Depositions in Japan

Taking a deposition in Japan can be complex; depositions are controlled by detailed agreements between the United States and the Government of Japan, and procedures cannot be modified or circumvented. Orders by U.S. courts cannot compel the Government of Japan to amend or overlook its judicial regulations and procedures. In addition, the Embassy cannot compel the Government of Japan to act faster, or in a way more convenient or beneficial to any party, even with a U.S. court order requesting such action.

With very rare exceptions, depositions must occur at the Embassy or Consulates.

While electronically recording depositions is permissible, Japanese authorities have informed the United States that Japan does not permit the taking of testimony via telephone. While videotaping is permitted, videotaping equipment is not available at the Embassy or Consulate General for use in depositions.

Important Notes

- Japanese authorities have informed the United States that Japan does not permit the taking of testimony via telephone. Videotaping, however is permitted.
- Per the Government of Japan, ordinarily, all depositions must take place on Embassy or Consulate premises; any exceptions to this entails a special request to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, because of the additional issue of consular personnel availability, is seldom granted.
- All persons participating in a deposition must have the proper Japanese visa.
- The Embassy and Consulate General will not release information about a deposition reservation to an opposing counsel unless authorized by the party which made the reservation.

Global Level 4 Health Advisory – Do Not Travel

Global Health Advisory
March 31, 2020

Level 4: Do Not Travel

The Department of State advises U.S. citizens to avoid all international travel due to the global impact of COVID-19. In countries where commercial departure options remain available, U.S. citizens who live in the United States should arrange for immediate return to the United States, unless they are prepared to remain abroad for an indefinite period.

At present the Department of State is making every effort to assist U.S. citizens overseas who wish to return to the United States. As the Covid-19 situation develops, our ability to provide such assistance working with commercial airlines or arranging for evacuation flights may become more limited or even unavailable. In recent weeks, commercial airlines have significantly reduced flight schedules and countries have closed airports and borders with little advance notice. If you wish to return to the United States, you should make arrangements to do so now and contact the nearest U.S. Embassy or Consulate for assistance as needed. There is no guarantee that the Department of State will be able to continue to provide repatriation assistance and transportation options to the United States may be unavailable in the future. If you choose to remain overseas, you should be prepared to remain where you are for the foreseeable future.

U.S. citizens who live abroad should avoid all international travel. Many countries are experiencing COVID-19 outbreaks and implementing travel restrictions and mandatory quarantines, closing borders, and prohibiting non-citizens from entry with little advance notice. Airlines have cancelled many international flights and several cruise operators have suspended operations or cancelled trips. If you choose to travel internationally, your travel plans may be severely disrupted, and you may be forced to remain outside of the United States for an indefinite timeframe.
