 1          (Call to Order of the Court.)

 2              THE COURT:  Good afternoon.  Please be seated.

 3              This is a hearing in the case of Advanced Ground

 4   Information Systems, Inc. versus Life360, Inc.  The Case Number

 5   is 14-80651.

 6              Could we start with appearances, please.

 7              MR. FISCHER:  Your Honor, Ury Fischer, Lott and

 8   Fischer, on behalf of AGIS.  And with me are local counsel.  I

 9   will allow them to introduce themselves.

10              MR. BAGDENOCH:  Your Honor, George Badenoch from

11   Kenyon & Kenyon also for plaintiff AGIS.  With me is my partner

12   Tom Makin and associate Vince Rubino.

13              THE COURT:  Good afternoon.

14              MR. CHRISTU:  Good afternoon, Your Honor.  Eric

15   Christu and Daniel Barsky with Shutts & Bowen for the defendant

16   Life360.  I will let Mr. Baldauff and Mr. Clark, co-counsel, 17   introduce themselves.

18              MR. BALDAUF:  Good afternoon, Your Honor.  Kent

19   Baldauf, Junior, from the Webb Law Firm in Pittsburgh.  With me

20   is Brian Clark from my office as well.

21              THE COURT:  Good afternoon.

22              Okay.  This is a Markman hearing on claim

23   construction.  What do you plan to do today?

24              MR. BAGDENOCH:  Your Honor, the parties did discuss

25   how to proceed, and I think we're agreed on the basic procedure. We're planning to start with a tutorial. And for that purpose my partner Tom Makin is going to present some testimony from our expert witness Professor Ben Goldberg who is here with us. Then at the end of that the other side will present a tutorial, ask any questions they want of Professor Goldberg, and then we would start the Markman.

And we've split that up. I'm planning to do some of -- we tried to group the terms in a logical way for the Court. I'm planning to do some of the terms. Basically there's several groups of terms where we -- the basic difference is we think we should have a simple definition. We think they're adding too much stuff in the way of negative limitations and so on.

And then there's some terms where the main issue is whether it should or should not be construed as a means-plus-function type element, and my partner Tom Makin is going to handle those. And because they involve the question of whether a person skilled in the art would understand that a term connotes something structural, he's also planning to have testimony from our expert, Professor Goldberg, on that. And then the other side would then present their tutorial. And so that's the way we basically lined it up.

I should mention one other thing. If the Court has time at the end of this, we do have still some problems with discovery. The parties do keep talking, but we're still at a
