[EXTERNAL EMAIL]

Counsel,

The below requests concern separate matters. We respond here to requests in AGIS v. Lyft (EDTX).

AGIS objects to the proposed bill of costs. In addition to Lyft's inability to show it is a "prevailing party," none of the costs are associated with any trial preparation or event because this matter did not proceed as far. None of the items were necessary or "for use in this case."

Regarding fees, we have not received your basis to request fees.

We are available to confer on the above issues tomorrow at 3:30pm Eastern.

Regards,
Enrique

Counsel,

I'm following up on your email below regarding scheduling a meet and confer to discuss AGIS's objections to Lyft's proposed Bill of Costs. In addition to this particular issue, Lyft would also like to discuss the following topics for discussion at the upcoming meet and confer:

- AGIS's position regarding Lyft's motion for fees under 35 U.S.C. 285 in the EDTX case;
- AGIS's deficient interrogatory responses in the NDCA case which could impact the case schedule and the proposed March 22 deposition date;
- AGIS's refusal to produce EDTX materials in the NDCA case;
- adding AGIS, Inc., AGIS Holdings, and Malcom K. Beyer, Jr. as parties to the amended complaint; and
- AGIS's position regarding a stay in NDCA case in light of pending EPR and IPR proceedings.

Thanks,

Bethany

Counsel,

As you are likely aware, the Court issued an Order (Dkt. 367) last week regarding the parties' joint motion for extension, which requires Lyft to file its motion for costs and fees on or before March 25, 2022. In preparation of filing its motion, Lyft would like to understand whether AGIS has any objections to any costs identified in Lyft's proposed Bill of Costs that was previously sent on January 31, 2022 (reattached here). If there are objections, we'd like to set a time to meet and confer to discuss such objections. We can be available to meet and confer this week.

Thanks in advance,

Bethany
