth of nine hundred feet. He fought cave-ins and solid rock. Through the grueling months, day after day and month after month, he marched ahead of his men, stripped to the waist, laboring with them, sweating with them, facing death with them, and in the end, winning through with them to victory."

Adolph Sutro became King of the Comstock because his tunnels drained three to 4 million US gallons (15,000 m³) of water a day, rented by mine owners at an average of $10,000 a day, "all moneys accumulated for his stockholders."

Sutro saw that better German pumps were becoming available, that the Comstock was going even deeper than his drainage tunnel and diminishing in metal output, and sold out before conditions worsened further, departing rich for San Francisco.

Estate, baths, and home [edit]

His wealth was increased by large real estate investments in San Francisco, where he became an entrepreneur and public figure after returning from the Comstock in 1879. These land investments included Mount Sutro, Land's End (the area where Lincoln Park and the Cliff House are today), and Mount Davidson, which was called "Blue Mountain" at the time.

Sutro opened his own estate to the public and was heralded as a populist for various astute acts of public munificence, such as opening an aquarium and an elaborate and beautiful, glass-enclosed entertainment complex called Sutro Baths. Though the Baths were not opened until 1896, Sutro had been developing and marketing the project for years, attempting four separate times to insulate the site from waves using sea walls, the first three of which collapsed into the Pacific. In 1896, Adolph Sutro built a new Cliff House, a seven story Victorian Chateau, called by some "the Gingerbread Palace," below his estate on the bluffs of Sutro Heights. This was the same year work began on the famous Sutro Baths, which included six of the largest indoor swimming pools north of the Restaurant that included a museum, skating rink and other pleasure grounds. Great throngs of San Franciscans arrived on steam trains, bicycles, carts and horse wagons on Sunday excursions. In 1894, Sutro, in preparation for the opening of the Cliff House, bought a large part of the collection of Woodward's Gardens, a combination zoo, amusement park, aquarium, and art gallery which had closed in 1891.^[2]

The Baths were saltwater and springwater pools, heated to varying degrees, and surrounded by a concert hall and museums stocked with treasures that Sutro had collected in his travels and from Woodward's Gardens. The baths became very popular despite their remote location, across the open dunes to the west of the populated areas of the city. This popularity was partly due to the low entry fee for visiting the Baths and riding the excursion railroad he built to reach them. The railroad grade still exists as a walking trail along the Land's End cliffs, maintained by the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

Sutro managed a great increase in the value of his outlying land investments as a direct result of the development burst that his vacationers' railroad spawned. He also increased the value of his lands by planting his property at Mount Sutro with saplings of fast-growing eucalyptus. This occurred at the same time as city Supervisors granted tax-free status to "forested" lands within city limits. Small fragments of the forest still exist. The largest is at Mount Sutro, where 61 acres (250,000 m²) are the property of the University of California, San Francisco, and another 19 are property of the City of San Francisco.

Sutro House

Mayor (1894–1896) [edit]

Sutro's reputation as a provider of diversions and culture for the average person led the politically weak and radical Populist Party to draft him to run for mayor on their ticket. He won on an anti-big business platform, inveighing against the tight grip that the Southern Pacific Railroad had over local businesses. Nevertheless, he was quickly considered a failed mayor, ill suited for political work, and did not provide the popularity boost his party had hoped to achieve by association with him.

At the time of his death, in 1896, his fortune was extensive and his legal affairs in disarray. As a result, his heirs fought bitterly over his holdings.

Many of Sutro's gifts to the city of San Francisco still exist and bear his name, such as Mount Sutro, originally Mount Parnassus (a lower hill nearby is the location of the Sutro Tower), and Sutro Heights. Sutro Baths became a skating rink and then was destroyed by a fire in 1966. The ruins of the baths (mostly the cement foundations) are just north of the Cliff House. They are part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. (1894-1896)

Family [edit]

His brother was Otto Sutro, an organist, conductor and minor composer who was very prominent in musical life in Baltimore, Maryland.

His nieces (Otto's daughters) were Rose and Ottillie Sutro, the first recognised piano-duo team.

First Filing Deadline: You must file a Declaration of Use (or Excusable Nonuse) between the 5th and 6th years after the registration date. See 15 U.S.C. §§1058, 1141k. If the declaration is accepted, the registration will continue in force for the remainder of the ten-year period, calculated from the registration date, unless cancelled by an order of the Commissioner for Trademarks or a federal court.

Second Filing Deadline: You must file a Declaration of Use (or Excusable Nonuse) and an Application for Renewal between the 9th and 10th years after the registration date.*
See 15 U.S.C. §1059.

Requirements in Successive Ten-Year Periods*
What and When to File:

You must file a Declaration of Use (or Excusable Nonuse) and an Application for Renewal between every 9th and 10th-year period, calculated from the registration date.*

Grace Period Filings*

The above documents will be accepted as timely if filed within six months after the deadlines listed above with the payment of an additional fee.

The United States Patent and Trademark Office (USPTO) will NOT send you any future notice or reminder of these filing requirements.

ATTENTION MADRID PROTOCOL REGISTRANTS: The holder of an international registration with an extension of protection to the United States under the Madrid Protocol must timely file the Declarations of Use (or Excusable Nonuse) referenced above directly with the USPTO. The time periods for filing are based on the U.S. registration date (not the international registration date). The deadlines and grace periods for the Declarations of Use (or Excusable Nonuse) are identical to those for nationally issued registrations. See 15 U.S.C. §§1058, 1141k. However, owners of international registrations do not file renewal applications at the USPTO. Instead, the holder must file a renewal of the underlying international registration at the International Bureau of the World Intellectual Property Organization, under Article 7 of the Madrid Protocol, before the expiration of each ten-year term of protection, calculated from the date of the international registration. See 15 U.S.C. §1141j. For more information and renewal forms for the international registration, see <http://www.wipo.int/madrid/en/>.

NOTE: Fees and requirements for maintaining registrations are subject to change. Please check the USPTO website for further information. With the exception of renewal applications for registered extensions of protection, you can file the registration maintenance documents referenced above online at <http://www.uspto.gov>.
