Dear Brian and Eric

Maxell has moved for a continuance of the Huawei trial based on a pending motion for discovery sanctions. During a status conference with the Court today on the issue, Maxell proposed that the ZTE case proceed with trial on June 18, with the Huawei trial to proceed thereafter to provide the parties in the Huawei case with additional time to prepare that case for trial. This proposal would obviously provide definite dates for the ZTE trial and assist the parties in other ways as well by having a date certain for the trial. The Court has asked that we reach out to you and get ZTE's position on Maxell's request. We would not expect ZTE to oppose, since ZTE's trial date is set for June 18, as well, and the Court told Maxell and ZTE they should be ready for the ZTE trial on that date in case anything happened in the Huawei case. Please let us know whether ZTE opposes Maxell's proposal and, if so, the bases for its opposition. Huawei and Maxell are to report back to the Court by Wednesday of next week in the form of a joint status report.

Have a nice weekend. Feel free to call to discuss.

Geoff
